General A. S. Bushnell, of Springfield Ohio has been nominated for governor by the republican convention of that state. Bushnell was a candidate for the Forsker faction.

GRESHAM IS DEAD.

Secretary Gresham died at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday morning, May 29 the remains of Secretary Gresham, accompanied by President Cleveland and every member of his cabinet and the secretary's family, left Washington at 12:15 on a special train for Chicago, where final interment took place Thursday. In life, Secretary Gresham had loved most the military career of his ardent youth, and of all his titles the fondest had been that of general, which he had won upon the battle field. In death he was wrapped in the stars and stripes and given a soldiers funeral.

S. F. Call: The "traveling man" who informed the Baker City (Oregonian) Democrat that the prevalence of bicycles in San Francisco has so alarmed the street car companies as to induce them to sprinkle the streets in order to make them muddy and impassable for wheelmen, has that sort of imagination which may win admiration in Oregon, but which in California is spelt with only four letters.

A CONTEMPTIBLE WARFARE.

Salem Journal: The Portland Oregonian is conducting its usual contemptible warfare on Harrison R. Kincaid, Secretary of State. He is a man it cannot handle, either as an official, a veteran editor of a Republican paper, or as a Republican well grounded in the principles of the party. Of course, he committed the unpardonable sin last winter of not using his office or his newspaper or his friends to help elect a man senator whom the people of Oregon did not want. That is enough to damn him in the eyes of the cinch and monopoly organ forever. To punish and discipline him for refusing to stand in, a bill was introduced in the Senate by one of the puppets of the Oregonian that raised the salary of all the state officials who were getting less than five thousand dollars a year out of the state treasury. The Oregonian had friends in the legislature who saw the injustice of the "reform" salary bill and set down upon it, and the Oregonian has been implacable in its hatred ever since.

It dare not attack Kincaid editorially because he is more than a match for Harvey Scott. They dare not attack Kincaid officially because all his acts have been strictly according to law and in the interest of the people and the taxpayer. So they get up anonymous letters and fictitious communications to slur and ridicule the man they dare not openly attack, and over his shoulders strike at Senator Mitchell. To personally attack either of these well known citizens of Oregon would be to make friends for them among the people, regardless of party, and few Republicans are such Oregonian worshippers as to not resent the contemptible methods employed in this instance.

All this warfare in spite of the fact that Mr. Kincaid is doing exactly what he promised he would if elected, and the Oregonian hoped he would do, and told the people he would do. It demanded just before election that a man should be chosen secretary of state who would cut down all useless expenditures and scrutinize all bills that came through his hands in the interest of the taxpayer. That it was insincere in demanding this sort of thing, is shown by the fact that it now seeks to destroy the standing and influence of the only man who can protect the people as state auditor. The fact is, the Oregonian and its pets have been loading down the state with their bills long enough and it is because Mr. Kincaid and his associates have been drawing their pencils through their outrageous demands, and have been stopping their raids on the treasury, that causes all this tuberculous spewing of the insolvent Portland fishwife.

Few people know in how many forms the two newspapers run by Harvey Scott come in for state pay, nor what "divvy" they extract from all whom they stand in with. As an example, a bill came to Secretary Kincaid the other day, from one of the Portland gang, for about $2500. It was returned for revision and when it came back it was reduced to about $1100, but the same oath that was attached to the first bill had been cut off and pasted onto the second, the same man swearing both the $2500 bill and the $1100 bill were just correct. This is only one sample out of hundreds of similar bills that come to the state house, and it would be a good thing for the people of this state of ours if the secretary of state would let the daylight into these rails on the state treasury and the people who attempt them. They would then see why he is the best-hated man in Oregon by a class of hoodlums who have been into the state treasury up to their elbows whenever they had a chance. Their chance has been reduced to almost nothing and hence their frothings and abuse of Secretary Kincaid.

THE CATERPILLER PEST.

Last year in many localities in Oregon the caterpillars took possession of orchards and shade trees and great damage was feared, and some had results followed. This spring has brought to light the same pest and some owners of trees fear more serious results than last season. Below is given a recipe, from the Dexter, Iowa Sentinel, which we submit to the ECHO-LEADER readers for what it is worth:

"Caterpillars on trees are easily killed," says T. L. Darby. "Every year I hear of them destroying whole orchards and there is nothing that can be disposed of more easily. I bore a hole in the tree deep enough to reach the sap, fill it with sulphur and then plug it up. The result is magical. The sap takes the sulphur to every branch and twig and caterpillars die at once. I have gathered up the insects by the pint under trees that had become infested with them before I noticed it and destroyed them. I have never known the remedy to fail and I never knew of a tree being injured by it, and I have pursued the course for many years."

A TARDY ARRAIGNMENT.

It was about two weeks after the preliminary examination of Theodore Durrant that an information was filed charging him with the murder of Blanche Lamont and Minnie Williams. Considering the fact that the result of the examination was the holding of Durrant for trial, and that the filing of the information was a simple clerical function that might have been discharged within twenty-four hours, a delay of two weeks seems inexplicable. Both Durrant and the people are entitled to an early trial as possible.

