GETTING HOME.

Jam me in a jitnev. Slam me in a seat, Pile two fellows in my lap, Two others on my feet.

Open wide the throttle, Whirl the steering gear, Skid from hence to yonder, Slide from there to here.

Shave each rigid lamp post, Nick each yieldless pole, Tear the curb to pieces, Hit each jolting hole.

Ram yon stolid street car. Rip that wobbling bus, Spill the milk man's wagon-Never mind the muss.

Take an arm at 'Steenth street. Break a leg at Grand. Dislocate a hip at Park, And yank the other hand.

Make 'er scoot and hustle, Make 'er spin and fly, Only hit the high spots, Scratch the bloomin' sky.

Never mind the pieces. That's not your concern; Get me home in record time. Make the highway burn.

For I'm a man of business-The busiest man on earth-And when I pay a jitney, I demand a jitney's worth.
