A banana peel on the sidewalk is a nuisance and the man who steps on it usually tumbles to the fact. I think it must be the banana in the brain that causes a fellow to make so many slips. I know I have bananas on the brain. Next to those I like pines—good juicy pineapples. They are coming in fine now. Some folks prefer the canned pineapples because they are slightly cooked, just enough to preserve them. We have a brand of pineapples that are put up on the plantation where they are grown. When you eat bananas you are helping to pay dividends on trust stock. Did you know that? The price of banana fruit is regulated by a gigantic trust with its coupon factory in New York. An army of clerks put in all their time grinding out coupons and the stockholders are getting so fat cutting them off that they don't dare eat bananas, because bananas are so fattening. They are now talking of forming a close corporation for handling the pineapple output. Well, this is the open season for all kinds of ripe fruit, pines, melons, peaches, and soon we'll have good eating apples and grapes. Do you know Loughary's fruit department? Get acquainted.
