

Western Oregon University's 22nd annual Pow Wow

Werner University Center's Pacific Room was filled with music, color and dance Saturday.

Dancers and musicians from across the country attended the event, hosted by the WOU's Multicultural Student Union.

AARON YOST /for the Itemizer-Observer
Stuart Whitehead, 57, of Siletz, left, and Matt Ruff, 31, of McMinnville, take part in a men's traditional dance on Saturday during the Pow Wow at Western Oregon University. Both men are members of the Siletz Tribe.

CULTURE IN MOTION

AARON YOST /for the Itemizer-Observer
Linda Meanus, 64, a Warm Springs-Yakima tribal member, dances on Saturday during the 22nd annual Pow Wow at Western Oregon University.

AARON YOST /for the Itemizer-Observer
David Yelloweye, 44, a Northern Cheyenne-Lakota, receives help with his dance outfit from his daughter Kimi Yelloweye before performing in a dance on Saturday.

AARON YOST /for the Itemizer-Observer
James Thinn, right and Chet Clark — both Navajo (Dineeh) tribe members — beat out time as members of the Shoneah Drum Circle.

AARON YOST /for the Itemizer-Observer
David Yelloweye performs a men's traditional dance in his eagle feather attire at WOU's annual pow wow Saturday. Yelloweye is from Montana.