ronine Dallas people.

Labor Day was appropriately observed in Dallas. The exercises lasted from 7 s. m. until 6 p. m., and consisted principally of picking hops, hauling wheat, sawing lumber, building houses, digging waterworks ditches, ballasting track on the new railroad, grading the courthouse square, and getting prune driers in readiness for operation. Instrumental music was furnished at the opening and closing of the program by the steam whistles at the sawmill, planing mill, tannery and flouring mill. nearing completion.
