Selection of Breeding Swine

No two men will exactly agree as to what constitutes a perfect hog. Different men (men of equal ability) will pick out different hogs as the winners, says a correspondent of Western Swine Breeder. This is due to their different ideas as to type and perfection. Let us see what are the requirements of a perfect hog. They are size, bone, quality, color, markings, hair, head, ear, symmetry, style, beauty, evenness and a dozen smaller requirements. These are all but minor requirements in an ideal hog. The crucial test, and the one requirement in an ideal hog, is, Will he make the most pork out of the least amount of feed? All the former go to please the eye; the latter is to fill the pocketbook. If need be we could dispense with all the former, but the latter is the life of the business.

What I wish to impress upon the breeder is, do not forget the paramount object of the breed. It should be your duty to do all you can in selecting such stock as will make the most gain from the feed fed. Feed is high and will go higher as the years pass on. It will only be with the utmost care and closest selection that we will be able to raise the excellence of efficiency that has been attained in the last twenty-five years. We can scarcely hope to accomplish as much in the next twenty-five years. Still there is plenty of room left.

You may wonder what type I consider as the nearest perfect. It certainly can be no other than the medium hog. Extremes are always bad, be they in character, climate, weather or in stock. Extremes are bound to be unpopular. The short and shuffy hog may not waste much feed, but he is sluggish, weighs little and would exterminate the breed if continuously used for breeding purposes. The long, lean and gaunt hog, in my opinion, is a poor and wasteful feeder, requiring too long a time to market.

The Tamworth Pig.

Of all breeds introduced to this country the Tamworth most nearly resembles the primitive type of hog in length and narrowness of nose and head,

A TAMWORTH BOAR.

length, depth and narrowness of body and lightness of hams, says Breeder's Gazette. Farmers of the corn belt look with no little degree of curiosity on these reminders of the primitive hog, of these suggestions of the "elm peelers" of the pioneer woods. But they find their place in the economy of porcine production. Widely at variance with improved type of the land hog and with the modern form of the Berkshire, the Tamworths have succeeded in winning the high favor of the curers of bacon, as their length and depth of sides, their light waste, their large proportion of lean red meat to fat, make them very attractive to packers who make a specialty of bacon curing.

How to Detect Spavin.

When the buyer suspects that a spavin, large or small, is present, yet finds lameness absent, possibly due to continuous exercise or some preventive measure adopted for the occasion, he can speedily ascertain whether it is indeed present by a simple test. Have an assistant lead the horse out to halt and prepare to trot him instantly at the word "Go." Now lift up the foot of the suspected hind leg and hold it as close to the horse's belly as possible for a few minutes. Suddenly drop it and immediately trot the horse, when he will, for the first few steps or even rods, go intensely lame, but soon recover. This is an unfailing test and should be practiced in every case where there is the slightest suspicion of a spavin.—Dr. A. S. Alexander in National Stockman.

PLAYS AND PLAYERS.

Bianche Walsh is touring in "Resurrection."

Beatrice Bronte will play the title role this season in Henry W. Savage's "Peggy From Paris" company.

Charles Frohman has selected Guy Standing as leading man for Mrs. Patrick Campbell in "The Sorceress."

Victor Herbert has scored his third operatic success in Germany, the Hamburg production of "The Serenade" being a great hit musically.

Helen Frederick has been signed for the prima donna role in "The Isle of Spices," Miss Buckner, whom she succeeds, is ill and has to take a rest.

The new theater in Shaftesbury avenue, London, of which Charles Frohman is to be lessee, will, it is hoped, be finished in a year. It will be called the Masco.

Gertrude Coghlan, the daughter of the late Charles Coghlan and niece of Rose Coghlan, who has established herself during the last few years as a road star, will this season remain in New York.

"A Prisoner of War" has made a decided hit on tour. Edwin Brandt, the leading man, who was featured as Robert Clay in "Soldiers of Fortune," is said to have created a new turn of character work.

HORSES AND HORSEMEN.

Irish, 2:08½, has been retired for the season.

Jack Trout and Anneconda seem to be unbeatable.

Dr. Strong went the race of his life in the Clarion Oak.

General Forrest, 2:10, is a new 2:10 trotter for Allerton.

Alexander is the prize member of Geers' stable after all.

