ME. SAM R. GOOD. In 170 years after the birth of Christ the whole bible had been translated into Latin by some unknown author into what is now known as the old italic version. By the year 200 it was extant in Greek, syriac and Latin, and by the ninth century in thirteen languages.

Any town and section of country is regarded by the people abroad by the general appearance of the local paper, and we want to impress it upon the minds of our people that no newspaper can have the proper amount of interest in the affairs of the people without the patronage and support of the people. Business men who patronize and maintain newspapers find it pays them many times over, directly and indirectly.

HOOD'S AND ONLY Hood's Sarsaparilla is the medicine for you. Because it is the best blood purifier. HOOD'S CURES. At a public meeting at Walker station February the first, a church association was formed representing four denominations and a board of trustees selected consisting of Messrs John Walker, George Sears, Henry Lajoie and H. Hunter; also a building committee, a soliciting committee, treasurer and secretary. Grounds were located for the erection of a union church house and a cemetery.

The good people at Walker four miles north of this city are determined to erect a new union church building. We learn that much enthusiasm is manifested and that they mean business. This is just what the people need there and we hope they will make the enterprise an entire success.

Chance for Our Wheat. Washington, Feb. 6.—United States Commercial Agent Huntington at Castellammari, Italy, in a report to the state department suggests that United States grain growers might secure a market for nearly 4,000,000 bushels of wheat per annum, which is the amount of foreign wheat used in Italy in making macaroni, if some provision were made for the entry into the United States at a reduced duty of Italian macaroni made from American wheat. The Italian government already allows a full drawback of the duty on foreign wheat milled and exported from Italy.

The Echo Leader is satisfied that there is not a town in western Oregon with greater opportunities than Cottage Grove and its whole energy is committed to the effect of aiding and helping these opportunities. In this connection the active support of all citizens is expected.

A LEADY.—A bath room has been fitted up at the Sherwood House with a splendid tub, hot and cold water and spray. The room is kept warm and the baths are made a genuine luxury. Don't take our word for it, but just go and try one and you will feel like another person.

Roseburg Plaindealer, Jan. 31; The wedding of Chas. H. Fisher and Miss Effie Owens was solemnized at the residence of the bride's mother on Oak street last evening, Rev. Geo. N. Annes, of the Baptist church, officiating. The wedding was a quiet affair, only the relatives and a few intimate friends being present. After the ceremony the happy couple were the recipients of warm congratulations, and then refreshments were served.

The Echo Leader congratulates brother Fisher, of the Review, and his fair young bride. May their lives be perpetual matrimonial felicity and charming reviews plenty.

FLOWER BEDS.—Anyone wanting flower beds made can have the flowers free of cost by employing me to make the beds and set out the flowers. Orders left at my home six miles south of Cottage Grove or sent by mail will have prompt attention.

It is less than a year since the scholar, blow after blow with the laborer, crop after crop with the farmer, picture after picture with the painter, type after type with the printer and mile after mile with the traveler, that secures what all so much desire—success.

The farmers of Oregon cannot afford to let the Eastern farmers ship, butter, lard, bacon and poultry in their important towns to supply the people. If the Eastern farmer can afford to raise these things at a price which will permit shipment to this state, the Oregon farmer should, with the same methods of the eastern farmers, make quite a good profit in producing such things for his home market. The Oregon farmer must adopt the methods and careful management of the Eastern farmer. In the production of things which have heretofore been considered too small a business to engage in. They cannot afford to continue in the old ruts and go down under the inevitable competition of the Eastern states. No state in the world offers as fine opportunities to assure success in good farming as Oregon.

WHEREAS: The supreme Master in his infinite wisdom on the 24th day of January 1895, did see fit to remove from our midst our sister Lizzie Geer, therefore

Resolved: That we humbly submit to His will, and that the charter of this grand body be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that these resolutions be recorded in the minutes of this grand body, and that a copy of the same be presented to the bereaved husband of the departed sister to whom we extend our sincere sympathy.

Resolved: That a copy be sent to the Cottage Grove Echo Leader for publication.

Thurston Martin, a son of Marion Martin and brother of C. M. Martin who was burned in the Silver Lake fire, died at Silver Lake a few days ago with consumption. He was 27 years old.