We may expect in this case a long string of other delays, beginning with a demurrer to the sufficiency of the information, followed by the setting of a day for argument on the demurrer, a probable postponement to suit the convenience of attorneys, the intervention of the judicial summer holidays, and the more serious and determined business of delays which shall precede the trial. If the jury is impaneled before October the service will have been amazingly expedited for these parts, but we shall be surprised if the trial begins before December. By the time of its conclusion the public recollection will be dim as to its cause, but in case of conviction the really earnest task of making delays will be begun, for the Supreme Court presents possibilities in this direction that are a pleasant solace to the guilty.—S. F. Call.

Benson.

A dollar hoarded is a useless dollar. A dollar spent may pay a dozen debts in a day and do the work of a hundred dollars in a week. It is the money which circulates that oils the wheels of commerce. Brother, take home the moral with you. If you owe any man a dollar and have or can get the dollar go and pay him; he will pay someone else, and the self-same dollar may bring happiness to a dozen hearts.

RIGHT TO GET MONEY.

It is a weariness to read every few days a screed on the enormity of trying to get rich. Writers who haggle for the very highest prices for their precious manuscript fill pages with gracefully turned cursing of the greed of the age which sacrifices all to the Moloch of money grabbing, says an exchange. Ministers who are always looking for a call to a place with a higher salary pour out fiery eloquence against the "money madness, the worship of wealth which is the besetting sin of this nation."

It is all very well to write and to preach if one is paid for it. But the truth is that the people of this country and all other countries know just exactly what they want, and what they need most, and all the preaching in the universe will not persuade them differently. It ought not to. Money means leisure. It means health, culture, refinement and comfort. It means all that, so far as this world is concerned, is worth having. Nay, a man can prepare himself for heaven much better when he has enough to eat and wear and enjoy himself on without either stealing or cheating another.

The U. S. Gov't Reports show Royal Baking Powder superior to all others.

A GOLD QUESTION.

As a relief from the monotony of the discussion of the fall of the price of silver and the probability of a "fifty-cent dollar" resulting from free coinage of silver, it is pleasing to note that James B. Colgate, a New York banker, has raised his voice to call attention to the probability of an early and rapid decline on the price of gold and the danger of speedy precipitation upon this country of a fifty-cent gold dollar.

Mr. Colgate says: "It is estimated that the world's production of gold for 1894 reached the enormous sum of $180,000,000. With new discoveries, and with the increased activity in mining, the production for 1895 will probably not be less than $200,000,000. How long can the price remain fixed with this continued annual increase? Supposing that some wealthy firm in the produce trade should bid $1 per bushel for all wheat offered. How long would it be before the firm failed when the cost of producing wheat was 60 cents per bushel? Applying the same principle to the price of gold, the question naturally arises: Can the present price of gold be maintained, or must it be reduced and its free coinage be suspended?"

While the suggestion of Mr. Colgate affords as we have said a pleasant diversion from the familiar course of the financial controversy, it is not likely to have any serious effect upon the public mind. Even if his estimates of production are correct, there would be little likelihood of any natural reduction in the purchasing power of gold. The increasing commerce of the world could easily absorb $200,000,000 annually without experiencing any rapid rise of prices of staple crops. Since the demonetization of silver in India that country could take a large amount of gold without having a too great expansion of the currency, and Russia, if the gold were obtainable, would be equally ready to establish her finances on a gold basis. There is little reason therefore for Mr. Colgate's question: "Can the present price of gold be maintained?" The more serious question is, Can it be prevented from going higher?—S. F. Call.

ABOUT CYCLING.

Dr. H. A. Spencer, a well known veterinary surgeon of California, gives the following interesting statistics concerning bicycles in San Jose:

"In San Jose there are in the neighborhood of three thousand people who own wheels. It is pre-announced that if these people did not own wheels, 1 out of every 6 of them would own a horse. So in this calculation 500 horses are done away with. Further, of these, the remaining five who would not own horses would patronize livery stables.

"The advent of wheels not only injures the business of the livery man, but also the harnessmaker, horsehooper, wagonmaker and even the farmer. Allowing $150 per head as the average value, 500 horses would amount to $75,000. In a year each horse would consume on the average $50 worth of hay and $15 worth of grain, making for the 500 horses $32,500 kept by San Jose alone from the farmer. At $30 each for 500 horses, the horsehoopers would be deprived of $15,000. At $40 for a horse, the harnessmakers and repairers of carriages would lose $20,000 a year. Allowing $8,000 for general expenses, accidents, etc., you see about $150,000 is taken out of the horse business in San Jose in one year. As an illustration of how great the trade of livery men in this city has been hurt by wheels, a year or so ago the proprietors of the larger stables found it necessary to employ nine or ten men. Now three or four do the work, besides finding time hangs heavy on their hands."

Messings of Free Wool.

Lake county Examiner: Mr. F. W. Georgeron, who is buying wool for Messrs. C. S. Morse & Company of San Francisco, came in last week, and is interviewing our sheep-men in the interests of his firm. Mr. Georgeron said that he did not see how wool could command much better figures this season than it did last. He had in his pocket a sample of Australian wool which he stated had a longer staple than ours, would shrink less in scouring, and could be laid down in Boston for thirteen cents a pound.

