

Station: Hundreds come to see new police department

Upstairs, reachable via a small lift for those unable to make the climb, was a workout space, washer and dryer, and locker rooms for showering.

"It is my personal belief that this is one of those jobs that people have to be fit for duty," Haines said. "We didn't have a place for officers to do that."

Now, regardless of an officer's odd schedule, he or she will have access to fitness equipment before or after a shift, Haines said.

The washer and dryer will help keep uniforms contaminated with bodily fluids away from officers' families.

It was the "little things" that added up to big ones. "Little things make us excited because we haven't had them," Haines said.

Delphine Freshower commented that they thought of everything, including a floor "toilet" to help clean up after prisoners who may vomit or have an accident in the temporary holding cells or in the booking room.

Overall, she said the new building is great for the public.

"It's lovely," she said. "It's well thought-out. A lot of time and effort went into it."

The building was made possible by a bond approved by voters in May 2013. The total costs of the building ran over the $4 million bond, totaling about $4.5 million, said City Manager Scott McClure.

The new police station was a remodel project, using the existing former Boise Cascade structure. Because of the way that building was designed, some office spaces had to be modified from the traditional box model. The office for the sergeants, for example, has a slight L shape because of existing beams.

Tallan said the building will provide proper room for the current police personnel, as well as into the future.

"This building will serve the citizens of Monmouth for a very long time, and it's something we should all be proud of," he said.

Playing with Puppet Theater

EMILY MENTZER/Itemizer-Observer

Becky Bond and Stephanie Kintz practice making the movements of their puppet seem natural during a rehearsal for "Frankie's Flights of Fancy," Western Oregon University's spring play. The play was written by students, including Belladina Starr, who plays Frankie. It is a family friendly play, and opens at 7 p.m., May 27 though May 30 at Rice Auditorium. See the May 27 edition of the I-O for a full preview.

SCHOOL NOTES

Perrydale teacher named OASC adviser of the year

PERRYDALE — The Oregon Association of Student Councils has named Perrydale teacher and leadership adviser Linda Romy as the Oregon high school activities adviser of the year. Romy was nominated for the award by one of her students, Haley Smith, a leadership student at Perrydale.

"She is the strongest person you will ever meet. When I was in eighth grade, she was diagnosed with breast cancer but that didn't stop her," Smith wrote in her nomination letter. "Some weeks we will be at school six days a week working and doing leadership activities and, when she gets tired and run down, she says we are her inspiration. It's just the opposite — she is the one inspiring us!"

Each year, OASC recognizes an outstanding adviser who embodies the ideals of the organization with the Warren E. Shull Adviser of the Year Award. Romy was recognized at the 2015 OASC Spring Conference.

ACADEMIC HONORS

Local students make Eastern Oregon dean's list

POLK COUNTY — Tiffany Mercier of Grand Ronde and Crystal Good of Independence made the dean's list at Eastern Oregon University for winter term 2015, part of 528 students who made the list. Qualifying students achieve and maintain a grade point average of 3.5 or higher on a 4.0 scale while completing a minimum of 12 hours of graded coursework for the duration of the term.

Two Dallas High students receive DVFA scholarships

DALLAS — The Dallas Volunteer Firefighters Association has awarded the Harpy Boward Scholarship to two Dallas High School seniors.

Scholarship winner Isabella Nelson will attend Northwest Christian University in Eugene in the fall and major in biology, and then she plans to attend medical school. The second recipient, Ashley Crabtree, will be attending George Fox University in Newberg where she will major in accounting. Both will receive $1,000 toward college expenses.

More than two dozen students applied for the scholarship, which honors longtime volunteer firefighter Harpy Boward. The Boward Scholarship Committee evaluates each applicant on academics, community service and leadership. Finalists meet with an interview panel made up of fire department and community members.
