Private memorial service will be held in Portland. Contact the family for details.

Contributions are suggested to Providence Hospice, 6410 NE Halsey St., Suite 300, Portland, OR 97213.

Pauline Robinson

Nov. 9, 1929 – Feb. 10, 2015

Pauline Robinson, 85, of Dallas died Feb. 10 in Dallas.

She was born in Spokane, Wash., to Frederick R. Blackwell and Brenda Warn Blackwell.

Pauline grew up in Lewiston, Idaho, and Spokane. She graduated from Lewis and Clark High School in Spokane in 1947. She attended Whitworth College in Spokane and then transferred to Eastern Washington State College in Cheney, where she met her husband, Addison "Add" R. Robinson.

Pauline and Add were married on Aug. 20, 1951, in Spokane. They then moved to Canoga Park, Calif. Pauline returned to Spokane the summer of 1959 to complete her Bachelor of Arts in education degree. She earned her Masters of Science in education from University of Southern California in 1966. She taught elementary school and special education at Newhall School in Newhall, Calif., from 1959-1965. She taught and was vice principal at Castaic School in Castaic, Calif., from 1965-1971. She and Add retired in 1971 to develop their Amway business and moved from the Santa Clarita Valley to Sherman Oaks, Calif.

Pauline was active in several professional organizations during her teaching career: Delta Kappa Gamma Society, Association of California Administrators Compensatory Education, Los Angeles County School Administrators & Supervisors Association, and the Parent Teachers Association. She and Add were also active in the Newhall-Saugus Athletic Club, where their children participated in sports.

Pauline and Add moved back to the Northwest in 1985 to be near their daughter's family and settled in Lewiston. They joined the Congregational-Presbyterian Church in Lewiston. She served as the coordinator of the Stephen Ministry with their church. While in Idaho, she also served as a commissioner on the Lewiston Senior Advisory Commission, was state president of the Idaho Retired Teachers Association, and served with the National Retired Teachers Association. She was appointed to the Idaho Commission for the Blind. Pauline had lost most of her vision by 1981 due to an auto-immune disorder.

Pauline and Add moved to their daughter's family property in Culesac, Idaho, in 1999. They joined the Culesac Community Church while living there. In 2006, Pauline moved with the family to Oregon. She attended West Hills Community Church in Salem. She lived with her daughter's family and then moved to Heron Pointe in Monmouth and had lived at Dallas Retirement Village the past four years.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Add, and son, Kent Russell Robinson.

Survivors include her daughter, Brenda (Terry Crawford) of Dallas; son, Warn (Maria) Robinson of Burbank, Calif.; brother, Fritz Blackwell of Gig Harbor, Wash.; 11 grandchildren; 16 great-grandchildren; and extended family.

Memorial service was Friday at West Hills Community Church.

Contributions are suggested to Dallas Retirement Village Foundation, 377 NW Jasper St., Dallas, OR 97338, or the West Hills Community Church Building Fund, 1650 Brush College Road, Salem, OR 97304.

Betty Eileen Randolph

Dec. 24, 1927 – Feb. 10, 2015

Betty Eileen Randolph, 87, of Independence, formerly of Sweet Home, died Feb. 10 in Independence.

She was born in Scotts Mills to Wiley and May (Yoder) Dimick.

Betty spent her early years in Sweet Home, where she graduated from high school in 1945.

That same year she married Robert "Bud" Randolph and they celebrated 48 happy years of marriage before Bud's death in 1993. The family lived in Sweet Home until 1955, when they moved to Florence. In the mid-1970s, Bud and Betty relocated to Anchorage, Alaska, where they spent the next 14 years before retiring to Independence in 1988.

Betty was a loving, kind-hearted individual who enjoyed taking care of her family. She also enjoyed playing bingo well into her 80s and made many dear friends during those times. Betty had many happy years with Bud traveling in their motor home, gold panning and hosting friends and relatives in Alaska.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Bud Randolph; daughter, Jean Wimer; brothers, George, Chauncey, Rex "Scotty" and Harry Dimick; and sisters, Dorothy Brown and Mary Ward.