There are some seventy odd new 2:10 performers up to date.

Snow believes Locanda can beat any horse now in training.

The converted pacer Mush showed 2:12 on the trot at Hartford.

The second dam of Euxine, 2:11½, was a sister to Maud S., 2:08½.

Perhaps you know some one who can outdrive Mart Demaree when the checks are down.

They have found a new sire for the dam of John M., 2:04½. The latest is Legal Tender, Jr.

Bessie Drake, the Moquette pacer Geers marked in 2:08½ in July, is on the half mile tracks.

Bourbon Belle, who took a record of 2:19½ the other day, is in foal to Woodland Boy, 2:09½.

Wintering Sheep.

Good, comfortable, roomy sheds are a necessity where sheep are to be wintered. These need not be expensive, but should be well ventilated, free from drafts and situated on dry ground, says Wool Markets and Sheep.

A large open yard, apart from that occupied by other animals, should be provided for exercise. Too much confinement in overcrowded or ill ventilated stables is fatal to success with sheep. On the other hand, comfortable quarters, regular and liberal feeding, plenty of pure water and a sufficiency of salt will go far toward insuring their successful wintering and a strong crop of lambs in the spring.

A CARDBOARD WOMAN

THE MALIGN INFLUENCE OF A MUMMY CASE FROM EGYPT.

Queer Sequence of Fatalities and Hard Luck Experiences That Appeared to Be Unhappy Legacies to Those Interested in Its Custody.

In a corner of the first Egyptian room at the British museum, behind the crouching body of the prehistoric chief who lived before there were pyramids in Egypt or pyramids on the Nile, stands a woman molded from some ancient form of cardboard. She is merely a shell, the cover of a mummy case. Her hands are crossed above her breast, and her dark eyes stare forward into vacancy.

According to the catalogue she is No. 22542, a problematical royal personage and a priestess of the College of Amen Ra. She lived in the mighty city of Thebes some 1,600 years before Christ.

And about this same coffin cover there hangs as terrible a story as ever an Edgar Allan Poe or a Balzac or a Kipling produced from a gloomy imagination.

If you question the attendants in the first Egyptian room they will shake their heads and say nothing. But there is a famous professor in the museum who knows that the facts are true, though whether they be a coincidence or a manifestation of supernatural power who can say? He says:

"For three months I have been gathering the tangled threads of evidence. I have now in my possession proofs of the identity of all those who suffered from the anger of the priestess of Amen Ra. But for the sake of friends and relatives I have been requested to suppress the names.

"About the middle of the sixties of the last century a party of five friends took ship in a dahabeh for a trip up the Nile. They traveled to Luxor on their way to the second cataract, and stayed there to explore the ruins of the great and wonderful city of Thebes, with its avenues of sphinxes and rams, its vast hall of columns and its temple to Amen Ra, which is unequalled on earth in the sublimity of its ruined magnificence.

"One night an Arab sent by Mustafa Aga came to one of their number, Mr. D., as we may call him, saying that he had just found a mummy case of unusual beauty. What became of the mummy the man did not explain. The next morning Mr. D. bought the case. Both he and his companions were impressed by its remarkable beauty and by the curious face of the woman portrayed, a face that was filled with a cold malignancy of expression unpleasant to witness.

"They had agreed that, being all interested in Egyptology, they should apportion their finds by lot, and so, though Mr. D. had been the cause of its discovery, he lost the mummy cover, which passed to a friend, whom we will call Mr. W.

"It was on their return journey that the series of misfortunes commenced. Mr. D.'s servant was handing him a gun, when without visible cause it exploded, the charge lodging in his arm, which had to be amputated; a second died in poverty within the year; a third was shot, while Mr. W., the owner of the mummy case, discovered on his arrival in Cairo that he had lost a large part of his fortune. He died soon afterward. The priestess of Amen Ra had signified her displeasure in a very convincing manner.

"From the date it was shipped on board the steamer Mr. D. lost sight of the mummy case for several years. He did not at the time in any way associate the misfortunes that had occurred to the party with its discovery, but when he next heard of it and had full information of the disasters which had been subsequently associated with its possession he began to suspect that it was not merely chance, not merely a coincidence, that had brought so sinister a fate on all who had dealings with the priestess of Amen Ra.

