

Taking Time for a Ride on a Wonderdog

James Lorensen, 2, plays with Nimbus, who is being trained as a service dog, at Polk County Community Connect on Jan. 28. Nimbus' owner, Nina Davis, (not pictured) volunteered for the day with Jack's World Grooming in Independence. Davis spent most of her day trimming the nails of pets whose owners can't afford to get them groomed regularly. The Connect event also had resources for people to visit the dentist, get their bikes repaired, hair cut and have a hot meal, as well as pick up needed supplies such as flashlights and tents.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fair board work session is Saturday

RICKREALL — The Polk County Fair Board will conduct its annual work session discussion Saturday beginning at 7:30 a.m. at the Polk County Fairgrounds & Event Center, 520 S. Pacific Highway (99W), Rickreall.
 The meeting, scheduled to run until noon, provides an opportunity to update the fairgrounds' business plan, plan for the future of the fairgrounds, and plan for the annual county fair in August.
 The public is welcome to attend and provide input at the meeting.
 For more information: 503-623-3048.

Drug court graduation set Monday

DALLAS — Polk County Drug Court will hold its next graduation ceremony Monday immediately following the 1:30 p.m. regular drug court session in Courtroom 1 of the Polk County Courthouse, 850 Main St., Dallas.
 Ten participants are scheduled to graduate. The ceremony marks their completion of an intense program of comprehensive drug treatment and close supervision. Participants are held responsible for all of their actions by the drug court team, and by the end of their program are holding themselves responsible for all of their actions.
 The public is welcome to attend the graduation and learn more about Polk County Drug Court.

'State of the Cities' address Feb. 11

MONMOUTH/INDEPENDENCE — The mayors of Independence and Monmouth will present their annual "State of the Cities" addresses during the Monmouth-Independence Chamber of Commerce's monthly lunch forum, scheduled Feb. 11 at noon at Independence Cinema.
 Independence Mayor John McArdle and Monmouth Mayor John Oberst will update attendees on what's been happening and what is coming up in their respective cities at the event. A question-and-answer session will follow.
 Cost is $11 for lunch and reservations are required.
 For more information: 503-838-4268; www.micc-or.org.

City recreation grant now available

MONMOUTH — The city of Monmouth will accept applications for its recreation grant until March 2.
 The $500 grant is meant to encourage and support recreational activities and projects by individuals and nonprofit organizations in Monmouth.
 Past projects include triathlons at Western Oregon University or Easter egg hunts.
 "The idea is to let people be fairly creative," City Manager Scott McClure said. "If someone wanted to do a kid's yoga in the park and needed some help with that, that's what it's here for."
 The money is allocated from the city's general fund.

Independence parks plan underway

INDEPENDENCE — A steady stream of people attended the Independence parks master plan open house held Thursday, said City Manager David Clyne.
 Once completed, the 20-year parks plan will include a number of new parks and trails, including a two-mile stretch along the Willamette River.
 The city will continue to refine the plan and include public comments. Money to pay for improvements will likely come in part from parks system development charges, Clyne said.
 "There's still work to be done," he said.
