

Wise and Otherwise.

—The prettiest trimming for a woman's bonnet is a good-humored face.

—That is the best part of beauty which a picture cannot express.

—Kind words produce their own image in men's souls, and a beautiful image it is. They soothe and comfort the hearer.

—“This is the rock of ages, said a tired father who had kept the cradle going two hours, and the baby still awake.

—Keep trouble at arm's length. Never turn a blessing around to see whether it has a dark side to it.

—A man's curiosity never reaches the female standard until some one tells him his name was in yesterday's paper.

—The seal of suffering impressed upon our destiny announces in clear characters our high calling—De Gorondo.

—If you know anything that will make a brother's heart glad, run quick and tell it; but if anything that will cause a sigh, bottle it up.

—He who would be a great soul in future must be a great soul now.

—What is the relative worth of woman?—Double you, O man.

—If a nigger dies what do his brethren do?—Go black burying.

—It requires a strong, good man to say, “I was mistaken, and am sorry.”

—They are never alone that are accompanied with noble thoughts.

—“You dog of a printer,” cried the enraged poet, “you have not punctuated my poem at all.” “Yes, but you see, sir, I am not a pointer. I'm a setter,” replied the printer.

—Every person has two educations—one which he receives from others, and one, more important, which he gives himself.

—He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace.—Ruskin.

—A lady lately looking at a printing press at work, turned to her companion, and in a most earnest manner inquired: “Well, Charley, an' them's the things as writes the papers. Be's them what they call editors?”

—“Young men,” said a tiresome and instructive old muf to a group of apprentices, “should begin at the bottom of their business and work up.” “I can't,” responded one of them. “Why not,” asked the old muf. “Because I am a well-digger,” answered the apprentice.
