E. P. THORP, - - EDITOR.

SATURDAY, JUNE 8, - - 1895.

The Oregon City Enterprise says that the Crown paper mills of that city have an order from one firm of fruit growers in California for 87 tons of fruit paper.

A Seattle man died suddenly some time ago and his wife now draws from a New York life insurance company $100,000 in cash for insurance upon his life. There are not many husbands who "drop off" so profitably.

A correspondent of the Rural New Yorker describes the section about Niagara, Canada, as an excellent fruit country. It is estimated that one township in 1894 shipped 300,000 12-quart baskets of grapes and the daily shipments of peaches in season from Niagara frequently amount to 10,000 baskets per day.

Rural Northwest: The damage done to fruit in the East by late frosts will make it possible to increase very much the sale of fresh Italian prunes this year at remunerative prices, if the shipments can be made in such a way as to supply all cities which can use carload lots, without glutting the markets at any point.

Corvallis Gazette: Repairs to bridges and track on the O. C. & E. are going merrily on. By each freight three to five cars of bridge timbers and ties are taken west to be used between Philomath and Yaquina. But for the fact that the company is unable to secure lumber as rapidly as it would like, the present force would be increased.

A man who can be a success as a "political boss" is none too good to be a conspirator while occupying a trust under the government. The The ethics of political bossism are not any higher than those of smuggling. So, Lotan's conviction in Portland is not at all a surprising thing. It is, however, a surprise that he was not convicted on the first trial.—East Oregonian.

On Monday the deed for the site for the life saving station at Yaquina from Wm. M. Hoag to the United States was placed on file by the county clerk of Lincoln county. The work of erecting, building, etc., will soon commence and in a short time will be completed, fully equipped and ready for service when needed.—Corvallis Gazette.

Mrs. Bogard, wife of the sheriff who killed the train robber McGuire and was himself killed, has been paid $5,000 by the railroad company in consequence of a standing reward of that amount for the arrest and conviction of any one who boards a train for the purpose of robbery. The company did the proper thing.

Rural Northwest: More or less fruit goes to waste on a great number of farms in the Pacific Northwest which would bring in some revenue if properly evaporated. An evaporator of some sort is necessary on every farm on which fruit is grown. It is only under favorable circumstances that all the fruit grown can be sold fresh, but the grower can not afford to wholly lose the rest. The cherries, rasberries, apples pears and plumbs will all be salable at same price if evaporated and the more skilfully the work is done the better the returns will be.

President Thompson, of the Bank of Commerce, of St. Louis, who has forbidden his employes attending horse races, on pain of dismissal, is careful to the welfare of young men in more ways than one. Some years ago he was largely interested in the Providence Savings bank, of St. Louis. When his son was married a great deal was said about the generosity of the father starting the son in life with a large block of savings-bank stock, worth many thousands of dollars. Shortly after bank failed, and the investigation disclosed that the bank was insolvent when the father presented the stock to the son. President Thompson knows what evils temptation leads a man into.

Rural Northwest: We noticed a number of pails of "currant jelly" stacked up in front of a Portland business house. The brand on the pails showed that the stuff was packed in Omaha. If the contents of the pails were in reality currant jelly, bringing it to Portland would be like carrying coal to Newcastle. It is well known, however, that these so-called jellies have little or no fruit in them, but are made of glue or gelatine, and are artificially flavored and colored. There are very few civilized nations, other than the United States, which permit the sale of such counterfeit articles of food.

An exchange says that "the editor of the Cottage Grove ECHO-LEADER got himself into trouble, by speaking of a local millinery store, kept by a very estimable lady and saying "he was very glad to see her stocking up." When the paper came out, Bro. Thorp was astonished when the lady met him and struck him over his think-dome with her umbrella, at the same time telling him he was a liar and haden't seen anything of the kind. He doesen't know what she was mad about, although he read the item a hundred times to see if there was anything spiteful in it." Had he intimated that he had seen her "stocking down" there might have been some excuse for the rumpus, and if the statement were true, Bro. Thorp might have been partially repaid at least, for the punishment he received.—Corvallis Gazette.

