"Mineral John" in Town.

John S Mansfield, better known as "Mineral John" the old Bohemia standby, who has stayed with the district through thick and thin, was in town this week.

He knows the district from "a" to "izzard" and what information he does not possess is hardly worth knowing. John says fully $100,000 worth of property has changed hands in the district this Spring and now that the railroad is an assured fact the scramble for property is on in earnest. Mineral John has 500 exhibits of Bohemia ore at Minersville, west side of the district and it is always a matter of interest to newcomers who find in the exhibit complete evidence of the richness of the camp.

Bunkoed Again.

It seems that the Cottage Grove people have been bunkoed again. This week the sum of $300 was raised in this little city for the purpose of advertising the town and Bohemia mines in the Portland Telegram, which will do them about "six bits" worth of good. Why would it not of been just as well to have raised this amount of money and paid it to the home printer and put this advertising matter in the form of a pamphlet which could have been sent out broad cast over the country to people who would have paid some attention to it, and at the same time kept the money at home. That kind of advertising would do the country some good. The Leader believes in advertising and newspaper advertising too, but people should use judgement in this the same as any other business proposition. The first question to ask is "will the advertising reach the desired reader." Any person with a thimble full of brains knows that the Portland Telegram is not a widely read newspaper. Its circulation is confined to Oregon and is limited at that. The people we desire to reach by advertising, in this case, are the easterners who are looking for locations, and it cannot be done through the columns of the Portland Telegram or any other Oregon newspaper. Take this for what it is worth and the next time a "graft" comes along just dig up and contribute to his "graft" as freely as possible.
