TOO MANY AMENDMENTS

Few, if Any, Citizens Understood All Laws Proposed by Initiative.

Whatever the outcome of the election may otherwise be, this matter of proposed amendments to the constitution should be taken up and given serious consideration. In addition to an enormous number of candidates, the voters were called upon to vote on eleven different questions of proposed laws, amendments to the constitution and referendum petitions, the title to none of which was stated with a definiteness that made clear its meaning.

That all the people could have voted intelligently on these questions it is ridiculous to assume. That many intelligent citizens, who flatter themselves that they always are completely abreast of the times, failed to weigh all of these matters is entirely likely. Indeed, it may be said, it almost required a specialist to reach clearly definite conclusions on the merits of all of these questions presented to the general consideration of the voters.

It is quite evident from this election that: First, the title to every one of these proposed amendments or petitions should be made so definite that no one will be left in doubt as to what they really propose; second, that there should be more definite limitations to the number of questions submitted so that all people may be able to vote upon them with becoming intelligence. —Evening Telegram.

How to Break Up a Cold.

It may be a surprise to many to learn that a severe cold can be completely broken up in one or two days' time. The first symptoms of a cold are a dry, loud cough, a profuse watery discharge from the nose, and a thick, white coating on the tongue. When Chamberlain's cough remedy is taken every hour in the first appearance of these symptoms, it counteracts the effect of the cold and restores the system to a healthy condition within a day or two.
