FRIEND TO FRIEND.

The personal recommendations of people who have been cured of coughs and colds by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have done more than all else to make it a staple article of trade and commerce over a large part of the civilized world.

AN INSTANCE.

Lucy Suddreth, of Lenoir, N. C., had been troubled with a very bad cough for over a year. She says: "A friend brought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, brought it to me and insisted that I should take it. I did so and to my surprise it helped me. Four bottles of it cured me of my cough."

Fannie Wood's Poultry Talk.

If you must feed new corn, go slow. Loose feathers that gather in the corners of the poultry house these days furnish hiding places for lice. A very simple remedy that will check roup when the flocks begin to sneeze is turpentine. Rub on the head and neck and swab the throat with the same.

There are pecks of trouble ahead for the one who neglects to treat fowls for roup in the first stages. Roup in the beginning is nothing more or less than cold.

The late hatched pullets are worth some little time and attention. They will return a good profit in eggs next spring and summer for care given and feed consumed.

A Good Goose Cross.

If you wish to have what are known as fancy table geese, a cross mating of a wild Canada gander with either an African or a Toulouse or an Embden goose will produce a fine quality of roasting geese. These will not do, however, to use as producers in the future. All produced in this way should be killed and used the first season, keeping out the mating of the Canada gander with any of the other geese, for when they are once well mated they should never be separated, but kept for the special purpose of growing what are known as mongrel geese.

Don't Disturb Pigeons Too Often.

Frank W. DeLancey, in Poultry Success, says don't be overhastily cleaning and scraping out your loft. Pigeon droppings are not detrimental to the health of your birds. Every time you clean a loft you are disturbing your birds. Use plenty of air slaked lime on the floors, and give the birds tobacco stems with which to build their nests. Occasionally put tobacco dust in the nest boxes.

Locating Poultry Yards.

There is no hard and fast law that yards shall extend to the south. Most of them do because the houses face the south, and it is more convenient to have the yards in front of the houses. It is all right to locate the yards where the conditions make it seem best to locate them, on any or all sides of the house.

Banding Pigeons.

Where it is difficult to get the bands on the legs of pigeons, a little soap applied to the leg may help the operation.

The Heavy Hog Again.

Two very popular English breeds of swine are winning their way into the great corn belt of the west. The hog that wins his way into the farmer's love is the one that pays a profit. Large Yorkshires are increasing in numbers in Wisconsin, Minnesota, northern Iowa, Nebraska and South Dakota. I have found a dozen new herds in northern Illinois and Wisconsin. They are giving good satisfaction. The Essex is thriving in the heart of Illinois corn sections, and many farmers are using pure bred boars to cross on grade Poland-China sows. The Essex is offered them.

LARGE WHITE BOAR.

sex pears stamp an individuality on their pigs that tells the experienced hog man at a glance where they come from.

Yorkshire boars get over 70 per cent white pigs, which speaks well for their breeding propensities. The Yorkshires and the Essex are said by all who have tried them to make great breeders and good mothers. They are meritorious without doubt and find a fair market, writes a Nebraska correspondent to Country Gentleman, in which the accompanying cut also occurs.

Light Hogs Leave the Pedestal.

Hog market antics have been amazing recently. Forecasting events twenty-four hours in advance is well nigh impossible. Just what packers mean is hard to divine. One day they want nothing but light hogs; the following session finds them clamorous for cheap stuff. One thing is certain—light hogs are about to leave the pedestal, and within a short time the premium will be awarded to medium weight barrows, 220 to 250 pounds, barrows that now cut but little figure in the movement. Light hogs have had their day. Eastern growers are cutting them loose freely, and a big crop of spring pigs is coming along in the west. Old corn being scarce, new grain will be used to force them, and cholera scares will send them at light weight to the stockyards by the thousand. Already the yards have been flooded by sixty to seventy pound pigs that were sacrificed for no other reason than fear of mortality. If the big run of sows which has been in progress for several months past should suddenly stop, weighty hogs would sell much higher, concludes the Breeder's Gazette, Chicago.

