

Wise and Otherwise.

—To cure sleeplessness—engage as a night watchman; it never fails.

—Don't try to lengthen your days by cutting short your night's rest, it is poor economy.

—The word "laughter" is always printed in the speech of a Congressman, so the reader may know when to laugh.

—"I say, Jenkins, can you tell a young, tender chicken from an old tough one?" "Of course I can." "Well, how?" "By the teeth." "Chickens have no teeth." "No, but I have."

—To call an elevator an "alleviator," as a lady is said to have done recently, may be murdering English, but with extenuating circumstances.

—Little Nell, mashed her finger in the door the other day, and came up crying and holding it in her other hand. All at once she stopped as if listening; then looking up through her tears, exclaimed, "Mamma, there's a little heart in my finger; I feel it frobbing."

—A little girl was eating green corn by gnawing it from the cob, when her teeth became entangled with the corn silk. "Oh, dear!" said she impatiently, "I wish, when they get the corn made they would pull out the basting threads."

—A neighbor came in an Irishman's shanty the other day. "What do you want?" asked Pat. "Nothing," was the visitor's reply. "Then you'll find it in the jug where the whisky was."

—Surprised at the smile: "I'm no sectarian," said Job Shuttle, as he grew warm in religious argument. "I believe every man ought to be a strict Presbyterian," and then looked around in wonder as an audible smile wafted into the evening air.

He opened the door cautiously, and poking his head in, inquired:

"Is this the editorial rinktum?"

"The what, my friend?"

"Is this the rinktum, sanctum, or some such place where the Editors live?"

"This is the editorial room. Yes, sir. Come in."

"No, I guess I wont come in. I wanted to see what a rinktum was like, that's all. Looks like our garret, only wüss. Good day."

If all callers would be as brief and sincere when visiting the editorial "rinktum," they would relieve the Editor of much waste time.