Rev. F. Z. Nesbitt, pastor of the C. P. Church in this city, delivered a very interesting sermon on dancing, Sunday night. A large audience gave close attention to the sermon, which was plain, practical and logical. Mr. Nesbitt took into consideration the arguments involving each side of the subject in a manner, convincing, yet so courteous, and clear of all bitter denunciation, that it charmed instead of irritating. We really think it the best sermon against dancing we have ever heard. There are times when sweetness is more effective than vinegar.

Normal School notes. Rev. Stratford and Bolster attended chapel exercises Thursday morning.

Mr. Pixley entered school here the first of the week, and will be coacher for the foot ball team.

Each class of the Normal school department met and elected one of their members for trial contest here. Of those, one will be chosen to go to Forest Grove and take part in the State contest.

The foot ball team is practicing now. One evening this week while playing John McCallister was quite badly hurt and is not able to attend school yet.

WHAT WE SAW IN THE MOON.

In response to an invitation to "see the moon" we called at Mr. Todd's residence about half past seven one evening last week, and found him sitting at his large telescope intently studying the heavens. Would I like to look at the moon? Well an editor would like to look at anything that is of interest to other people; accordingly we took the chair and after a few unsuccessful attempts at the eyepiece we succeeded in catching a view of what looked like one side of a large ball of plaster paris but it was rough and uneven. What are those round appearances with a spot in the center? I asked. Those are craters of what were long ago active volcanoes which boiled up over much the larger part of the moon's surface. You see them larger and smaller in nearly every part. In the plains, on the mountain tops and sides and craters within craters, some of them are 25 to 50 miles in width. The spots you mention are cone shaped mountains rising up in the center of the craters. They are almost exactly the same as some of those seen in the Sandwich Islands and some parts of France; but those in the moon are much larger and especially taller and rugged owing to the fact that there is little gravity on the moon, owing to its size. There the projecting force would carry the volcanic matter up much higher and there would be less breaking or tearing down of the mountains thus formed; for the small gravity renders the weight of its heaviest rocks much lighter than that of earth would be on this earth. What is that bright ring I see on the ragged edge of the moon; is it out a little from the moon in the dark part? That is the top of the ring mountain around the large crater Copernicus, just appearing in the sunlight; it is just sunrise on the top of that ring mountain; the base of the mountain is not lighted up yet; it is the same phenomena exactly as the sun rising here; it shines on the top of the mountain first; this mountain rises about 10,000 feet above the surrounding plain, and the crater extends some 6000 feet below the surface of the plain outside the crater; thus making a mountain which rises almost perpendicular in places a distance of over 16,000 feet. All the other craters have similar mountain rings and depressions of greater or less height and depth, some larger and some smaller. Why can't I see the base of the mountains although the sun does not shine on it? Because on the moon there is no refraction or bending of light, for there is no atmosphere there; consequently where shadows fall, it appears totally black, and where the light falls it is as totally bright. No twilight can ever fall on the moon. Thus as there is no atmosphere there you think the moon cannot be inhabited? No. It would be utterly impossible for animal or vegetable life to exist on the moon; there is no atmosphere there no water and as the little boy said "no nuthin, jes rock, thats all". The ancients thought there were seas and oceans there, but they are the plains as you see them now, the brown shaded parts which is so often called the "man in the moon" but they are only the less broken or rolling parts of the moon's surface. Is it cold there? Well yes, sometimes as you can imagine a night here of a little more than two weeks duration would be rather cold, don't you think? We admitted it would appear so. "On the other hand," he continued, "a tropical day of over two weeks duration with the sun gleaming like a hot ball out of a sky of inky blackness without a cloud or even the presence of an atmosphere to mitigate the fierce intensity of the solar heat would be rather warm for us Oregonians." Did you mean to say that if we were on the moon the sky would be black? "Yes. It is the presence of our atmosphere that gives by its refractive and reflective power the beautiful blue to the heavens and the softening shade to the distant landscape; its absence would make the sky black, and the sun and stars would shine side by side like diamonds set in ebony around a lake of livid fire." By this time our eyes had begun to get tired. What causes that dim light which I see with the naked eye above the moon, and which appears to be the outlines of the moon if it were full? "That is the reflection of light on the moon from this earth and is called the earth light. The earth performs in this respect the same office to the moon that the moon does to the earth."

After looking at Jupiter, Mars and several other very interesting objects, we thanked Mr. Todd and at his request promised to call again and had him good evening, and he was soon wrapped in the mystery of the heavenly bodies above us.
