Will Build Sewer.
 The ordinance authorizing the construction of the Oak Street sewer was introduced and read first time at the council meeting, Monday night. No remonstrances were made against the improvement by the property owners interested, and it only remains for the council to carry out the work. The sewer will cost about $1000, and will accommodate a large number of people.
 H. A. Hinshaw, the new traveling freight agent of the Harriman lines in Oregon, was in Dallas, Friday, interviewing the local business men and shippers. Mr. Hinshaw is a young man of pleasing address, and possesses the same gentle art of making friends as did his predecessor, Mr. Harvey E. Lounsbury. This was Mr. Hinshaw's first visit to Dallas, and he expressed himself as very favorably impressed by the town's present activity and bright prospects for future growth and prosperity. He says Dallas is one of the most important shipping points in Western Oregon, more freight being handled here than in many towns of twice the population.
