EYES TOWARD OREGON

With a land area of 60,000,000 acres, of which only one-sixth is included in farms now, Oregon is destined to become one of the leading agricultural states of the union. By the Cascade mountains the state is divided into Eastern and Western Oregon. Irrigation is doing wonders for the eastern portion of Oregon and in the valleys of the western part of the state the soil is of rich loam that produces millions in grains and fruits.

To the southeast the land is extensively used for grazing, while in the south and extreme eastern part of Oregon fortunes have been and are being made in the mines. Mention has been made of the irrigation plants of Eastern Oregon. Along the benches of the Snake river is room for thousands of happy homes amid plenty to eat and drink, and pure, invigorating, health-breathing air. Grapes measuring ten inches to the bunch with berries as large as marbles are found; in fact, the bunch of grapes which won the gold medal at the World's Columbian Exposition at Chicago was grown near Snake river.

With the new acquisitions of the government in the east, the markets of Japan and China are opening to the northwest. This means opportunities for more men and women, who if they will but pay a visit, can see for themselves.—Portland Correspondent in San Jose Mercury.

A Sunday school picnic train having been run into Illinois, and many killed, it is now proposed to call upon the legislature of that state to regulate the running of excursion trains. It is quite wonderful how little forethought resides in the American mind. Not until after the Iroquois theatre horror was it thought necessary to make theatres safe; not until the burning of the Slocum was it deemed necessary to have steamships properly inspected, and now not until after a train load of Sunday school children have burned up, is any move made for the safety of excursionists by rail.

The annual year book for the fifty-third year at Santa Clara College, California, has been received through the kindness of Rev. Jas. M. O'Sullivan, Librarian and Register of the institution. Undoubtedly there is given at this college the most thorough instruction both in commercial branches and in the academic and college courses for young men, as well as boys. The classical course, however, is unsurpassed in the best universities of the world. Any who desire to see the year book or catalogue, to become familiar with conditions upon which young men can be entered, are welcome to examine it at the office of the Leader.

Fine crops are reported from the vicinity of Pendleton and from Gilliam and Sherman counties by a man who has just returned from that section. He says the same good conditions prevail at Walla Walla, Washington and adjacent to that county. It is all, he says, winter sown grain, however, and those who at present are complaining of short crops in the Willamette valley would better plan to sow in the winter instead of waiting until spring.

Water piped to the local cemetery is among the improvements of the past few months, due to local enterprise and public spirit. What will be the next step in town development? Payment or grading of streets in the business section should have first consideration.

Eleventh annual exhibition of the Southern Oregon District Agricultural Society will be held at Eugene, beginning September 20, continuing five days. The list of premiums is large and includes many branches of industry. Speed program is announced for each day of the fair.

A copy of the annual proceedings of the Oregon Press Association has been received at this office. S. L.

Moorhead of the Junction City Times is President; E. Hofer, Daily Capital Journal, Salem, Vice President; G. M. Cornwell, Timberman, Portland, Second Vice President; Albert Tozier, World, Portland, Secretary. Will the last named kindly send the editors of Cottage Grove blanks for application for membership. We want to be in.

MRS. GEORGE DEAD.

Mrs. George, widow of the late Henry George, the political economist, died July 29th at her home at Monticello, New York, aged 69 years.

Mrs. Henry George was married to her deceased husband in the city of Sacramento. They were exceedingly poor in those days, but George even then displayed evidences of the genius for reformatory literary work which made him one of the great names in polemic literature. The veteran editor of The Bee, James McClatchy, was even then the Mentor of the aspiring youth who subsequently far outshone in fame his preceptor. Two sons survive Mrs. George, Richard a sculptor, and Henry George, Jr., who is a writer on social economy.—Sacramento Bee.

ELECTRIC ROAD FROM PORTLAND.

A company has been incorporated to build an electric road from Portland to Eugene, a distance of 122 miles. Capitalization is set at $1,000,000. Electric traction is proving effective over long distances and the extension of such a line to Cottage Grove, Roseburg, Grants Pass and Ashland is not an impossibility.

Between Seattle and Tacoma such a line (third rail system) makes the trip at a high rate of speed and has secured practically all the passenger traffic. Fares are cut in two by this line. The promoters of the Eugene-Portland line should have the encouragement and moral support of the people of the Willamette valley.

SEND OUT THE TELEGRAM.

If every member of the Commercial Club will send out 20 copies of the Telegram's special edition, the 1600 copies delivered to the club will prove very effective. Each requires one cent postage. Put them into circulation among Eastern people.

Some Kind Words.

The Lane County Leader, published at Cottage Grove, is carrying more live local advertising in its columns than any country paper in the state, which is a mute testimonial of the progressive business men of that bustling little city. Editor A. C. Gage is publishing a very newsworthy and interesting local paper, considering the fact that he is a new man in the field, and his efforts to please the patrons of the paper and advance the interests of the town and community should be, and evidently are, appreciated.—Editor W. C. Conner in Roseburg Plaindealer.

The Lane County Leader, printed at Cottage Grove by A. C. Gage, who acquired fame and dollars, as publisher of the Santa Clara (Cal.) News, carries advertising enough for two papers. Here's hoping the good work of patronizing the Leader will continue, for A. C.'s qualities of head and heart, together with his thorough knowledge of the art preservative, merit all the good things of this life.—Editor L. C. McKenney in Glendale News.

