HOW GOLDFIELD WAS DISCOVERED

AFTER Tonopah had been converted into a lively camp following the original discovery of Jim Butler, miners and prospectors began to branch out and day after day, and week after week, they returned to the assayers of Tonopah samples of quartz from the new section about 28 miles south of Tonopah which they called Goldfield.

Here in the mountains they continued the search for the precious metals, but it was many months before a man showed up with rock that carried to exceed from one to three or four dollars per ton in gold. None thought of looking for values in anything but quartz from well defined ledges and no one seemed to find values in it worth mentioning. Finally it occurred to someone that values might be found in some of the conglomerate rocks that seem to be strewn over the surface of much of the surrounding country. Better values were found and some locations were made. Great dykes or hyalite cropped out of the mountains at intervals and the discovery was soon made that the ore found in the Brecci or tufa generally occurred at no great distance from these dykes. The prospectors here "began to get next," in the parlance of the day, and discoveries of more or less importance were made in rapid succession and excitement was on in full. It has been growing ever since and there is no telling when it will end. It is the one discovery in all the world perhaps that has not been berated by one class while another sang its praises.

MONEY TALKS IN THIS DISTRICT.

Whatever may be said of the citizens of Goldfield, when they get away from camp the only thing which talks in that section at the present time is money. Values advance so rapidly in that section at the present time and there has been such an amount of attention drawn into the district and all over the United States that the owners of properties will not listen to the extension of time proposition on any option held on their property for a moment.

Any property showing values of two or three dollars is held at prices ranging from $20,000, to $100,000, and it is out of the question to get a ten days' option on a property without advancing 1/2 of the purchase money.

There appears to be about 10,000 people in Goldfield at present, and the cry is "still they come." As an old miner said who just reached this camp, regarding expenses, "Well, it takes but a few days to make a $50 note look like nine cents." It is too late for the man of limited means to go into the Goldfield country, but there are hundreds of them that are in the hills south of there. The prospectors are once more in their element. Big strikes and new camps are the talk of the day. The great question is, "What will be the next one?"—The Modern Broker.

BILLY AND I.

They say they are going to shoot you, Old Billy, but don't fret, for the fellow who dares to meddle with you must reckon with me, you bet. You're a poor old horse, Old Billy, and you aren't worth much, it is true. But you've been a faithful friend to me, and I'll see you safely through. Shoot Old Billy? I guess not, though you may be old and gray. By the selfsame stretch of mercy they'll be shooting me some day; I haven't much to love for the fellow who follows the shooting plan. If they had more pity for horses and dogs they'd have more love for man.

That's right, Old Billy, I like it—your muzzle against my face; we've had rattling times together, and once we won the race—do you remember it, Billy, the dude that we downed that day? And the way he swore that an old farm horse should show his trotter the way?

Well, Billy, we're both great sinners, for we're both grown old, you know.

And we've only a little further down the road to go; so we'll fare along together till the Master calls us home. To the happy Home Land stables and our bet forgot to roam.

They tell us that horses have no souls, and they all declare it true; that shows how little they know, Old Boy, and it proves they don't know you.

Well, well, 'tis a mighty question, and quite beyond my ken—But the more I know of horses like you the less I brag about men.

You've been a good horse, Old Fel low, steady and brave and true; You have given us faithful service—done all that a horse could do; You have earned your keep; you shall have it, as live as long as you can—For justice is justice, and right a right, whether it's a horse or is man.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Cat's Paper Boots. Did you ever put paper boots on your cat? That is what Dick's playmates did to him. I was one of them, and it was great fun even for Dick himself. His feet were tied up in smooth paper and then he was set down on the floor. Then a spool tied to a string was put before him. Dick loved to play with spools and was quick to catch them. He liked to play ball with them or make believe they were nice to be tossed or worried. But when Dick tried to catch the spool with his paper boots on it was a funny sight. His legs went wherever they chose. They did not care what he wanted at all. Each foot went skating by itself and left poor Dick flat on the floor. He kicked, rolled over and over, and was the most puzzled cat you ever saw. He looked at that lively spool, winked at it, snatched at it, but could never catch it. He thought that it was the queerest spool he had ever seen and that his feet were the queerest things he had ever owned.—St. Nicholas.

"The Star Spangled Banner." "The Star Spangled Banner" is comparatively a modern hymn. During the bombardment of Fort M'Henry at Baltimore on Sept. 13, 1814, says a writer in Donahoe's Magazine, Francis Scott Key visited the British fleet to obtain the release of his friend, Dr. Beanes of Prince George's county, who had been made a prisoner of war and was on board one of the ships, where he was detained until the firing ceased. At the close of the bombardment Mr. Key was permitted to leave the enemy's ship and was rowed to the fort, bearing with him the song of "The Star Spangled Banner," which he had composed during the watches of the night. The following day the author wrote out a fair copy of his verses and gave them to a friend, Judge Nicholson, who had the song published. It was sung publicly for the first time soon afterward in the Holiday Street theater of Baltimore.

