

OBITUARIES

Rose Marjorie Martin

Sept. 2, 1917 – Feb. 14, 2015

Rose Marjorie Martin, 97, of Portland, formerly of Dallas, died Feb. 14 in Portland.

She was born to Joseph and Celia "Gilbert" Perry.

Rose was raised in Shaw and graduated from Aumsville High School. She married Harry Martin Jr. in 1938 and they lived on a farm in Macleay for 18 years. They then moved to Medford with their three children. The family moved to Dallas in 1960. In 1986, her husband of 49 years died and Rose moved to Portland to live with her youngest daughter and her family until 2010. She then moved into an assisted living facility, where she made lots of new friends and shared her talents.

Rose was a gardener and had a green thumb for growing things, especially flowers. Her windowsill was always full of flowers in bloom. She loved arts and crafts, knitting sweaters and crocheting afghans.

She was a member of St. Philip Catholic Church and had been a Macleay Grange member for more than 75 years.

Survivors include her three children, Marilyn Martin, Larry Martin and Marjean Storey; six grandchildren; and 12 great-grandchildren.

Memorial service was Saturday at Restlawn Funeral Home Chapel. Private interment followed.

Ted D. Baimbridge

Aug. 10, 1942 – Feb. 19, 2015

Ted D. Baimbridge, 72, of Monmouth, died Thursday from leukemia/lymphoma.

He was born in Oakland to Dale S. Baimbridge and Maxine M. Haines Baimbridge.

He graduated from Oakland High School in 1960 and attended the University of Oregon, Boise Bible College and Oregon College of Education (now Western Oregon University), where he graduated with a Bachelor of Science degree. He later attended Oregon State University, where he earned his master's degree.

While in Boise, he met Sharon Miller; they were married on May 18, 1963. They raised their family in Oregon, where Ted taught secondary math and science at Yoncalla High School, Talmadge Junior High and Dallas High School. He also served as student dean at Boise Bible College.

His favorite workplace, though, was the forest. During summers, whether he was a student or teaching school, he logged. After leaving the teaching profession, he started his own logging company and became known as a knowledgeable professional who loved his work.

He was involved at Monmouth Christian Church, where he had served as an elder, teacher and senior ministry leader. His faith was of utmost importance in his life.

He was preceded in death by his brother, Samuel Baimbridge; and son, Michael Baimbridge.

Survivors include his wife, Sharon of Monmouth; daughter, Pamela (Derek) Helt of Phnom Penh, Cambodia; brothers, Jim (Judy) Baimbridge of Middleton, Idaho, and Steve (Janet) Baimbridge of Oakland; and extended family.

Elsie Pearl Seals

June 13, 1918 – Feb. 9, 2015

Elsie Pearl Seals, 96, of Dallas died Feb. 9 in Dallas.

She was born in Blackfoot, Idaho, to Peter and Lucetta Hawkins Graham.

At the age of 2, she and her family moved to Salem. She attended grade school and Parrish Junior High. She quit school to work and help support the family.

As a young girl, she and her sisters went to what they called "the dance hall." She loved to dance, and one night she met her future husband, Wendell O. Seals. They were married on March 27, 1937, in Vancouver, Wash.

During the Great Depression, her family moved many times and Elsie was the glue and stability that held the family together during this time. In 1954, the family settled in Cooper Hollow outside of Dallas. Her dad farmed and Elsie went to work in the cannery in Salem. Later, she changed jobs and worked in a mushroom factory and a chicken and turkey processing plant also in Salem, where she later retired from.

She played the piano, violin and guitar, and Wendell played the harmonica. Her children and family learned to love and appreciate music and to dance. Wendell died on July 10, 1970, and Elsie stayed on the farm for a time but later sold it and moved to Dallas, where she was married to Alvin Fast for a short time.

Elsie was full of life and laughter, and never met a stranger. She loved caring for her garden.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Wendell; daughter, Mary; grandson, John Mark Rempel; and 11 siblings.

