HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.

F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely. I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,

F. A. WERMAN, 730 S. Broadway, Baltimore, Md.

PALACES OF EDWARD VII

Some Facts About His Former and Present Homes in London.

To the many changes lately made at Buckingham palace one other might well, one thinks, be added. And that is a change of name. True the site was once occupied by the house of a duke of Buckingham built therein in 1703. But that occupation does not seem to impose the name of a subject upon a residence bought by George III, rebuilt by George IV and, though disliked by William IV, at once adopted by Queen Victoria as her London residence, and now, the fixed headquarters of the king and the prospective headquarters, of our kings to be. No wonder that foreign visitors are puzzled by the unexplained retention of a former and long irrelevant appellation. They ask for the Palais Royal and are met with a blank stare, a shake of the head, or a statement which leaves a proportion of them under the supposition that his majesty is the guest of the duke of Buckingham.

Scarcely less appropriate would be a cancelling at last of the name of Marlborough house as applied to the new hereditary residence of the heirs apparent. Marlborough is a great name, it is true; but it is a name that the present owner has a very natural right to put up on the lintels of the new house he is building in Curzon street. No disrespect, then, is implied toward the great duke of Marlborough who built it in the first decade of the eighteenth century, and gave "Sarah, duchess," the right to point over the way to Buckingham palace and to speak of "Neighbor George." In 1817 it was bought from the Churchills for the Princess Charlotte and Leopold, afterward king of the Belgians. Later Queen Adelaide was its occupant. Her name or his would be at least as apt as that of Marlborough for the house each had inhabited. But Alexandra house—the name of the first princess of Wales to live under its roof—might well give the house a title which would also be a welcome private and public commemoration. — London Chronicle.

TALKS ON ADVERTISING

Advertising may properly be considered by the merchant as an investment from which he has a right to expect quick and large returns, but in order to be as prudent in placing his announcements as is the careful investor of cash in selecting bonds or property. — Philadelphia Record.

It is advertising that brings in the money to pay all the other expenses. Advertising is business insurance. Advertising what you haven't got or what you don't do is worse than not advertising at all. You can't be too careful about this. Make your ads. strictly true in letter and in spirit. I believe that the majority of business men do this now, but as it is the most important thing about advertising, it will bear repeating and reiterating. When merchants and laymen come to consider advertising in its legitimate character of "business news," it will pay better—pay the advertiser better and the advertisee, too.

If you toot your little tooter and then lay aside your horn, there's not a soul in ten short days will know that you were born. The man who gathers pumpkins is the man who plows all day, and the man who keeps it humping is the man who makes it pay. The man who advertises with a short, sudden jerk, is the man who blames the editor because it didn't work. The man who gets the business has a long and steady pull and keeps the local paper from year to year quite full; he plans his advertisement in a thoughtful way and keeps forever at it until he makes it pay. He has faith in all the future, can withstand a sudden shock and like a man of scripture has his business on a rock.

The way to think of advertising is to consider first the goods you have, to see if they are really desirable. Then figure on the number of people likely to see your announcement in the paper, the proportion of possible customers among that number, and what you can afford to pay for each dollar's worth of new business. That will give you the size of the ad. you ought to use. Then make your ad. clear, logical, convincing. Don't try to be funny, unless you are naturally so, and even then don't do it too often. What people want in an ad. is exact, definite information. It ought to be given to them in a smooth, more or less argumentative way, and as strongly as possible. "The other fellow" is after the same people.

CATARRH THIRTY YEARS

CONGRESSMAN MEEKISON, OF OHIO.

Hon. David Meekison is well known, not only in his own state, but throughout America. He began his political career by serving four consecutive terms as Mayor of the town in which he lives, during which time he became widely known as the founder of the Meekison Bank, of Napoleon, Ohio. He was elected to the Fifty-fifth congress by a very large majority, and is the acknowledged leader of his party in his section of the state.

Only one flaw marred the otherwise complete success of this rising statesman. Catarrh with its insidious approach and tenacious grasp, was his unconquered foe. For thirty years he waged unsuccessful warfare against this personal enemy. At last Peruna came to the rescue, and he dictated the following letter to Dr. Hartman as the result:

"I have used several bottles of Peruna and I feel greatly benefited thereby from my catarrh of the head. I feel encouraged to believe that if I use it a short time longer I will be fully able to eradicate the disease of thirty years' standing.—David Meekison, Member of Congress.

The season of catching cold is upon us. The cough and the sneeze and the nasal twang are to be heard on every hand. The origin of chronic catarrh, the most common and dreadful of diseases, is a cold.

This is the way the chronic catarrh generally begins. A person catches cold, which hangs on longer than usual. The cold generally starts in the head and throat. Then follows sensitiveness of the air passages which incline one to catch cold very easily. At last the person has a cold all the while, seemingly, more or less discharge from the nose, hawking, spitting, frequent clearing of the throat, nostrils stopped up, full feeling in the head, and sore, inflamed throat.

The best time to treat catarrh is at the very beginning. A bottle of Peruna properly used, never fails to cure a common cold, thus preventing chronic catarrh.

Ask your druggist for a free Pe-ru-na almanac.

While many people have been cured of chronic catarrh by a single bottle of Peruna, yet, as a rule, when the catarrh becomes thoroughly fixed more than one bottle is necessary to complete the cure. Peruna has cured cases innumerable of catarrh of twenty years' standing. It is the best, if not the only internal remedy for chronic catarrh existence.

But prevention is far better than cure. Every person subject to catch cold should take Peruna at once at slightest symptom of cold or sore throat at this season of the year and thus prevent what is almost certain to end in chronic catarrh.

His Little Scheme.

He was cutting an item from the newspaper. "It tells how a house was robbed, and I want to show it to my wife," he explained. "What good will that do?" a friend inquired. "A whole lot," was the reply. "You see, this house was robbed while a man was at church with his wife." "Say!" exclaimed the friend, excitedly, "you haven't got another copy of that paper, have you?" — Chicago Post.