Survivors include her son, Jim Randolph; brothers, Bill (Bonnie), Wiley "Shorty" and Dick Dimick; two granddaughters; four great-grandchildren; and extended family.

Graveside service was Monday at Gilliland Cemetery in Sweet Home.

Sweet Home Funeral Chapel handled arrangements. To send an online condolence: www.sweet-homefuneral.com.

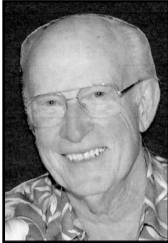

Harvey Classen

Jan. 25, 2015

Harvey Classen, 84, of Dallas died Jan. 25.

He was born in Meade, Kan., to George and Agnes Classen.

Harvey remembered the Great Depression and dust storms that caused his family to move to Washington and California before settling in Oregon in 1940.

He attended Orchard View School near his home in Dallas and graduated from Salem Academy in 1949. In 1950, while attending a Billy Graham tent meeting in Portland with several other young men from church, he accepted Christ as his personal Savior. He often commented how happy he was about making this decision for Christ to be in his life.

Shortly after, he joined the Navy and served for four years. He was trained to be a corpsman and served on the USS Haven during the Korean War. After his discharge, he attended Multnomah School of the Bible in Portland for two years. He married Jeanette Schultz in August 1955. He attended Oregon Institute of Technology (then OTI) in Klamath Falls for his medical technologist degree. His first job was with Bay Clinic in Coos Bay. He later accepted a management position with the Medford Clinic Laboratory, where he worked until his retirement in 1988.

For a number of years he served as treasurer of the Medical Technology Association. He loved working with wood and made numerous pieces of furniture for his children and his own home. He attended Evangelical Bible Church and was active as a trustee and usher until his health wouldn't allow him to serve.

He was preceded in death by his sisters, Esther Friesen, Hulda Klaus, Elma Ediger, Marie Reimer and Verna Classen; and brother, Victor Classen.

Survivors include his wife, Jean; children, Steven D. Classen (Kathleen Laughlin) and Cynthia K. Friesen (Jay); and three granddaughters.

Viewing is Friday from 3 to 8 p.m. at Dallas Mortuary Tribute Center. Memorial service is Saturday at 11 a.m. at Evangelical Bible Church in Dallas. Private family interment will be in Dallas Cemetery.

Contributions are suggested to Village Missions or the Missions Department of Evangelical Bible Church.

Dolores Marie Davis

Aug. 4, 1941 – Feb. 13, 2015

Dolores Marie Davis, 73, of Dallas died Friday in Salem.

She was born in Gervais to Olen and Pearl Hammons.

Dolores grew up in Grand Ronde, Sheridan and Willamina. The family picked crops in the Willamette Valley, primarily in Polk, Yamhill and Marion counties. She attended Willamina High School.

Dolores married George Rhoads in April 1958 and lived in Independence. Dolores divorced in 1971 and moved to Dallas with her children. She married her soul mate, Bill Davis, in Reno, Nev., on Nov. 25, 1976.

She was a volunteer historian for many years at the Dallas Volunteer Fire Department. She found great pleasure in caring for and sharing the rich history with the members of the department.

Dolores had a love of dachshunds and her faithful companion, Abbe. She was known as "Grandma Gum" as all of her grandchildren looked forward to the chewing gum she would share with them. Dolores enjoyed gardening, canning, reading books and was an avid Seattle Seahawks fan. She also enjoyed the Dallas Aquatic Center, where she had many friends. She and Bill liked traveling to Reno.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Bill, on Aug. 21, 2013.

Survivors include her children, Wanda Davis (Michael Rose), Brenda (Steve) Faxon, Randy (Dorothy) Rhoads, Rich (Barbara) Davis, Tammy Jo Davis and Donny Davis; brother, Bob Hammons; 12 grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren.

Celebration of Dolores' life is Saturday at 11 a.m. at Trinity Lutheran Church in Dallas.

Contributions are suggested to the Dallas Fire Department in care of Bollman Funeral Home which handled arrangements.