Adventures of a Dime. I was found lying in a bank with many of my brothers. One day a little girl took the bank which I was in and shook it till I came out. I rolled underneath one of the chairs, where she could not find me, but one day when her mother was sweeping she happened to spy me. She picked me up and put me with other small change in her pocketbook. She took her pocketbook out with her one day and went to the store to purchase some goods, and I was given to the stockkeeper. A beggar, coming into the store, asked for money, and I was given to her. She happened to drop me, and I rolled into the gutter, where I remain yet, waiting for some one to pick me up.

Ingenious Spiders. There is a spider of the desicidæ family living in Australia which makes his habitation along the seashore in the crevices of rocks between the high and low water marks. This location is selected because it abounds with the food these spiders prefer. But when the tides are in their houses are covered with water. Instead of deserting them, however, the spiders solve the difficulty by means of closely woven sheets of silk, which they stretch over the entrances and within which they imprison sufficient air to keep them alive during the time they remain submerged.

Animals That Don't Drink. There are a number of animals known to naturalists which seem to need no water or which drink only at rare intervals. There is a certain breed of gazelles which never drink, and the llamas of Patagonia live for years without taking water, and there is a particular class of cattle near Lasere, in France, that rarely touches water. It is supposed that the dew on the grass is sufficient to their needs.

How Elephants Gather Fruit. The elephant does not bother to pick fruit singly off a tree, but will butt the trunk with such force that all the ripe fruit is shaken off. He then picks it off the ground with his trunk and pops it into his mouth. His favorite species is the wild plum, though he will eat many other fruits.

A Boy Dead Shot. Horace Franklin Lenhart of New Hanover, Pa., is a "dead shot" with a rifle or shotgun, and he is only seven years old. The older marksmen in his neighborhood envy him his great skill.

The Tale of Pollywog. Oh, a pollywog lived in a little glass tank With a goldfish or two and a snail, And his body was fat and covered with spots, But he sported a monstrous long tail. He wriggled and twisted the livelong day And grew, this fat pollywog, But never once did it enter his head That he was akin to a frog.

Along in his sides, down next to his tail, He had a bad feeling one day, And before the next morning two legs had appeared. To help him along on his way, With his gills disappearing, he couldn't breathe well, And two more funny legs came to light, He stretched them all out and wriggled his toes. And tried to make believe 'twas all right.

Four legs and a tail for one pollywog Seemed so funny he wanted to laugh, And then one night he happened to see That his tail was shorter by half. And it faded away, a little each day, 'Till hardly a bit could be seen; Then it all disappeared, and pollywog found A gay little froggy was he!

Then somebody put him in a little tin pail And carried him down to the brook, And all that I've told you may see for yourself. If you'll just take the trouble to look.—Youth's Companion.

TONIC TO THE SYSTEM. For liver troubles and constipation there is nothing better than DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills. They do not weaken the stomach. Their action upon the system is mild, pleasant and harmless. Bob Moore, of LaFayette, Ind., says, "No one talking DeWitt's Little Early Risers do their work. All other pills I have used gripe and make me sick in the stomach and never cured me. DeWitt's Little Early Risers proved to be the long sought relief. They are simply perfect." Persons traveling find Little Early Risers as the most reliable remedy to carry with them. Sold by The Modern Pharmacy.

Hurrying up the Baby. A correspondent sends us an extract from a poem which recently appeared in a South African paper, thinking we shall approve of its sentiments. We do, we do. The inspired verse is entitled "Making a Man" and begins: Hurry the baby as fast as you can, Hurry him, worry him, make him a man; Off with his baby clothes, get him in pants, Feed him on brain foods and make him advance; Hustle him, soon as he's able to walk Into a grammar school, cram him with talk; Fill his poor head full of figures and facts, Keep on a jamming them in till it cracks. —London Review.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes.

We desire to place in the hands of those afflicted with Bright's Disease and Diabetes a 32-page pamphlet that is saving human lives. It is not an ordinary pamphlet, such as is commonly used to advertise medicines, but is principally made up of reports of scientifically conducted tests in a large variety of cases, showing 87 per cent of recoveries in these thereto incurable diseases. The specifics employed in these tests are known as the Fulton Compounds and the results obtained prove conclusively that these dreaded diseases so long fatal (the deaths from Bright's Disease alone are appalling, over 100,000 a year, starting as kidney troubles), have at last yielded to medical science. The pamphlet is free. Write to the John J. Fulton Co., 400 Washington street, San Francisco, Cal. When to suspect Bright's Disease—Puffy ankles or hands; weakness without apparent cause; kidney trouble after third month; frequent urination; may show sediment or cloudy on standing; falling vision; day drowsiness—one or more of these.
