

SCHOOL NOTES

Williamson Distinguished Educator

DALLAS — Whitworth Elementary School fifth-grade teacher Brian Williamson was named the April Distinguished Educator on April 17.

Two of his current students, Sophia Baughman and Lilly Garrett, nominated him for the honor, saying, "He shows he cares about our learning by encouraging us and making learning interesting and fun."

They added Williamson has another talent, teaching, "strategies and shortcuts and makes math fun and easy."

His other students agreed with Sophia and Lilly, adding "He's plain awesome" and "He's fun so we don't get bored."

The Distinguished Educator Program recognizes "excellence in teaching and learning" in Dallas School District schools.

Architect's rendering of The Lodge Clubhouse

Inspired by Classic Northwest Lodges

Dallas Retirement Village is planning an expansion to its 30-acre campus that will add a variety of residence styles with the expansive living spaces, details and finishes people want for independent retirement living today. These homes, called The Lodge Residences, will also be connected to the new Lodge Clubhouse. Taking inspiration from classic northwest resort lodges, the clubhouse is designed to become the main entry to independent living residences and the welcoming center of a vibrant lifestyle for residents and guests. Planned amenities include restaurants, lounges, auditorium, theater, game room, meeting rooms, conveniences—and in a second phase, a wellness center, indoor pool and spa.

Lodge Residences Available for Reservation

Future residents are putting plans in place for their retirement future by reserving a favorite floor plan and location. Floor plans for these apartment-style homes offer one or two bedrooms and baths, with den and gas fireplace options, open living and dining space, kitchen with breakfast bar, patio or balcony, washer and dryer, and more.

According to the marketing director, Lindsey Horton, "We are more than 75 percent to our reservation goal to proceed with financing, and meeting with more interested people every day. Our selection of residence styles, personalizing options, and pre-construction savings make reserving a new Lodge Residence a smart decision."

Community Embraces Opportunities

Dallas Retirement Village a faith-based community that is open to all. Throughout its 67 years, the community has strived to anticipate the changing needs and desires of current and future residents.

The campus has grown to offer a variety of garden home and apartment-style homes, a lifestyle that reflects residents' dynamic interests, and a full range of health services—assisted living, memory care, rehabilitation and skilled nursing.

"Dallas Retirement Village is committed to serving the people of the Willamette Valley. This is why we are changing, because resident preferences and desires for this stage of their lives are changing," says executive director, Dave Parrett.
