CURE YOUR KIDNEYS

Why will people continue to suffer the agonies of kidney complaint, backache, urinary disorders, lameness, headache, languor, Why allow themselves to become chronic invalids, when a certain cure is offered them?

Doan's Kidney Pills is the remedy to use, because it gives to the kidneys the help they need to perform their work.

If you have any, even one, of the symptoms of kidney diseases, cure yourself now, before diabetes, dropsy or Bright's disease sets in.

Mrs. L. Holson, of 717 Aura St., Pendleton, Ore., says: "I just as enthusiastically endorse Doan's Kidney Pills today as I did nearly three years ago. They relieved me of kidney trouble which had bothered me for a considerable time. There was aching pains across the small of my back and down through my kidneys, which were aggravated by colds which settled in the back and loins and caused an awful lameness. This was my condition when I began taking Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy banished the backache and pains through the loins, regulated the kidney secretions and removed every symptom of the trouble. From that day to this there has been no recurrence, and I give Doan's Kidney Pills all the credit. I consider them to be the best kidney remedy procurable and recommend them whenever the occasion arises."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

FRIEND TO FRIEND.

The personal recommendations of people who have been cured of coughs and colds by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have done more than all else to make it a staple article of trade and commerce over a large part of the civilized world.

AN INSTANCE.

Lucy Suddreth, of Lenoir, N. C., had been troubled with a very bad cough for over a year. She says: "A friend brought me a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, brought it to me and insisted that I should take it. I did so and to my surprise it helped me. Four bottles of it cured me of my cough."

AN ODD BUSINESS.

Twenty Thousand Tea Sets Let Out Daily in London.

Judging by the calculations of those who are prospering in the trade, there are every working day some 20,000 people who in London borrow for a small sum tea services, knives and forks and plates and dishes of all kinds, and on Saturdays and Sundays this number is greatly exceeded, for in nearly all cases are such articles procured in an extra degree in order that friends may be entertained.

And the losses of those who let such articles out on hire are extraordinarily few, for the dealers soon get to know their customers. On one point nearly all the hirers insist, no matter how humble they may be, and that is that the teapot shall be a shony and substantial looking one, and, for the sake of the quality of the brew, it is said to relate that metal teapots are generally preferred.

Thousands of the borrowers are as regular as the clock in their requirements on a Sunday, marriageable daughters whose intended husbands are always entertained at tea on each recurring Sunday accounting for this. Again, far more tea sets and the like are let out in summer than in winter, for relations from the country arriving by excursions have to be entertained during the former season. In some cases in southeast London even chimney ornaments, antimacassars and extra chairs are provided with the knives and forks and spoons, and it is curious to know that the greatest demand in the way of this sort of extras is for smart curtains and for bright floor rugs, which articles make a good show for the small amount demanded for them by the hirer.—Pearson's Weekly.

Fox Hunters and the Farmer.

Fox hunting is not, nor should any one endeavor to make it, an exclusive sport. The small farmer over whose land you may gallop once a year feels that he has quite as much right in the field as the president of your hunt club. And so has he.

In most clubs every means is exerted to prevent the sport from being considered exclusive. In this respect the hunt clubs are placed in somewhat of a quandary, however. Their meets are public fixtures, and every one is welcome who is well mounted and can ride. But many irresponsible persons who cannot ride and whose horses go through the fences rather than over them flock to popular meets. The result is that the damage they do to fences and crops in the ground is scored against the club and must either be paid for in hard cash or in hard feeling, which is far worse.—Outing.

It Was a Pity.

A member of the committee of a certain swimming club is anything but popular with his colleagues. Until recently the fact did not appear to trouble him a great deal. On the eve of the annual aquatic sports, however, the unpopular one made a startling discovery and at once brought the matter before his fellow members.

"I have discovered a dastardly plot, Mr. Chairman," he began. "Certain of the competitors have conspired to throw me in the river tomorrow, and—"

"Can ye swim?" eagerly interrupted a braw Scot on the committee.

"Of course I can swim, but—"

"Man," murmured the interrupter, "but that's a peety!"—Scottish American.

His Bootjack.

