

Biz registration may be approved

DALLAS — The Dallas City Council is considering implementing a registration program with to-be-determined fees for businesses in the city.

If approved, registration would be required for non-profits, such as charitable, religious, educational, or civic organizations, but they would be exempted from the initial and annual renewal fees.

The city now requires licenses and/or registration in some form for taxicabs, solicitors, tent and carnival shows, amusement games and places, itinerant merchants, hotels and motels, garage sales and home occupations. Those businesses would be exempt from the requirement entirely.

Discussion about requiring registration of more businesses began in September 2015 with the city's administration committee. Since then the committee has revised the proposed ordinance five times before forwarding its final draft to the full council in July.

Before recommend approval, committee had the Dallas Area Chamber of Commerce asked for feedback from its members. Only 23 replied, but those who did were mostly in favor of the proposal.

"That's not a huge sample, but you can't force people to reply to a poll," said Jason Locke, the city community development director, at the committee's July meeting. "There was nothing that came back of any concern related to comments from those folks. Our recommendation is to move it the full council."

The council reviewed it for the first time on Aug. 15 and it will be on the agenda for a second reading, on Sept. 19, the same night a resolution determining fees will be presented.

In other business, the city council:

- Approved a city investment policy that would allow it to make longer-term investments than previously allowed.

Finance Director Cecilia Ward said the city isn't wanting to make long-term investments right away, but said adopting the policy would put the city in line with recommendations from the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA).

NEWS IN BRIEF

Building your emergency kit, Week 13

POLK COUNTY — The American Red Cross has designed a 24-week calendar to build a two-week home disaster kit.

This is Week 13, which means if you are keeping up, you just passed the half way point in building your kit. If not, that's OK. You can pick up where you left off. Completing this week's list may or may not involve a trip to the grocery store depending on what you find in your spice cabinet.

To see past weeks, go to www.polkio.com.

Action Steps:

- Add to emergency supplies a change of clothing and pair of shoes for each person in the family.
- Put together a selection of favorite and most used spices — salt, pepper, sugar — in small packet.
- Put aside utensils, cup, plate, and bowl for each person
- Check to be sure all perishables have been dated.

Dallas association hires RARE intern

DALLAS — The Dallas Downtown Association will add a Resource Assistance for Rural Environments (RARE) intern starting Sept. 12.

The RARE participant, Emma Guida, will help with the organization's efforts to revitalize the downtown area.

Dallas Mayor Brian Dalton wrote in an announcement to DDA members that Guida is interested "in the dynamics of food as a major element in our culture." He said those skills are a nice match for the area.

"This is particularly so as we expand our efforts in developing a strong connection to the wine and microbrew industries so important to this region plus food venues in general." and making associations with the agricultural industries so historic and vital to our lives here," he wrote.

The Independence Downtown Association and Polk Rural Tourism Studio also will hire RARE interns.

Local filmmaker shows documentary

DALLAS — Justen Noll and JN Films will show "Verve," a unique take on documentary film on Aug. 31 at Faith Evangelical Free Church, 2290 E. Ellendale Ave., Dallas.

The premiere will be at 7 p.m. and admission is free. The event will include previews of upcoming films, viewing of a short film and a Q&A session with Verve filmmakers. Snacks and beverages will be provided. Verve uses actors to bring to life the stories told by the film's subjects. To see a trailer, go to <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=Poo44qtGrc0>.
