DALLAS — The Dallas High wrestling team is used to invading the Memorial Coliseum each year for the OSAA state wrestling championships.

This year, the Dragons are hoping to have one of its best showings yet.

"For some of these wrestlers, a single win is a huge contribution, for others, we would be bummed with anything short of a place," Dallas coach Tony Olliff said.

Among those with high expectations include seniors Nolan Miller and Matt Hofenbredl, both of whom are seeded second in their respective weight class.

"I have to wrestle everybody tough," Miller said. "I have to keep my head on straight and know nothing is going to come easy."

Friday and Saturday in Portland: Ryan Bibler (106 pounds), Noah Sickles (113), Jordan Williams (120), Miller (120), Sammy Chung (126), Hofenbredl (132), Mathew Dindinger (138), Tanner Earhart (138), Cody Janssen (145), Noel Reyes (145), Clay Cozen (152), Treve Earhart (152), Jeff Dunagan (160), Tyson Janssen (170), Josh Naughton (182), Mathew Thorsted (195) and Kyle Snyder (220). And everyone is ready to show their stuff.

"I think I can do a lot of damage and I think our team has a real good shot to win, so I'm excited for that," Tyson Janssen said.

This year, the Dragons are looking to compete for a team title as well.

"The 5A race will be a fun one," Olliff said. "Hillsboro, Crater, Redmond and our traditional rival Hermiston all have a shot at a state (team) title. Sandy has a chance as well. It will be a dogfight."

The key to a team trophy relies on more than individual titles, however.

"To win a state title, we need to get wins out of our 17," Olliff said. "We need to get pins when we can. We have to take sixth when we should, fifth when we should, etc. That's how you

State: Ford happy with season

"We were a little disappointed she didn't swim in the finals of the 200 freestyle, but in the overall picture, that helped her to swim her fastest time ever in the 500 freestyle," Dallas coach Jeff Bemrose said.

Ford may not have accomplished all she was hoping for at state, but her performance in the 500 freestyle helped prove to her that all the work she put in was worth it.

"This season started out kind of rocky," Ford said.

"My times throughout the season weren't the best, but because of all the work I put into it, everything came together at the end of the season."

Glade hoped to make the most of his final trip to state. It was mission accomplished as Glade finished the 100 breaststroke final in 1:02.56.

"Last year, I didn't make it to the finals," Glade said. "This year, I had a lot of support and I was almost kind of expecting to make the finals this year. I was prepared to go and give it all I had, and that's what I did."

Glade was also part of the Central 200 medley relay team with Daniel Glade, Ryan Rosas and Orion Waight that finished ninth in the preliminary heat in 1:51.87.

Although it didn't advance to the finals, the chance to compete at state gave the relay team a memorable moment.

"Going to state was a big accomplishment," Waight said. "It was something that I didn't expect to be able to do this season. It was a rush."

State provided an ending highlight for seniors Nathan Glade and Ryan Rosas. But for Waight, a junior, and Daniel Glade, a freshman, state provided valuable experience for two of the program's key swimmers for the future.

"We were looking at how everyone did their strokes and learned how to improve our swimming," Daniel Glade said. "I'm glad we had a chance to go through this experience."

Finish: Senior ready to shine

Collin qualified for state at 138 pounds.

"Tanner and Collin have become students of the sport," Holstad said. "They study it and have learned so much, and it has shown in their performances so far. They constantly push each other. Many times, it is just them doing morning workouts. They keep each other going."

The Swineharts won't be the only Central wrestlers competing at state.

Oscar Amezcua (160),

David Negrete (182), Alberto Meza (195) and Marlon Tupulotu (220) also earned their spots at state. Negrete and Meza also enter the state tournament coming off individual district championships.

"I honestly think we will do really well at state," Tanner Swinehart said. "All of the kids who are going to state deserve to be there. They're all hard workers on our team. I am confident in our ability and I think we're all going to do really well."