Have Come Here to Reside.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bright have come to Cottage Grove to make their home. They formerly lived four miles from Astoria, Douglas county where they still have 160 acres of good timber land, orchard, house and small farm. Mr. Bright has purchased the Ostrander property near the railroad, 100x150 feet, which includes a fine two-story dwelling and outbuildings. Mr. Bright is a veteran of the Civil War. He served in the 16th U. S. Infantry and was 18 months in the Southern prisons, having been confined in Libbey, Andersonville, and Charleston. He was in the latter while it was under fire from the guns of his own battery. Later he was in the prison at Florence, South Carolina. He was released March 13th, 1865, and discharged May 8, 1865.

Report of Funds Collected.

Recently a pipe line was laid from city mains to supply water for improvement of cemetery lots. John Barker, chairman of the committee having the work in hand, and to whom much of the credit of the undertaking is due, has submitted the accompanying financial report for publication.

WHO GETS THE BOOKS?

As the contest for the works of Shakespeare, offered by the Leader, goes on more and more become interested in the subject. As in most such contests the greatest interest will center in the last few weeks. During the past week, however, one new name has been added to the list and a change in the order of the contestants is also noted. The vote follows.

Katie Knowlton	750
Louisa Harlow	600
Lindley Welch	600
Leta Sanford	425
Anna Oglesby	300
Allen D. Baker	150

When the young folks ask for your subscription and you give it to them take their receipt. It is as good as that of the publisher and will be honored at all times. In asking you to help them get the books they are simply asking your support in the contest. It is not in any sense a dun for the money. Giving it to them is just as good as bringing it to the Leader office.

Any one may enter the contest on the following simple terms: Some one, for a few days' pleasant and easy canvassing, will get this handsome and valuable set. Tell those you ask for subscriptions all about the plan you are working on. Call or send to this office for a printed copy of instructions, or cut out the following for your guidance and to show to subscribers:

The Lane County Leader offers a set of "The Tragedies and Comedies of Shakespeare" (new edition—3 volumes), published by P. F. Collier & Son, to the young lady or young man who during the next two months succeeding July 31st secures the largest number of subscriptions to the Leader. Subscriptions may be new or renewals from old subscribers.

Every cent collected by contestants will be counted as one point in his favor—thus if a yearly subscription is secured at $1.50 it will indicate 150 points in favor of the person securing the subscription.

Friends of contestants may pay their own subscriptions and deposit the points for any candidate they may favor. A point for every cent paid. A box will be placed in the office of the Leader and points may be deposited at any time during the time specified.

Each card must be endorsed and signed by the editor of the Leader to be valid in the final count. This is for the purpose of keeping out false points and to indicate the validity of all.

The contest will close on Thursday, September 8th, 1921, and the points will be counted and result announced in the Leader of the issue of Friday, September 9th.

The young lady or gentleman securing the greatest number of points will be presented with the Works of Shakespeare. These volumes may be seen at the office of the Leader.

This unquestionably one of the best editions of Shakespeare's plays ever issued. It is published in eight compact volumes, bound in red morocco, with a handsome gilt back stamp. The eight frontispieces are printed in color, from drawings by W. deLeftwich Dodge, made especially for this edition. The other illustrations are from drawings on wood by Sir John Gilbert, R. A.

This edition comprises not only the dramas, but his one hundred and fifty-four sonnets. A biography precedes the actual text, which is annotated by copious explanatory remarks of the best known Shakespearean commentators, among them Malone and Stevens. A valuable supplement is furnished in the shape of a glossary of obsolete and unusual terms and a concordance of the most familiar sayings is appended.

Points may be registered now. Bring in your subscriptions and vote for your favorite. Anyone may enter.

John M. Williams, Secretary of the Second Southern Agricultural Society was in Cottage Grove Thursday. He urges the people of this section to make exhibits at the District Fair, Sept. 20.

To my dear friend Jess:

The Old Nursery Rhyme,
One, two, three,
Mother caught a flea.
How she done it
Was a mystery to me,
Till I found out,
It was an easy thing, you know—
She simply got a little powder
From morgan and braham.
P. S.—They have all kinds of powder and likwils to destroy man and beast. I will write again soon.

Yours,
ANNIE.

Sunday School Picnic.

The Sunday School of the Christian church of Cottage Grove gave a very delightful picnic in the Thomas Cox grove just south of Latham on Wednesday. There was a good attendance by both young and old, and a merry time was had by all present. A basket dinner, which only our mothers know how to prepare was one of the leading features of the day. A variety of games and sports were indulged in to the great amusement of all present and many were the hearty laughs indulged in at the expense of some confiding victim.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes.

We desire to place in the hands of those afflicted with Bright's Disease and Diabetes a 32-page pamphlet that is saving human lives. It is not an ordinary pamphlet, such as is commonly used to advertise medicines, but is primarily made up of reports of scientifically conducted tests in a large variety of cases, showing 82 per cent of recoveries in these hitherto incurable diseases.

The specifics employed in these tests are known as the Fulton Compounds and the results obtained prove conclusively that these dreaded diseases so long fatal, the deaths from Bright's Disease alone are appalling, over 100,000 a year, starting as kidney troubles, have at last yielded to medical science. The pamphlet is free. Write to the John J. Fulton Co., 409 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal.

When to suspect Bright's Disease—Puffy ankles or hair's weakness without apparent cause, kidney trouble after third month, frequent urination, may show sediment or cloudy on standing; falling vision; day drowsiness; one or more of these.
