The worthy couple will begin house-keeping on their farm two miles south of Dallas.
 The Saturday night dancing party given at Woodman Hall by the Carnation Club was thoroughly enjoyed by the members and their friends. About 40 couples were present, and dancing was indulged in until a few minutes before midnight. A seven-piece orchestra rendered 18 of the latest popular selections and the musicians received many greatly appreciated compliments for the excellence of the program. The club will give parties every other Saturday night during the remainder of the winter season.
 Judge J. L. Collins, of this city, recently sent a fine collection of Autumn leaves to his daughter, Ora, who is teaching school in Centerville, South Dakota. Miss Collins writes her father that these beautiful specimens of nature's handiwork were greatly admired by all who saw them. One maple leaf measuring 13 by 21 inches attracted particular attention, and it was with difficulty that Miss Collins made her visitors believe that the leaf was not a product of man's ingenuity. The young lady says trees are very scarce in the northern country and the autumn woods lack the brilliant color so noticeable in the Oregon forests after the first frosts.
