OBITUARIES

A career with the ODFW began in October 1962. He worked in the research division on steelhead on the Deschutes River, then in management, serving first as assistant supervisor of the northwest region in Corvallis, and the final seven years as regional supervisor of the southwest region in Roseburg, retiring in 1992.

As well as his professional career, he farmed and enjoyed gardening, plant propagation, fishing, hunting, wood working, wine making, Sudoku, reading and traveling.

He and Laura have visited all the continents except Africa and Australia, as well as “boondocking” on the beaches of Baja, Mexico, to fish in the Sea of Cortez for several years.

For many years they camped at fishing parks in Bandon and Waldport to fish for salmon. He was a life member of the American Fisheries Society, a 55-year Knight of Columbus and a member of St. Philip Parish in Dallas.

Jim met his wife, Laura Schmitz, in the second grade and married her in 1957.

Four children followed: Donald, Michael and Mark reside in Monmouth, and Anne lives in McMinnville with her husband Bruce. Surviving Jim are his wife, children, brother Leroy, of Madras, numerous cousins, and aunt Margaret Bauman. He was preceded in death by his parents and brothers Richard and Ronald.

Jim was a good man — generous, faithful and committed to his Catholic faith. He participated in a study involving polycythemia vera in the hope of aiding in finding a cure.

A memorial Mass, with rosary preceding at 10:30 a.m., will be offered at 11 a.m. on Saturday, Aug. 5, at St. Philip Catholic Church, 825 SW Mill St., Dallas. Contributions in his memory may be made to Father Taaffe Homes, St. Philip Church, or charity of choice.

Arrangements are in the care of Farnstrom Mortuary.

Memories and condolences may be shared at FarnstromMortuary.com.

Casey Kevin Mode

April 14, 1962 – July 19, 2017

Casey Kevin Mode died of complications of diabetes and congestive heart failure.

He was born in Dallas on April 14, 1962, to Floyd and Carolyn Mode.

He attended high school at Central in Independence.

He lived the majority of his life in Buena Vista, McMinnville and the Amity area.

Casey had a variety of outdoor jobs — logging, roofing, general construction, and most recently he worked for both Fitts and Setniker farms.

He was handy with a hammer and used his natural talent in various remodel and building projects, but his greatest project of love was the house he built for his mom and grandmother.

Casey loved the outdoors and shared that love with his children.

When camping, you could always count on him to be the first one awake and have a fire built.

He was the most peaceful when he could be outdoors on the river with his boat or at the ocean.

Casey was a big man with a big heart laced with his own brand of humor.

He is survived by his mother Carolyn Mode; former wife Paula Mode; his three children Caralee (Van) Greenwood, Travis (Allyson) Mode and Kyle Mode; his three siblings Brian Mode, Kristina (Steve) Grimsbo, Rebecca (David) Mode-Stone; and many nieces and nephews.

Casey's life will be celebrated privately. Farnstrom Mortuary is handling arrangements.

Independence receives grant

Itemizer-Observer staff report

INDEPENDENCE — The city of Independence announced that the Oregon Legislature awarded the city a $1 million grant for further development of Independence Landing.

The money, which will be paid out of lottery bonds, will go toward development of the lower terrace park section of the project, including a hard-surface trail with a stairway and ramp connection to a plaza overlook on the upper terrace.

The money will be used to finish the park, economic director Shawn Irvine said, installing a covered picnic pavilion and deck overlooking the river.

“We’re also going to develop improved paddler’s access at the end of C Street, incorporating part of Riverview Park,” he said.

Irvine said the city hopes to leverage the remaining money with additional grants to complete the entire re-design and redevelopment of Riverview Park as laid out in the Parks and Open Space Master Plan.

Mayor John McArdle said that Independence Landing and the development of the 2.5 miles of riverfront owned by the city has been 20 years in the making.

“You can see the results of these investments around you today, and others can see them, too,” he said. “I want to thank Rep. Paul Evans and the entire Legislature for recognizing the work that has been done in Independence, and for their willingness to invest in a small, upstart community like ours.”

Cari Tebault

Cari is survived by her husband of 26 years, Jason

Tebault; daughter Justine; son Trevor; and three grandchildren; parents Art and Pam Miller; sisters Jodi (Bob) Nelson and Toni (Tim) Goertzen; four nephews; and two nieces; in-laws Pattie and Larry Chime; brothers-in-law Johnathon (Ashley), Andy and Chris (Ariella).

Cari was born in Vancouver, Wash., and raised in Dallas, graduating in 1988, where she was a member of the first DHS softball team.

She enlisted in the United States Navy, serving as a quarter master aboard the USS Salvor while stationed in Hawaii.

There, she met and married the love of her life, Jason, on Sept. 15, 1990.

They eventually transferred to Florida, living in Key West, finally settling in Panama City Beach.

Cari had so much love to share and never knew a stranger.

Her outlook was unique, fun and, for each of us, very personal.

She boasted about being frugal and loved the “Art of the Deal,” but had a very generous nature and gave freely.

Though absent, she is very near, still loved, still missed, and dear to us. Forever loved and forever missed.

Glen Louis Sedivy

Jan. 2, 1957 – July 18, 2017

Glen Louis Sedivy, 60, of Vancouver, Wash., passed away peacefully on Tuesday, July 18.

He was the husband of Rose Sedivy and father to James and Kysa.

He was the youngest child of the late Edwin and Winona Sedivy, of Monmouth.

Glen was an active person who went for the gusto in life and took pleasure in finding the details of excellence.

He loved his gourmet food and splendid wines. His gardening skills were the envy of his neighbors.

His curiosity led him to explore many subjects as diverse as curing meats, to his keen eye for classic automobiles, his passion for historical novels — especially those about the British Navy — and even an interest in mason beekeeping.

Very few people on earth have seen every episode of Perry Mason; there's now one less.

In a similar vein, few people could say they played the piano, the French horn and mellophone, which Glen expertly played in high school, college, and then in community orchestras (The Honolulu Community Orchestra and the One More Time Around Again Band). He was a natural musician.

As his friends can attest, he was a moderately capable golfer, but his zest for that sport, in fact for life, was infectious.

He grew up in his family home in Monmouth and attended Central High School in Independence.

Glen was a proud graduate of the University of Oregon (Go Ducks!) where he met Rose and received both his Bachelor of Science and Masters of Business Administration degrees.

His professional career started in Turlock, Calif., with Rodger's Foods; then Oahu, Hawaii, working as an analyst for Dole Pineapple. He returned to Vancouver to work for Pacific Telecom and completed his professional career at Portland

State University, from which he retired.

In addition to his wife and children, Glen is survived by his brother Dean Sedivy (Connie), of Monmouth; sister Nancy Boerem (Steve), of Florida; and grandchild Freya Marie Sedivy.

A celebration of Glen's life will be held at Our Lady of Lourdes School Gymnasium beginning at noon on Saturday, Aug. 19. The address is: 4701 NW Franklin St., Vancouver, WA 98663.

Memorial contributions may be made in Glen's name to The American Diabetes Association (In Memory tab); Our Lady of Lourdes School (lourdesvan.org); or the Humane Society for Southwest Washington.