Survivors include her children, Frances (Marvin) Rempel of Vale, Betty Webb of Monmouth and Bill (Virginia) Seals of Afton, Mont.; 12 grandchildren; 12 great-grandchildren; and eight great-great-grandchildren.

Memorial service is March 7 at 11 a.m. at Dallas Mortuary Tribute Center. Private interment will be at Dallas Cemetery.

Esther Violet LaVone Yungen

Dec. 9, 1915 – Feb. 19, 2015

Esther Violet LaVone Yungen, 99, of Salem died Thursday in Salem.

She was born in Bridgeport, Neb., to Oscar Alfred Larson and Anna Wilhelmina (Anderson) Larson.

Violet married Robert Fredrick Yungen on Feb. 16, 1947, in Dallas. They were married 41 years, until Robert's death on May 4, 1988.

She was active in church and her community. She was the bookkeeper for Knight Memorial Church for many years and held several jobs, all of which served and bettered her community. She and Robert owned and operated the Brush College Store in West Salem for many years, and had operated the Lincoln Store prior to building the store at Brush College.

In addition to all of her community activities, she loved organizing family functions. Violet and Robert never had children of their own, but over the years they took in many of her nieces and nephews, allowing them to work at the store when other employment was difficult. Violet was always actively engaged in things going on around her and did anything within her power to improve the lives of everyone she met.

She was preceded in death by her siblings, Eva Cathline Larson, Karl Alfred Larson, Frances Julia (Larson) Steele, Alice Mildred (Larson) Teats, Glenn Herman Larson and Herbert Rudolph Larson.

Survivors include her youngest brother, Harry Dwayne Larson of Yelm, Wash., and extended family.

Viewing is Friday from 1 to 5 p.m. at Dallas Mortuary Tribute Center. Service is Saturday at 1 p.m. at Dallas Mortuary Tribute Center.

Contributions are suggested to the American Heart Association or to a charity of your choice.

Evalynne Joy Clark

Feb. 6, 2015 – Feb. 7, 2015

Evalynne Joy Clark lived for only five hours and was welcomed with love by parents and family members. All Eva Joy ever felt in this life was love.

She was born to Kyler and Madi Clark in Richland, Wash.

Survivors include her parents, Kyler and Madi Clark of Kennewick, Wash.; grandparents, Chad and Kelli McGuire of Dallas and Kenneth and Shanna Clark of Nyssa; great-grandparents, Errol and Connie Montague of Dallas; and a large extended family.

Service was Feb. 11 in Kennewick.

Roger Philip Kershner

Dec. 2, 1928 – Feb. 11, 2015

Roger Philip Kershner, 86, of Albany, died Feb. 11 following a brief illness. He had lived in the Monmouth and Independence area for more than 20 years.

He was born to Jess and Frances Kershner in Concordia, Kan.

As part of a military family, Roger moved west to areas near Civilian Conservation Corp camps in Oregon, Washington and Utah. It was in Salt Lake City that he, at age 14, announced to his mother that he met the girl he was going to marry.

Jean Washburn and Roger began their 63 years of life together May 26, 1950.

With family at the forefront, Roger had many passions throughout his life. In his younger years, there was football, track and big band music, managing Jean's student government campaigns, and supporting the war effort. Later, he became an avid runner.

Always active in his local church, Roger lived out his faith by serving others, and he took on many roles and careers in his life. Beginning with a stint in the Army Air Corp during the Korean conflict, he later became an elementary teacher and school administrator in both Lake Oswego and Queen Creek, Ariz. Simultaneously, he spent 30 years in the Naval Reserves and retired as a commander. "Dr. K" helped mold teachers into effective educators at Oregon College of Education.

Roger mastered construction and was a writer, gentleman farmer, artist, poet, counselor and community servant.

He was preceded in death by the love of his life, Jean, in November 2013; sister, Rudy; and brother, Daniel.

Survivors include his children, Kris (Larry) Dalton, Jill North, Mark Kershner and Cori (Doug) Hatch; and many grandchildren and great-grandchildren.

Celebrate Roger's life on Saturday at 1 p.m. at Monmouth Christian Church, 959 W. Church St.
