

Welty: Senior not afraid to push teammates' buttons

Prior to the fourth quarter, Welty was held scoreless during the matchup. He had two points in the fourth and had Dallas' lone basket in the overtime period.
"Avery, he's a good free-throw shooter," Dragons coach Trent Schwartz said. "I think as a player, you want to be in that spot."
Welty wasn't about to let his teammates down.
"You have to know that you're going to hit your shots," Welty said. "The first thing that pops into my mind is my team. I have to be able to step up at the end of the game."

Welty stepped up to the line, took a moment to compose himself and shot. The first one was good, but the second was just as important. A make and the Dragons would lead by four. A miss and it remained a one possession game.
Welty was just as true on the second.
The Dragons won 38-37. Welty's willingness to face the pressure is what has made him a valuable asset for the Dragons — and one who is able to push not only himself, but his teammates as well.

He may not be a team captain, but Welty isn't afraid to push buttons.
"I like to hold my teammates accountable," Welty said. "If they're going to do something, I don't want them to half-ass it."
Whether that means encouraging them after a good play or saying something to them to get them going, Welty knows what makes his teammates tick.

"I like to get under their skin a little bit and make them go harder," Welty said. "I think I thrive off of it. I know how far is too far."
At the root of his willingness to test his teammates' limits is a drive to always get better.
"We have to push each other," Welty said. "If you don't have motivation, you won't feel the need to get any better. If you don't get any better, you won't win any games."
The Dragons will need

Welty's drive after following up their win over Central with a 68-45 loss to South Albany.
"We definitely came out flat," Schwartz said.
South Albany shot 56 percent from the field and 64 percent from beyond the arc teaching Dallas an important lesson.
"Hopefully we can learn from this both in our defensive technique but, more importantly, in our mental approach, about coming to play every night with the same intensity regardless of the size of the crowd, opponent, or venue," Schwartz said.

The Dragons hosted league-leading Corvallis Tuesday after press time and plays at Crescent Valley on Friday. As Dallas hopes to prove itself as a contender in the Mid-Willamette Conference, Welty will be there pushing his teammates every step of the way.
"We have to hit it harder than we ever had before," Welty said. "The competition ... this is what basketball is all about."

Miracle: Dallas coach tried to call timeout before shot

Minahan didn't see Schwartz attempting to call a timeout. Instead, he had a split-second decision to make.
"I looked up at the clock and I looked at the sidelines and they were telling me to go," Minahan said. "I kind of had to just shoot it."
Central coach Tim Kreta just wanted his players to stay focused for one last shot.
"I was focused on making sure our kids were turning around and getting in front of someone," Kreta said. "Sometimes they get so caught up in emotion with the students and the fans cheering. You just have to be thinking one step ahead at all times."

Home again
• Dallas begins a five-game homestand on Tuesday against Lebanon.
• The Dragons entered the week in a tie for second place in the Mid-Willamette Conference.
• Dallas averages 47.3 points per game, the second lowest mark in the league.
Minahan was able to find an open shot and, from the left side of half court, Minahan launched a desperation heave.
"I was just trying to line it up," Minahan said. "When you're going that fast, you hope it makes it perfectly or it banks right in. I was not expecting to make that shot at all, especially from the left side."

For the briefest of moments, the crowd, which featured rowdy student sections from both schools, fell silent.
Then, the shot fell.
"It was a miraculous shot," Schwartz said.
The game was headed to overtime, where Dallas held on for a 38-37 win.
Minahan's shot will go down as one of the Dragons' most memorable moments — one that helped give Dallas new life.
"It's hard to put into words," senior guard Avery Welty said. "That shot revived us. We had another chance to show them what we actually have."

WESTERN OREGON ROUNDUP Men's basketball rolls to wins

Itemizer-Observer staff report
BELLINGHAM, Wash. — Western Oregon's men's basketball team couldn't be slow during a 90-67 win over Simon Fraser on Thursday and a 78-58 victory over Western Washington on Saturday.
Senior Andy Avgi scored a game-high 20 points against Simon Fraser, while Alex Roth added 18 points and six rebounds. The Wolves defeated the Clan for the 14th-straight time dating back to 1999.
WOU led for all but one minute and 48 seconds against Western Washington. The Wolves led by only one at the half before outscoring the Vikings by 19 in the second half.

Avgi scored 19 points and Roth added 18 points again. Julian Nichols scored 15 points.
WOU improved to 14-2 overall and 7-1 in Great Northwest Athletic Conference play.
Western Oregon will host Alaska Anchorage on Thursday and Alaska Fairbanks on Saturday at 7 p.m.
WOMEN'S BASKETBALL DEFEATS CONCORDIA: Western Oregon's women's basketball team defeated Concordia 53-43 on Jan. 12 before falling to Montana State Billings 60-37 on Saturday. Jordan Mottershaw scored a game-high 14 points against Concordia. Emily Howey added 13 points, three rebounds and one blocked shot.

Sydney Azorr scored seven points against Montana State Billings.
WOU fell to 3-13 overall and 2-6 in conference play after the loss. The Wolves host Central Washington on Thursday and Northwest Nazarene on Saturday at 5:15 p.m.
TRACK AND FIELD OPENS INDOOR SEASON: Western Oregon's track and field team competed at the University of Washington Indoor Preview meet on Saturday.
Badane Sultessa also set a new school mark in the 600-meter run, finishing in 1:19.95, taking eighth overall.
Emmi Collier led the women, placing ninth in the weighted throw with a mark of 53 feet, 6.5 inches.
WOU will compete at the Washington Invitational on Jan. 29.