Less Quality, More Hog.

During the last few weeks we have given considerable attention to the study of the swine exhibited at several state fairs in the great central west. We observed closely the kind of hogs that carried away the premiums, and we also took some pains to inquire into the type of hog which was most keenly in demand, says Iowa Homestead. The demand that comes from the average farmer who is looking for pure bred males to use on grade herds is for a hog that shows a little more ruggedness, rather greater length and with heavier bone than those that have been winning at some of our fairs. We found that men who had for sale rather large, growthy young stuff were disposing of their surplus much more rapidly than those who were offering hogs of the finer type. When you go with your refinement beyond a certain point you are bound to injure the profitable qualities of your foundation stock, and that is why the rather larger, coarser type is so popular with the farmer trade.

For Corn Feeding.

A common practice with farmers in feeding corn to cattle is to pick the small ears. After feeding for some time, especially if fed for market, the cattle often refuse to eat. This is caused by feeding too large pieces, which make the mouth sore. By the use of a device like the one shown in the accompanying cut no trouble of this kind will result, as the corn can be cut in small pieces, says a Farm and Fireside correspondent.

The knife can be made from an old buggy spring and pivoted to one end of a bench. A board with a slot cut in it is nailed to the other end, which serves as a guide for the handle end of the knife. The slot is sawed out just wide enough to let the knife move freely.

Weaning the Pigs.

Little pigs should be encouraged to eat as early an age as possible. The feeding off of a part of the pen in such a way as to make it possible for the young ones to get into the enclosure, but impossible for the sow, and placing therein a flat, shallow trough containing sweet, new whole milk will be found of great value in this connection. The most scrupulous cleanliness must be observed, however, or serious digestive troubles are likely to result. In a short time skim milk may be gradually substituted.

LIVE STOCK NOTES.

One day when the autumn leaves were shimmering with the raw, damp wind I chanced to ride past a pasture where a young calf lay stretched out stiff and cold. The poor little thing had been forced to stay outdoors all night in a cold rain, and it had chilled to death. The owner was too indifferent to even know it was dead, remarks a writer in Kinball's Dairy Farmer.

Peanuts and Pork.

Two carloads of hogs, fattened on Spanish peanuts, were sold at Cameron, Tex., recently. They brought 6 cents a pound, and the feeders, Messrs. Barmore & Atkinson, report that the crops of nuts brought them good returns when marketed in the porkers, says Farm and Ranch.

Caustic Comment.

Concerning the horse show held at Syracuse, N. Y., under the auspices of the state fair commission a Country Gentleman writer remarks: While the hackney exhibits were unusually good, the showing made in the coach classes was little short of farcical. If the coach classes were unsatisfactory the draft classes were disgraceful. It seems strange that in a state containing the foremost market in the world for heavy draft horses not a single Percheron, Clydesdale, English Shire or French draft horse should be entered in the class for stallions and three of their get or in the class for stallions four years old or over. Two long and crooked legged blacks appeared in the three-year-old stallion class, and they constituted the only exhibits in all the stallion classes. In six heavy draft horse classes there were but four entries, and they were of a very inferior quality.

Wormy Corn and Blind Staggers.

Worm dirt in corn has been shown to produce quite serious results when very much of it is present, according to G. C. Wheeler of the Kansas experiment station. He says in Kansas Farmer that quite an epidemic of blind staggers has been traced to wormy corn which had been fed to horses, and it would not be advisable to feed corn which is very largely affected in this way.

Dairy Association Meeting.

The Iowa Dairyman's association will meet at Des Moines Dec. 4 to 8. W. B. Johnson of Des Moines is the secretary.

New England Milk Producer.

The producer of milk and its products in New England is closer to the consumer than in other sections. Few New England dairymen are located so far away from a center as to be out of reach of the milk car to the city, the cream gatherer for some butter factory or cream shipping station or the cheese factory.