A well known lawyer and writer, a resident of Oneida county, N. Y., who has long since passed away, used to tell a joke on himself, says a Utica paper. His story was to the effect that he called for a bootjack at a country hotel at which he stopped. Now, this lawyer and writer had very large feet, and the hostler to whom he made the request, after casting a glance at the big boots, exclaimed: "Why, man, it isn't a bootjack you want for those. You need the fork of the road!"

GOLDFISH.

The Proper Way to Care For These Pretty Household Pets.

Goldfish are the cleanest and least troublesome of pets. A quart of water to a fish is sufficient. A medium sized globe will accommodate four fish and, containing some shells and a growing plant, which can be bought of the fish fancier, makes a very pretty ornament for the room. The water must be changed about once a week in cool and twice in hot weather. With a cup I gently dip out the fish, one at a time, and put them in a bowl of fresh water, which I have tried with my fingers to be sure it is of the same temperature. They can stand cold better than heat. Then the globe and shells must be scoured and the plant rinsed.

After the shells and plant have been returned and the globe refilled the fish can be put back the same as taken out, and they show their appreciation of being at home again. I have fed mine once a day for nearly a year on oat flakes, about two to a fish, and they flourish on their diet. They soon learn to come to the top and accept food from my fingers. They should be fed nothing else, except fish food, as meat and bread are apt to sour the water. If when cleaning the globe I find particles of food among the shells, I do not feed them quite so much. They must not have more than they will eat, as it makes the water cloudy. The intelligence they manifest seems wonderful to me.

One usually rules the "globe," and it is not always the largest. I have a little tyrant too greedy to let others eat until he has been served, and he will chase one of his mates twice his size. Goldfish repay what little trouble they cause. They are not especially suitable for children, as they do not thrive so well when tampered with. Let them live in their own way and they will be happy.—Good Housekeeping.

Turtles Ruin Vines.

"One of our colonists," says an Algiers paper, "recently noticed that his vines had been gnawed around the roots, and, resolving to ascertain the cause, he went at night into the vineyard and soon heard a noise which was so strange that for a moment he thought it was of supernatural origin.

"Having lighted a lamp, however, he discovered that it was made by an army of turtles, which was slowly making its way from the river to the vineyard. The mystery was now solved, for the turtles no sooner entered the vineyard than they began to ravage the vines. Summoning some laborers, the owner finally succeeded in getting rid of the turtles, but in order to guard against further assaults he was obliged to erect a wall around the vineyard."

Small Change in Abyssinia.

For small change in Abyssinia a peculiar "coin" is employed. This is no other than bars of hard, crystallized salt, about ten inches long and two and a half inches square, slightly tapering toward the end. People are very particular about the standard of fineness of the currency. If it does not ring like metal when struck with the finger nail or if it is cracked or chipped, they will not take it. It is a token of affection when friends meet to give each other a lick of their respective "coins," and in this way the value of the bar is decreased. Smaller change than a bar of salt is sometimes needed, and then the natives have recourse to cartridges. Three cartridges pass for one bar of salt.

A Curious Echo.

"Fellow citizens," thundered the impassioned orator, bringing his fist down hard on the table, "what, I ask again, is our country coming to? And the echo answers, 'What?'"

"Pardon me, sir," interposed a mild looking man in the audience, rising to his feet. "Did I understand your question to be 'What is our country coming to?'"

"Yes, sir."

"And you say the echo answers, 'What?'"

"That is what I said, sir."

"Then there's something wrong with the acoustics of this building," said the mild man, shaking his head in a perplexed way and sitting down again.

A Changed Man.

A Scotchman had reached the summit of his ambitions, says Everybody's Magazine, in attaining to the managerial bench. The honor seemed to him a great one, and he tried to live up to it.

With his head high in the air he swaggered along till he went bolt up against a cow, which had not the manners to get out of the way, but continued to browse by the roadside in mild unconcern.

"Mon," cried the indignant owner, "mind my cow!"

"Woman," he replied, with fine dignity, "I'm no longer a mon. I'm a baillie."

The Willy Barber.

A gentleman who had been traveling in France related that in Paris the barber who was shaving him stepped two or three times upon the side of his foot. At last the customer called out:

"Please don't do that any more. I have a corn."

"Exactly what I was trying to find out, monsieur," said the barber blandly. "We have an excellent preparation for removing corns, for sale at a franc per bottle."