Few people know how many forms the two newspapers run by Harvey Scott come in for the state pap, nor what "divvy" they extract from all whom they stand in with. as an example, a bill came to Secretary Kincaid the other day, from one of the Portland gang, for about $2500. It was returned for revision and when it came back it was reduced to about $1100, but the same oath that was attached to the first bill had been cut off and pasted on the second, the same men swearing both the $2500 bill and the $1100 bill were just and correct. This is only one sample out of hundreds of similar bills that come to the state house, and it would be a good thing for the people of this state of ours if the secretary of state would let the daylight into these raids on the treasury and the people who attempt them. They would then see why he is the best-hated man in Oregon by a class of boodlers who have been into the state treasury up to their elbows whenever they have had a chance. Their chance has been reduced to almost nothing and hence their frothings and abuse of Secretary Kincaid.—Eugene Register.

The U. S. Gov't Reports show Royal Baking Powder superior to all others.

An exchange remarks that "the people who live the longest are those who sleep with their mouths shut." We will just add that some people would probably live longer if they would keep their mouths shut while awake also.

Montana Mining and Market Reporter: But a few years ago mining was considered unprofitable by eastern capitalists. It is a very different proposition now, and a gold property is at a premium. Business men and investors are beginning to realize that in these days of almost impossible profits in any line of merchantile business, that mining carried on intelligently, there is no investment equally as good and certain to return dividends. There is also a noticeable inclination to operate on a larger scale and that nearly every mining operation nowadays are projected by corporations. The day of combine has arrived in this branch of speculation as in other enterprises, and an aggregation of skill and capital alone starts and maintains most of the largest mining enterprises of the day.

W. P. Bayes of 2405 Jones St., Omaha, Neb. says of Parks' Sure Cure:—"My wife has been constitutionally wrecked for years. Tried everything fruitlessly. My druggist's persuasion backed by his guarantee, induced me to buy a bottle of Parks Sure Cure. The results are truly wonderful. Parks Sure Cure for the Liver and Kidneys is a positive specific for the diseases of women. Sold by J. A. Benson.

This from the Huntingberg Argus, is sound advice: The best way to build up a town is to stand by every man in the place who does right Whenever a man is doing well do not tear him down. All residents should be partners and not opponente in all lines, the more business your rival does the more you will do. Every man who treats his customers fairly and honestly, will get his share of trade, and the more business that can be secured by united efforts the better it will be for all. When a town ceases to grow it begins to die, and the more readily utter ruin comes to all. Stand together for the advancement of every citizen. If a man allows ability to prosper do not pull him back or weigh down with cold indifference.

WHAT $10 DID.—The Scio Press tells the following suggestive incident. An Albany attorney informed us recently that he had been in Lebanon a few days ago and while there as strange as it may appear he paid a debt of $10 to some individual there. This party paid a $10 he owed to another party with the bill, and this other party was indebted to the lawyer $10 for services rendered. So the lawyer returned to Albany with the identical $10 bill in his pocket that he had before he discharged his debt. It can thus be seen that debts to the amount of $30 were paid and everybody had as much money as before the debts were paid.

Here is what an old bachelor has to say in defence of celibacy: "Married men grow powerful wicked powerful fast. Just as soon as a man is married, women shun him as they do a mud-puddle. If his wife goes away for a week he is deprived altogether of female society. Girls who treated him nicely before his marriage would not walk a block with him after dark to save his neck. Married men must be a mighty bad lot."

The World's Fair Tests

CAPTAIN JINKS.

An Albany man received a letter from Nebraska stating that nearly everything was again dried up. A failure of crops this year will mean a terrible disaster for that state.

Several bicyclists were arrested at Sacramento, Cal., for not complying with the ordinance requiring wheelmen to carry lights at night or to ring bells or blow horns when approaching the street crossings. As the existence of the ordinance was unknown to nine-tenths of the riders, they were fined only $5 each in the police court, which they paid. Friday night about 300 wheelmen rode through the streets, some carrying lanterns, some ringing cowbells and others blowing horns. The result was that about half a dozen were arrested, some for disturbing peace and others for non-compliance with the ordinance.—Eugene Register.

Persons who are subject to diarroea will find a speedy cure in De Witt's Colic and Cholera Cure. Use no other. It is the best that can be made or that money can procure. It leaves the system in natural condition after its use. We sell it. J. P. Currin.

