Yul Provancha has plans to turn the old warehouse building into a brewery.

BOOM TOWN BREWING

Independence business owner to open brewery

By Emily Mentzer

The Itemizer-Observer

INDEPENDENCE — The old warehouse building on South Main Street in Independence called out to Yul Provancha years ago.

“I drove by the building for 20 years and just said, ‘wow, I want that building,’” Provancha recalled. “When I bought the building, I just knew it would be different and it would be good for the community.”

With help from a $100,000 Oregon Main Street grant, Provancha is going to turn the building into Boom Town Brewery. He hopes to open the new brewery and restaurant before the Fourth of July 2018.

“The building just kind of said, ‘Hey, make me into a brewery,’” Provancha said. “I probably wouldn’t have done it if it wasn’t in my blood.”

His family comes from France and Scotland, he said. The French side is a line of winemakers, but the Scots were brewers.

“My mom has the heritage of beer, and my dad’s side is the heritage of wine” Provancha said. “So I’ve been brewing and making wine for 25 to 30 years.”

The building will include a full-service, family restaurant with outdoor seating.

“We’re going to make beer, kombucha, ciders,” he said. “We also have two different levels of rooftop seating. You can be outside, look at the stars and watch performances down in the little amphitheater.”

In the courtyard, Provancha is building a 13-foot waterfall and living wall, as well as an amphitheater for performances and productions.

“We’re hoping to have live music daily,” he said. “It will be the first brewery in Independence and Monmouth.” In fact, it will be in a category of its own, as most breweries are not located in a downtown area, said Imani Hall, Independence Downtown Association manager.

“A lot of them are in industrial areas,” he said. “They’re great breweries, great locations, great places to eat, but they’re destinations. You have to go there to go to the brewery.”

Having a brewery downtown will benefit other businesses, Hall said.

“People will maybe go to the brewery, then maybe go to the movie theater, then maybe go downtown and get a late-night snack,” Hall said. “We think there’s a lot of possibilities having this brewery downtown.”

It also will help connect the north and south parts of downtown, he said.

“Pretty much from Mecanico to Umpqua Bank is the main portion of our Main Street; however, city hall got built farther along on Main Street, farther south,” Hall said. “The goal in doing that was to help extend Main Street to city hall. We think this is a key location on the southern part of Main Street and will bring activity to that area, as well as development.”

The grant money, through the Oregon Main Street program, part of Oregon Heritage, which is part of the Oregon Parks and Recreation Department, is a reimbursement grant, meaning Provancha may be reimbursed for renovations.

“He has to have the money already,” Hall explained. “We’ll reimburse him once a needed renovation is done.”

NEWS IN BRIEF

CASA receives grants for staffing

DALLAS — CASA of Polk County received three grants recently and will use them to add a development coordinator and volunteer manager.

The Oregon Community Foundation awarded CASA a three-year, $45,000 grant to help pay for a development coordinator to help with event and fundraiser planning, among other duties.

CASA had already hired Tammy Noon to fill the position. Two grants, a two-year, $32,000 award from the Collins Foundation and a $25,000 grant from the Bill Healy Foundation will pay for a volunteer manager. The position will be filled July 1 and focuses on recruitment, training and overseeing volunteers.

The two new staff members are added to Executive Director Katey Axtell and Katie Rose, the program administrative assistant.

“This wonderful building, we are almost outgrowing it,” Axtell said of the office the program moved into two years ago.

Grants support health care programs

SALEM — The Oregon Community Foundation board of directors approved more than $631,000 in grants to northern Willamette Valley nonprofits in May.

Grants awarded included ones to support health care programs, education, and youth and families, such as $90,000 to Polk County Family & Community Outreach to support Mid-Valley Parenting, providing coordination and delivery of parenting education programs in Polk and Yamhill counties.

Other Polk organizations receiving grants from the foundation include:

Family Building Blocks — $25,000 to create a fully operational relief nursery in Polk County to prevent child abuse and neglect by providing home visiting and therapeutic classroom programs for at-risk families.

Marion-Polk Food Share Inc. — $30,000 for a new refrigerated delivery truck and an electric pallet jack to improve the flow of emergency food to thousands of food insecure families in Marion and Polk counties.

Farm Bureau seeks calendar entries

SALEM — The Oregon Farm Bureau invites the public to capture agriculture scenes and submit their photos for the 2018 Oregon’s Bounty Calendar contest.

The calendar celebrates the diversity of ag: products, people, cultivation, harvest, landscape — anything that depicts the beauty, culture, enjoyment, technology, or tradition of family farming and ranching across all parts of the state.

The deadline is Sept. 15. For more information: Anne Marie Moss, annemarie@oregonfb.org, or 503-399-1701, ext. 313.
