POPE LEO'S POEM ON DEATH.

The sinking sun, descending into night,

Sheds on thee, Leo, its last rays of light.

In thy chilled veins the blood creeps day by day

Slowly-more slowly-as life ebbs away.

Death casts his dart-thy mortal form, when cold,

Earth shall receive-the funeral shroud enfold.

But from its prison thy glad sonl shall rise.

Stretch wide its wings, and, soaring. seek the skies.

Ab, iff it be thy blessed will, O God.
Grant me, if counted worthy of thy grace,
In thy most blessed heaven to see thy face.
A PLEASANT WINTER.

Harvesting Pointoes.

Most of the fields of early potatoes will be ripe enough to dig this month unless they were planted very late, says American Cultivator. It does not do them any good to remain in the ground after the tops have died down. Dig them and let them lie on the ground until dry, but not long enough get sunburned. Then pick them up and put in a cool, dry place, not pilling B calin, B retiring, B ne'er led astray, to rot unless the disease is very bad among them before they are dug. Potatoes do not need to be handled quite as carefully as eggs or apples, yet they are not henefited any by being roughly handled when first dug cattle from thirty to forty months old. A calf should not be used for veal under six weeks of age, is best about ten weeks old and raised on the cow. Hogs may be used at any age after six weeks, but the most profitable age is eight to twelve months.

Sheep may be used from two to three months old. They will be at their best before two years old, usually at eight to twelve months.