"On the arrival of the case in England it was given by its owner, Mr. W., to a married sister living near London. From the day the case entered the house misfortune followed misfortune. The family suffered large losses, and the end came with painful troubles which need not be specified.

"The lady while in possession of the case received one day a visit from Mrs. Blavatsky. The great theosophist became very disturbed on entering the room, and after a few minutes' conversation told her hostess that there was something in her house possessed of a most malignant influence. She asked to be allowed to search the house and on discovering the coffin lid appealed to her hostess to send away an object which she described as of the utmost danger. Her hostess, however, refused, laughing at what she imagined to be an example of foolish superstition.

"Some time afterward the lady sent the case to a well known photographer in Baker street. Within a week the chief of the firm came down to this lady's house in a state of great excitement. He had, he said, photographed the face with the greatest care, and he could guarantee that no one had touched either the negative or the photograph in any way, yet it was not the cardboard features that looked out of the photograph, but a living Egyptian woman staring straight before her with an expression of singular malevolence. Shortly after the photographer died suddenly and mysteriously.

"It was about this time that Mr. D. happened to meet the owner of the coffin lid and begged her upon hearing her story to let him see it at once. She agreed, and a carrier was found to convey it to the British museum. This carrier died within a week."—London Express.

NORMAL WINS AT BASKET BALL

Second Team from Drain one too Many for High School Boys—Score 12 to 11.

The most spectacular and hotly contested basket ball game of the season was played in the opera house last Saturday evening between the second team of the Drain Normal school and the boys team of the Cottage Grove High School, with a resultant score of 12 to 11 in favor of the Normal team.

A large delegation of the Normal attaches accompanied the team and witnessed the game. The game was a rough one, but basket ball wieners say that many strong points were exhibited by both teams and that the work was very fast. At the end of the first half the score was 3 to 2 in favor of the home team.

The Normal team included the following players: Roy Moore, Carl Hill, Lloyd Whipple, Roscoe Gardner, and Frank Hill. The home team was composed of Albert Griffin, Dan Thomas, Ernest Bisbee, Merton Earl and Merle Scovell. Subs for the Normal team were Harry Black, John Johnson and Walton Smith. Horace Harris and Prof. M. B. Signs refereed the game.

There was a large crowd of interested spectators and the management came out in good financial shape on the game.

Among those who came from Drain were: Prof. O. C. Brown, Prof. M. B. Signs and wife, Harry Moore, Ernest Whipple, Claude Moore, Miss Winnifred Moore, Carrie Spaulding, Mola and Alta Drain, Bessie Yett, Mary Mires, Ed Harrington, George Neuner, Jr., Miss Bertina White and Miss Arda Edwards.

DELICATESSEN.

She was not highly cultured.
For grammar had no use;
She never heard of Browning.
Nor studied themes abstract.

She had no ear for music.
Could not a rhyme repeat.
But oh, the savor of cooking
Good things for us to eat.

She could make apple custard
With kisses of pure sugar;
With peas of mince and pumpkin
The family would bless.

Her angel food was manna
To feed the hungry heart;
Her golden grates and hangers
Paid tribute to her art.

The black cat, indigestion,
Never settled on her roof;
And the medicine dispenser
Her presence kept aloof.

She still on earth and hearty,
Oh, the savor of cooking
For in a school of cooking
Our former cook's employed.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes.

We desire to place in the hands of those afflicted with Bright's Disease and Diabetes a 36 page pamphlet that is saving human lives. It is not an ordinary pamphlet, such as is commonly used to advertise medicines, but is principally made up of reports of scientifically conducted tests in a large variety of cases, showing a per cent of recoveries in these hitherto incurable diseases.

The specialists employed in these tests are known as the Fulton Compoundists and the results obtained, prove conclusively that these dreaded diseases are no longer fatal (the deaths from Bright's Disease alone are appalling, over 100,000 a year, starting as kidney troubles), have at last yielded to medical science. The pamphlet is free. Write to the John J. Fulton Co., 409 Washington St., San Francisco, Cal.

When to suspect Bright's Disease—Puffy ankles or hands; weakness without apparent cause; either trouble after third month; frequent urination; may show swelling of cloudy on standing; failing vision; day drowsiness—one or more of these.