God bless the Australians! And bless the Queen Lily, sugar coated congress that has give us free wool. If there is anything in this ball-headed world that we need, and need awful d—bad, and need right now, it is free wool from Australia, our sheep men will not be bothered about running many sheep; and if they only get 6c a pound for their wool they will not have to worry very much about it. They had a good deal of money to pay out to the herdsmen, and to the shearers, and to the local merchants. And the merchants had to employ a good many clerks, and pay out a good deal to freighters. But now things have been simplified a great deal.

Then again we are not the only ones who have been benefited by free wool. In the east are hundreds of thousands of mechanics and factory hands with empty dinner pails who can get a woolen undershirt for twenty-five cents less than they used to pay when times were good. They may not have any money to buy a shirt with, but then they can suck their thumbs and get a heap of satisfaction out of the reflection that wool is mighty cheap.

C. P. PRESBYTERY.

(Salem Statesman.)

The Oregon Presbytery of the Cumberland Presbyterian church met in called session at Silverton, May 24, at 7:30 p. m. A representation of ministers and elders from most all of the churches were present. There being no arrangement for entertainment of delegates, hotels and livery stables were in demand. Through the neglect of the parties calling the session no place in which to hold the meeting had been provided, business was transacted in the hotel. The Presbytery was constituted with prayer, after which the moderator, Rev. W. H. Jones, read a petition for the call meeting, which was signed by Revs. E. T. Ingle, I. M. Boyler and T. H. Small; Ellers, A. D. Hall, D. M. Jones, M. Small and J. H. Johnson. The call provided for the following business: 1st, to appoint Presbyterial committees; 2d, to receive and grant letters of dismission and recommendation; 3d, to hear and act on complaints. The moderator called for any item of business that may come under either of the three divisions, and none were mentioned. Rev. Elmer E. Thompson demanded the explanation why the seven named brethren should sign a petition for a meeting, and only two of them to be present, and neither of these have any business to bring before the presbytery. No explanation was given. Rev. E. T. Ingle stated that a petition requesting that he demit the ministry, had been presented to him. The petition was signed by Revs. W. C. Crawford, G. A. Blair, W. V. McGee, Elmer E. Thompson, and J. C. Templeton; with elders D. McGregor, A. E. Williams, G. W. Scriber, W. P. Jenkins, J. W. Ballenger, J. S. Morris and B. H. Irvine. Pending Mr. Ingle's decision regarding the request set forth in the petition, Rev. G. A. Blair presented a transcript from the minutes of the Portland Presbytery of the Presbyterian church, showing Mr. Ingle's record while formerly connected therewith. Mr. Ingle was informed that his history as brought to light by this transcript, and the domineering spirit he had shown since being connected with this presbytery, together with continuous indiscreet association with women, were the grounds for demanding him to demit the ministry. Mr. Ingle asked that instead of a demission of the ministry he be granted a letter of dismission without recommendation. To this a majority, but not all, agreed. The stated clerk was then instructed to issue such a letter, and give public notice of the fact that the omission of recommendation in the letter that he now holds, was intentional on the part of the Presbytery. The Presbytery then adjourned. J. C. Templeton, stated clerk.

The Propagation of Orchids.

A marked peculiarity of orchids is the immense number of seed produced from a single flower; but while they are continually grown from seed, it means long years of waiting before the flower appears. After the blossom fades, it requires a year for the seed to ripen, a second year elapses after the seed is planted before it germinates, while the resulting plant seldom flowers under five, and frequently not until after eight or ten, years of growth. Consequently, orchids are propagated chiefly by a division of the root-clusters into individual plants; while many are grown from slips and cuttings. Most orchids require hot-house cultivation; but there are two in particular which may be termed hardy, and which can be successfully grown in window-gardens, with the care ordinarily given to house-plants. —"Some White House Orchids," in Demorest's Magazine for June.

The Oregon Central & Eastern R. Co. (the Oregon Pacific) is doing some extensive repairing to its road bed at present preparing for the summer traffic. Large quantities of bridge timbers are being moved to repair the bridges west of Corvallis. Orders have been given for no less than 450,000 feet of bridge timbers; every mill in the mountains is running to its fullest capacity to get the orders off their hands. There are now thirty men engaged in the repair work, and more are to be put on just as fast as the material can be sawed out by the mills. The high five-decker bridge west of Summit, known to employes as number sixty, has already been overhauled with new stringers, new braces and new ties, and the bridge experts now declare it to be strong enough to carry any of the big engines in ordinary use on any railroad in the country with entire safety. The material is on the ground for the complete renewal of bridge 67, and many others will meet with similar treatment in the course of the next few weeks. Every Howe truss span on the road is to be strengthened with two bents, and some larger ones will have four bents put under them. "By the middle of June," said manager Stone the other day, "we shall have everything in thorough repair and the line perfectly safe for summer travel." The company is now placing orders for 150,000 new ties to be delivered as fast as they can be sawed out by the mills and put into the track.