Here is a bit of information that may be of benefit to Oregon farmers. It plainly shows the results of feeding stock scientifically. Last fall the experiment station purchased six head of three-year-old steers from Ed Wiles, for experimental purposes. December 6th feeding was begun and last week, when the steers were sold, they showed an average gain of 300 pounds each. The price was $15 per head and in less than three months, by careful feeding, Prof. French was able to dispose of them for double the cost. That is, a profit of $15 was realized on the feed of each animal, and in addition to this, they have produced one hundred loads of manure, worth at least $50. Their feed was entirely the product of the farm and consisted of straw, clover hay, chopped grain, etc. Now the difference between scientific feeding is shown by the experience of Mr. Wiles. Last fall he began fattening a number of four-year-olds, and after feeding all winter, sold them at $20 per head. Being a year older and consequently considerably larger than those fed at the college, Mr. Wiles ought to have received not less than $35 each at the time he sold. Owing to this method of feeding, however, the steers made no perceptible gain in weight, so that their feeding for four months was practically lost. This unfavorable showing Professor French says, is the result of not using dry feed exclusively. To obtain the best results in fattening, the animals should not be allowed to pasture; but should be kept in a sheltered enclosure and fed on dry food exclusively.

WEINSTOCK, LUBIN & CO.,

The Portland Chronicle hits the old set in good shape as follows: It is doubtful if the new monthly edition of the Oregonian will accomplish any good in its new field. If the Oregonian hasen't the influence, after an existence of some forty years, to attract attention to this state without issuing an extra to boom a few real estate dealers who wish to unload, what can be expected from this waif that has no bonafide standing, but is to be distributed around like a lot of dodgers? No good can be accomplished. It will aid the Oregonian financially as long as the real estate men will put up. The Oregonian feels necessity of something being done now that the daily Sun has secured a permanent foothold and is cutting into its field an alarming extent. The Oregonian never has been a popular paper under the editorial control of H. W. Scott; nor will it ever be. A paper that has the opportunities and financial standing that the Oregonian has enjoyed in the past, ought to be a power in the land. It is however, a hoodoo to every undertaking, individual, and to every cause that it champions.

Montana Mining and Market Reporter: There is no doubt but what real estate investments made at the present time, on a cash basis, are especially good. As a result of boom times many men find themselves heavily loaded, and many are unable to protect their interests, and being forced to reduce their holdings, are willing to make sales much below actual values. Considering the present low prices and the surety of a decided increase, the man who has money to invest cannot ask for more flattering opportunities than are now presented.

The Oakland (Ind.) City Enterprise, one of our brightest and ever welcome exchanges, has just entered its 16th year and in one more year will have attained the charming and most fascinating age of "sweet sixteen." May it then pass from its sweetest maidenhood to be, a real old maid.

Edward Atkinson, the noted statistician, estimates that the hens of the United States produce eggs to the value of $14,000,000 annually. This he claims is as great as the combined worth of the wool and pig iron output for the year. That is a lay that is unobtrusive in sound but most potent in effect.—Alturas Herald.

DOING WHAT HE SAID HE WOULD DO.

No matter what people of opposite opinions regarding the money question say about Secretary of State Kincaid, there are very few who do not appreciate him as a careful watcher over the financial affairs of the state. In the Salem Journal of May 27, that paper published a column article regarding the Oregonian's attitude toward Mr. Kincaid, from which is coppied the following: All this warfare is in spite of the fact that Mr. Kincaid is doing exactly what he promised he would if elected, and the Oregonian hoped he would do, and told the people he would do. It demanded just before election that a man should be chosen secretary of the state who would cut down all useless expenditures and scrutinize all the bills that came through his hands in the interest of the taxpayer. That it was insincere in demanding this sort of thing, is shown by the fact that it now seeks to destroy the standing and influence of of the only man who can protect the people as state auditor. The fact is, the Oregonian and its pets have been loading down the state with their bills long enough, and it is because Mr. Kincaid and his associates have been drawing their pencils through their outrageous demands, and have been stopping their raids on the treasnry, that causes all this tuberculous spewing of the insolvent Portland fishwife.—Eugene Register.
