The fact that the bull had been dehorned is all that saved his life.

Cottage Grove has in the Hotel Oregon a stopping place for travelers and others that would do credit to any city. All the luxuries of the season are provided for the table and served in a faultless manner by the chef and waiters. The rooms are furnished with baths and other modern conveniences, and cleanliness and good taste are in evidence throughout the hostelry. Last week the writer heard an auto tourist who had been detained here by the rain and muddy roads declare that he didn't care because he could enjoy in the meantime the comforts of Hotel Oregon. There are plenty of others who feel that way about the hotel and its efficient manager, C. A. Bartell.

Cottage Grove Chautauqua

See how many letters there are in the words? Can't you make a lot of different words from these letters. Just get busy and see how many words you can make thus: Hat, chat, that and so forth. We want every boy and girl in the grammar grades to get busy on this and make out a list of words. Any word in the English language that is made up of the letters in these words will be counted.

To the boy or girl handing in the most words, the Play Lady of the Chautauqua will give a dandy Eastman Kodak that takes a picture 2-1/2 by 4-1/4 inches and a Junior Chautauqua Word Contest Prize Winner Badge for you to wear.

For the next longest list, the Play Lady will give an Eastman Kodak that takes a picture 2-1/4 by 3-1/4 and a Junior Chautauqua Word Contest Prize Winner Badge.

For the next eight longest lists the Play Lady will give each boy and girl a Word Contest Badge. These badges are celluloid buttons and are little beauties printed red and white about the size of a half dollar and have a pretty picture of the big Chautauqua tent where your games will be held.

WORD CONTEST RULES.

Your teachers are interested in the Chautauqua and will help you think of words and your mamma and papa will be glad to have you try to win one of these splendid Eastman kodaks.

The rules of the Word Contest are very simple:

1. Any girl or boy in the grammar grades may enter the contest.
2. All words must be written on plain paper and the number of words given in figures.
3. Sign the list with your name and address.
4. Lists must be given in to the Junior Play Lady by the second day of Chautauqua.
5. Prizes will be given out by the Play Director on the third or fourth day of Chautauqua.

Get all the help you can—ask your teachers, and your mamma and papa to help. You might just as well win a kodak and one of these dandy Chautauqua badges as not.

Just remember you must have all your words written down and the list ready to hand in by the second day of Chautauqua. Put on your thinking caps and get busy.

Society Notes

The recital given by the pupils of Miss Daisy McCluskey, pianiste, and Charles South, violinist, assisted by Mrs. Leon Des Larzes, soprano, at the M. E. church Monday evening was largely attended and proved the musical treat of the season. The piano solos by Misses Mildred Walker, Neta Compton and Caroline Weber were well executed, while the two vocal solos, one in English and the other in French by Mrs. Des Larzes, were simply charming. The piano and violin duets by Miss Muriel Mayhew and Miss McCluskey were much enjoyed and the violin solos by Prof. South always bring hearty encores. Master Dean Moore, of Creswell, gave the large audience an agreeable surprise by his masterly piano solos. Altogether it was a most enjoyable program.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Dinwiddie, living three miles south of town, entertained eleven little boys and girls on May 26th in honor of the sixth birthday of their daughter, Martha May. The time was spent in sports which were attractive to children of their age and a happier crowd would be hard to find. The hostess provided light refreshments, to which the youngsters did ample justice and they will never forget Martha May's anniversary and the frolic they had in honor of it.

To celebrate the 12th birthday anniversary of her daughter Velma, Mrs. Harry Hart prepared an elaborate chicken dinner at her home Monday evening, to which a number of relatives were invited. Later in the evening ice cream and the birthday cake, which Miss Velma had baked, were served.

A farewell reception was held at the home of Mrs. Job Friday afternoon for Mrs. Stahlman and Mrs. Armstrong who expect to leave Cottage Grove in the near future.
