Value of a Good Boar.

A little circumstance happened here last season that changed several farmers who had always thought a grade boar was good enough. A neighbor of mine had always used a grade. He was always careful to buy a good individual sired by a registered boar. He had a fairly good bunch of grade sows that had raised him a litter of pigs each, but they were uneven and did not fatten readily. I told him I was confident that if he would breed those sows to a good registered boar, with a good pedigree back of him, he would more than save the price of the boar on the first bunch of pigs. He finally purchased a pig from me, giving me, as he said, more for it than he ever paid for two before. He sold his fat hogs. the get of this boar, last winter, and one day he came over and said: "Branch, guess what the boar'did for me. He sired me a bunch of pigs that topped the Kansas City market, and that is what I have never done before. No grades for me." - C. E. Branch in Western Swine Breeder.

Give the Foals Water. It is as necessary that the foals have an abundance of pure water as it is to feed them liberally, says Horse Breeder. They should be watered at least three times every day and should be given plenty of time to drink. The stalls should be well ventilated and well lighted.
