

Conservation efforts stack up

Residents save hundreds of thousands of gallons of water a day through actions

POLK COUNTY — Is your lawn a little on the yellow and crispy side? You aren't alone.

Voluntary water conservation appears to be working in Dallas, Monmouth and Independence.

Dallas residents have cut daily usage by a whopping 300,000 gallons per day since the city issued a request to cut water usage. City leaders are more than pleased with that.

"We were actually pleasantly surprised with how the community responded," said Fred Braun, Dallas public works director.

He said this is the first time the city has issued voluntary water restrictions that he can remember.

With the unexpectedly strong response, Mercer Reservoir, Dallas' water source, has a 90-day supply of water, enough to get the city through to the rainy season.

"We are pretty confident that we will make it well past that," Braun said.

That being said, he continues to urge people to use water wisely — and sparingly.

"Water is a valuable commodity, and conservation is not only the right thing to do, but it saves money," he said.

Independence and Mon-

Unseasonably high temperatures and dry conditions led to water conservation efforts. Dallas residents have cut daily usage by 300,000 gallons per day.

mouth have seen decreases as well.

Independence Public Works Director Mike Danko said daily use is down approximately 150,000 gallons.

Paired with the usual decrease in demand that happens this time of year, it appears the city will be able to avoid further curtailment measures, he added.

Monmouth's usage is down as well, but the exact figure was not available by press time.

Cities across the county issued requests for citizens to use less water in late July in response to the unseasonably high temperatures and dry conditions.

Dallas' cry to conserve

Voluntary restrictions

Avoid: Running water from a hose, pipe or faucet to clean buildings and paved, tile, wood, plastic or other surfaces; Adding water to ornamental fountains, ponds and other water features; Using water that causes runoff beyond the area of use; Use of potable water for cleaning, irrigation or construction purposes; Irrigation any time between 8 a.m. and 6 p.m.

came after the District 16 watermaster issued shutoff notices to Rickreall Creek water rights owners whose permits were issued after 1964.

Joel Plahn, district 16 watermaster, said even with the water savings and the recent rain, stream flow passing the city of Dallas' intake still would need to be higher for shutoff notices to be lifted.

"The bit of rain we got over the weekend helped for about 48 hours," he said, referring to an increase in stream flow due to approximately .5 inches of rainfall. "It was a flash, and now we are back to where we were before."

Polk County looks for a new sheriff

Itemizer-Observer staff report

POLK COUNTY — Wanted: interim Polk County sheriff. Sheriff Bob Wolfe will retire as of Nov. 30, and Polk County leaders are looking for someone to replace him until a permanent sheriff can be decided in an election. By the time of his retirement, Wolfe will have served 16 years as sheriff and 39 years in law enforcement.

The Polk County personnel department began accepting materials, including a letter of interest and resume, from individuals interested in the appointment on Monday. Candidates must submit requested documents by noon Oct. 2 to be considered.

Once candidates have applied, the Polk County Board of Commissioners will review applicants and appoint an interim sheriff to serve from Dec. 1 to Jan. 3, 2017.

An election will be held in November 2016 to decide who the permanent sheriff will be after Jan. 3, 2017.

Those wishing to apply need to submit the following materials: A letter of interest; resume; answers to supplemental questions which can be found at www.co.polk.or.us/boc/supplemental-questions-sheriff-appointment; proof of residence; and Department of Public Safety Standards and Training forms F-25 (sheriff application) and F-26 (sheriff affidavit).

Those forms can be found at www.oregon.gov/dpsst/sc/pages/cjforms.aspx.

For more information, those interested can go to www.co.polk.or.us/ or contact Matt Hawkins in the Polk County personnel department at 503-623-1888.
