MAYOR HAS NOT SIGNED ORDINANCE.

The proposed ordinance which was passed by the city council on Monday night by a vote of four to two against and which will probably be returned by the mayor unsigned, has created considerable feeling and caused much comment both for and against it.

Those engaged in the saloon business and who are paying into the city treasury the sum of $3,200, annually for the privilege of conducting saloons, feel that the new conditions if carried out will be too severe and they say the restrictions already placed upon the business are sufficiently burdensome at the present time.

In several instances it will be necessary to change the front of the building so that the interior may be plainly viewed from the side walk.

To the closing at 12 o'clock, midnight, during week days they also object, as considerable of the business is done after that time as the arrivals and departures by trains occur after that hour. Those in favor of the proposed ordinance see only good in it and say that from 5 o'clock in the morning until 12 at night gives ample time for the saloon or any other occupation to do business.

That it will appear before the council again before it becomes a law is quite apparent.

During the past two weeks Cottage Grove has been favored with two district conventions. First came the Women of Woodcraft, who for two days filled the hotels and enlivened the streets with their presence.

Following them was the district convention of the Knights of Pythias who came from the neighboring towns nearly one hundred strong.

On the eight of next month the Woodmen of the World of this district will meet in convention in the city and from all information thus far received there will be a large number present.

Cottage Grove is well situated and prepared for these gatherings, especially so for a place of meeting. Woodmen hall in the Jones & Phillips or Bank building is commodious and well furnished and has in connection a reception room, large dining hall and kitchen, all of which aids in holding a successful convention.

So far all those who have visited us have only words of praise for the treatment and hospitality accorded them while here.

During the past session of the legislature, Representative I. H. Bingham, the following bills:

Bill No. 84—For an act to fix the traveling expenses of the Superintendent of schools for Lane county, which became a law.

Bill No. 85—For an act to re-establish the boundary line between Douglas and Lane counties. This bill was killed in committee.

Bill No. 86—For an act to authorize the election of an additional Judge in the second judicial district and became a law.

Bill No. 87—For an act to provide for the issuance of street improvement bonds in cities and towns which became a law. Years ago what was known as the Bueroff law was enacted which allowed cities of 2500 inhabitants or over to issue bonds for street improvements, making the bonds payable in ten annual installments and holding the abutting property for the improvements created. The bill covers all cities and towns and is a law.

Bill 193—For an act to exempt certain mining corporations from annual license fees which became a law.

This bill exempts those mining corporations whose output does not exceed $1000 per annum.

Bill No. 263—For an act to extend the time for making a tax levy in Cottage Grove and was made a law.

Bill No. 293—For an act to amend the charter of Cottage Grove and also became a law.

This bill creates a separate road district within the city of Cottage Grove.

In the attempted railroad legislation work was centered on Smith's (Josephine county) commission bill No. 149. It was introduced and referred to committee on railroads (Soloman Chairman) and reported unfavorably. The principal objection to the bill being that a former commission had been created, but had proven useless.

Washington.

Of very few in the world's history is it true that the more distant in time is the point of view the clearer, the brighted, their figures appear in perspective. The farther from them we stand the better the proportions. Near by one side, one aspect dominates the whole, and we fail to note not only the central figure, but its surroundings. Standing too close to the great statue we see the chisel marks of the artist, and even the flecks and stains on the marble. We withdraw and the majesty of the figure as a whole, the harmony of its parts, fill the eye of the observer.

Every nation has its heroes, its patron saints. Most of them are dim with age.

The Knights are dust,
 And their good swords are rust;
 Their souls are with the saints we trust.

But Washington belongs yet to our age, though to the earliest years of it; his aims, his personality, his wars, his victories, are ours and can be understood of the common people. For he was a very human man. As we study his well-known face it seems to bear the record, in its lines and marks, of the wear and worry, of the disappointments and burdens, of the deferred hopes, aye, the agony of the months and years of lingering conflict. To fight with insufficient means, with untrained helpers, to bear and forbear, yet never to lose heart; to see the clear vision of the Nation which should surely emerge from the dust and turmoil of the weary war, and to hold it through all—in such a life battles, sieges, maneuvers, blockades, are but passing episodes, each lending, however, some trace, some line, to the growing character of the man. But it is to the completed, the rounded life of the patriot that not only Americans, but distant nations, render homage today.—Oregonian

A Comic Tragedy.

Sporting interest this week centered about a fistic contest between two local characters which took place on Friday. An attempt was made first to settle the difficulty in the city limits; but as the strong arm of the law made this expensive the combatants decided to amuse their friends by vindicating their honor beyond the pale of the chief of police and on the day named a score of men accompanied the disgruntled pair outside the city limits to see the big thing off. Amidst the jeering of the spectators the mill started, gooseberry rules. There were three rounds. One was some preliminary scratching of faces and small bloodshed. The next round was mainly taken up by one of the champions snatching from the pistol pocket of his adversary a long black and dangerous looking revolver which was hastily flung into a mud hole by the snatcher. Round three was an uncontested fifty-yard sprint on the part of the man who was thus summarily disarmed and whom it is said by the overlookers broke all known records for the short sprint, running a good 50 with no one after him. Every one seemed satisfied with the outcome—the weapon was raised from the mud and the incident declared closed.

Conference On Land Frauds.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 23.—District Attorney Heisey took lunch with the president today by invitation. Secretary Hitchcock and Attorney-General Moody were present. The object was to have a conference on the Oregon land fraud matters. The president later sent for W. J. Burns, who had worked up the evidence in these cases, thanked him and warmly congratulated him on his successful work.

Miss Margaret Wood returned to Eugene Thursday.

J. I. Jones was in Eugene on business this week.

The K. O. T. M. will give a grand old time dance at the Opera house on March 17th, St. Patrick's Day. Full particulars later.

Centennial Notes.

A miniature mint in full working operation will be a part of the Government exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

More than thirty national conventions are scheduled to convene in Portland during the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

Electricity in its every conceivable application, representing the most marvellous achievements in modern science, may be seen at the Lewis and Clark Exposition.

A native Filipino theatre, in which amusements peculiar to the inhabitants of our island territory will be presented, is to be one of the many excellent attractions of the "trail."

The Government Fisheries exhibit at the Lewis and Clark Exposition will show the evolution of a Royal Chinook salmon, from the embryo to a well matured fish.

Some idea of the privations endured by Lewis and Clark in their expedition to the great Northwest, may be gleaned by a careful examination of the exhibits characteristic of the earlier history of Oregon territory.

The model dairy farm at the Lewis and Clark Exposition in which everything pertaining to the scientific dairying methods, the result of recent agricultural research, is to be shown, will prove of particular interest to those interested in dairying.

The caressing melody of the chimes in the towers of the main Government building, will recall mental pictures of the missions founded by Junipero Serra and his intrepid followers in the seventeenth century.

But seldom are some of us afforded an opportunity to hear the World's famous bands. Many of them have been engaged to play at the fair, among them being, Innes, De Caprio's, Ellery's and the Hawaiian Imperial band.
