DALLAS, OREGON, APRIL 26, 1907

The way to build up Dallas is to patronize Dallas people.

A NEEDED INDUSTRY.

Every train running out of Dallas carries milk and cream for creameries at distant points. This is a condition of affairs for which there is not the slightest excuse. Dallas is one of the most favorably located towns in Oregon for a first-class creamery, and every drop of milk produced in the surrounding country should be manufactured into butter right here at home. The creamery business is a profitable industry—profitable both to the farmer and the manufacturer—and a first-class plant, managed in a skillful and business-like way, would add greatly to the prosperity of Dallas and the tributary country.

For the past few years, the people of Dallas have devoted all their energy to the development of the lumber industry, and the splendid results attained speak more eloquently than words for their ability and enterprise along this line. By taking up one thing at a time, they have accomplished desired results, and they are now reaping the reward of their labors. Having accomplished the greater undertakings, they should now turn their attention to the lesser industries. The timber will not last always. When the forests shall have been cut away, it will be necessary to depend upon other resources for support. The dairying and stock-raising industry will then take the lead in Western Polk county and all the vast region lying between Dallas and the Pacific ocean. If Dallas is to maintain her commercial supremacy then, the time to strike is now.

The OBSERVER believes that the business men of Dallas and the farmers of the surrounding country should get together and establish a co-operative creamery or cheese factory, or both, in this city. The amount of capital necessary to start a first-class creamery would not be large and the stock for such a concern would be readily subscribed. As to the success of such an enterprise, there can be no question. If we can ship our cream at a profit for others to handle, we can make more profit by handling it ourselves. Let's do it.

Polk county's goats again take the lead for producing the finest mohair, as the pool of 40,000 pounds sold at Dallas recently went for 30 cents a pound, or three-fourths of a cent higher than any bid offered at any other place this season.—Salem Statesman.

The high price paid for the Polk county mohair is one of the direct results of the annual goat show held at Dallas. These shows have encouraged the farmers to get rid of their inferior animals and to breed their flocks up to a high standard of excellence. The mohair in the Polk county pool more nearly meets the requirements of the manufacturers than any produced elsewhere in the state, hence the high price the buyers are willing to pay to secure it. The goat breeders who are working earnestly and intelligently to produce the best possible grade of hair are adding materially to the wealth and prosperity of Polk county.

The publishers of the Eugene Guard are putting out one of the brightest and newsiest daily papers in Oregon. The office is equipped with a linotype and a two-revolution Cranston news press, and the mechanical work on the paper is strictly first-class. The Guard is a live paper in a live town.

To Salem by Automobile.

Bert Dennis has purchased a fine new automobile and will establish a twice-a-day passenger schedule between Dallas and Salem. The machine is a 10-horse-power Reo, of the very latest make, and will carry three persons besides the chauffeur. The run from Dallas to Salem can easily be made in an hour, but when carrying passengers Mr. Dennis will make the trip in about an hour and 30 minutes for the sake of safety. The time schedule will be announced in a few days. If sufficient encouragement is given the enterprise, Mr. Dennis will put on a large touring car later in the season.

VALUE OF A GOOD NAME

Norris & Rowe's Circus Enjoys Confidence of Amusement-Loving Public.

The value of a good name as a trade mark in winning the confidence and esteem of large numbers of people cannot be overestimated and was never better exemplified than in the case of the well-known showmen, Norris & Rowe. Each season this really meritorious organization comes to us again, and we commend the honest policy which gives more than is promised. The present tour is known as the "Jubilee Souvenir Season," as it marks the twentieth year of the partnership of Norris & Rowe. Costly souvenirs will be distributed to every one, as Norris & Rowe wish to acknowledge the compliment of many past season's excellent patronage of the public that has always greeted their efforts so generously. Time and again have other circuses with false names invaded the territory of Norris & Rowe, but somehow the public was quick to choose the real from the false and the well known western showmen soon had the field to themselves again. At Dallas, Monday, April 29.
