The Name in the Hat.
 In the fifties of the last century there were two young lawyers, Gould and Robinson, practicing in the court at Wiscasset, the shire town of Lincoln county, Me., who were noted for their keen wit and ingenuity in examining witnesses and also for their many severe thrusts at each other.
 On one occasion, when Robinson had finished an unusually able argument for his client, containing some stinging allusions to the opposing counsel, Gould, by whom he was followed and who retalliated, Robinson was seen to take a card, write something on it, which was later found to be the Latin words caput vacuum (empty head), and drop it into Gould's hat on the table.
 Gould's curiosity sent him immediately to investigate. Going to the table, he took the card from his hat, and found enough to be heard all over the courtroom, he read, "Caput vacuum."
 Turning to the judge, he said, "You honor, I claim the protection of the court." The judge replied, "You may state your case."
 Gould answered: "My case is this, your honor: I see my brother at my right has placed his name in my hat, and what can be his motive if not to claim it as his own? I claim your protection."
 The judge, with his face all smiles, answered, "Mr. Gould, you shall be protected."—Boston Herald.

G. B. Burbans Testifies After Four Years.
 G. B. Burbans, of Carlisle Center, N. Y., writes: "About four years ago I wrote you stating that I had been entirely cured of a severe kidney trouble by taking less than two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure. It entirely stopped the brick dust sediment, and pain and symptoms of kidney disease disappeared. I am glad to say that I have never had a return of any of those symptoms during the four years that have elapsed, and I am evidently cured to stay cured, and heartily recommend Foley's Kidney Cure to anyone suffering from kidney or bladder trouble."  is the popular cry throughout European countries; while in America, the cry of the present day is "Long live Dr. King's New Discovery, King of Throat and Lung Pains, Croup, Hoarseness, etc." It never fails to give immediate relief and to quickly cure a cough or cold." Mrs. Paine's opinion is shared by a majority of the inhabitants of this country. New Discovery cures weak lungs and sore throats after all other remedies have failed; and for coughs and colds it's the only sure cure. Guaranteed by Belt & Cherrington, Druggist. 50c and $1.00. If you keep this medicine on hand, you will never see anything else but smiles on his face. Mrs. S., Blackwell, Okla., writes: "My baby was peevish and fretful. Would not eat and I feared he would die. I used a bottle of White's Cream Vermifuge and he has not had a sick day since." Sold by Stafrin Drug Co.

The Charming Woman
 is not necessarily one of perfect form and features. Many a plain woman who could never serve as an artist's model, possesses those rare qualities that all the world admires; neatness, clear eyes, clean smooth skin and that sprightliness of step and action that accompany good health. SENSIBLE DUST PARLOR.
 An Ingenious Plan For Doing Away With the "Corner Dust Bath."
 It goes without saying that fowls cannot be successfully kept in confinement without having access to a dust bath. Especially is this true in the colder climates, where fowls are sometimes locked up in their houses for weeks at a time. The hens by "washing" themselves in the dust get rid of lice and all other forms of body vermin. In addition to that, it is thought that the irritation of the dust against the skin is grateful as well as beneficial to the fowl.
 In most well regulated poultry houses the dust bath is provided by nailing boards of the proper height diagonally across one corner of the pen. This answers the purpose very well, for the boards are always made so high that the birds cannot shake the dust over them. The great objection, however, to dust boxes in poultry houses, and one that has caused breeders a good deal of thought, is the effect that the constantly stirring dust has on the birds. There are some authorities who declare that the coughing and sneezing which are frequently mistaken for roup are really caused by the irritation of the fine dust particles against the delicate mucous membranes of the mouth and throat of the fowl.
 The illustration given herewith, which is taken from Reliable Poultry Journal, shows an excellent plan which was originated by a common sense poultryman. This "dust parlor" is built close up against one of the walls of the poultry house, with which it is connected by means of a square opening cut in each wall so that they come together when the dust parlor is put in place. The front of the dust parlor is provided with glass, so that there is plenty of sunshine, while there is no trouble in the poultry house proper from the dust, the small particles of which are liberated from the dust parlor by means of small holes in the fronts and ends.

Study Your Stock.
 A writer advises all growers to study the disposition of their stock. Some flocks are wilder than crows; others as tame as kittens. We imagine that it is the disposition of the handler that influences quiet among the poultry, says the Feather, rather than the disposition of the fowls themselves. Some can handle bees without protecting hands or face, while others are being continually stung when caring for the bees in a hive. It is the influence of the disposition of the handler that quiets the flock of poultry, bees or pigeons and makes them more contented, quiet and easily handled.

"Double Molting" Pullets.
 The common occurrence is for pullets beginning to lay in the late summer or early fall to lay at least several weeks or from that to several months, then quit laying and go through a partial molt before beginning again, says a writer in Farm-Poultry. Instances of old hens molting twice the same season occur quite frequently. Of the causes of these phenomena practically nothing is known. Their occurrence is so far from regular that ordinary observations have not yet suggested probable causes or rules of occurrence.

Value of Poultry Manure.
 Poultry manure, to keep so that it will not heat, should be mixed with finely sifted ashes, says American Poultry Journal. The value differs somewhat upon the use to be made of it. For instance, if wanted to be used for growing onions its value is high. We have known it to be sold at a dollar a barrel in some districts. For the growing of sweet corn it is also of great value, 60 to 75 cents a barrel having often been given.

When to Feed the Mash.
 Some poultrymen feed a mash in the morning just as soon as the hens are off the roost, some at noon and some at night, the last thing before the hens go to roost. Some feed none at all. The best time depends upon how you feed it. If you want to feed in quantity, feed at night. A large quantity fed in the morning makes the fowls lazy, and oftentimes they suffer for want of exercise.

Two Males in One Pen.
 A breeder of Light Brahmas told me not long since, says a writer in Farm-Poultry, that he was getting extra good results by using an old male and a young one in each breeding pen, putting the birds together before the young one was mature. He found that they interbred less than birds of the same age.

Everyday Food Regimen.
 Everyday food to be recommended is warm mash of some sort in the morning, finely cut up green stuff at midday and at roosting time grain and as much variety as possible, given alternately each evening, but only one kind at a meal.

Hamburgs as Layers.
 Hamburgs of any variety are equally as good layers as Brown Leghorns, but their eggs are much smaller.

GOOD WORK
 Done Daily in Dallas.
 Nearly every reader has heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. Their good work still continues, and our citizens are constantly adding endorsement by public testimony. No better proof of merit can be had than the experience of friends and neighbors. Read this case:
 Mrs. N. Swagert, of 819 Garden St., Pendleton, Ore., says: "Both my husband and myself have used Doan's Kidney Pills with most gratifying results. Mr. Swagert was troubled quite severely with his back and kidneys for a long time, and nothing ever helped him as Doan's Kidney Pills have. I have known of the healing and curative power of this remedy for some time, and found that a few doses would quickly remove any lameness or pain in the back caused by kidney derangement.
