Ivan Smith, foreman of the Willamette Valley sawmill, accompanied by Mrs. Smith and two children, returned Tuesday evening from Portland, where he had undergone an operation for appendicitis. The operation was quite successful and Mr. Smith will probably be sufficiently recovered to resume his work in a short time.

Dallas is again without a night-watchman. No blame can be attached to the council for refusing to employ an officer, as it will be necessary to cut every possible expense until a higher tax levy can be made next year. However, as little street and crosswalk work will be done by the city this summer, it would seem like the council could afford to come to the rescue by putting the day marshal on the night shift. Please think it over, gentlemen.
