 City Auditor L. D. Brown reports that there is still no evidence of envenoming in the city politics and that no new petitions have been filed or circulated this week. Considering that the election is only a little over two weeks away, this condition is rather unaccountable.

 Although yesterday was the last day in which a rebate could be secured on payment of taxes, the crowd of taxpayers which visited the sheriff's office was no larger than it has been nearly every day since the collection of the taxes was begun. This was perhaps fortunate, for Sheriff Grant and his three deputies have had their hands full for the last three weeks attending to the crowds they have had to wait on and had the throng of visitors increased they would scarcely have been able to cope with it.

 Principal R. R. Hill, of the Dallas public school, announces that he has been able to arrange for the appearance in Dallas of the Grant Lyceum Trio, under the auspices of the school. The Grant Trio is one of the higher priced attractions and Mr. Hill would not have been able to secure them had it not been for the fact that they had an extra date vacant which they desired to fill. For that reason it will be possible for the people of Dallas to enjoy an entertainment of exceptional merit at a nominal admission price.
 The personnel of the trio is as follows: Miss Daek Montgomery, soprano and reader; Miss Ethel Montgomery, alto and pianiste, and Miss Mari Frances Whitney, violinist and pianiste. Their programs consist of readings, vocal and instrumental solos, duets and trios. All have gained enviable reputations among the entertainers on the stage today and their program is recognized as one of exceptional merit. Miss Whitney was in Dallas on a former occasion and her violin playing was highly commended by all who heard her.
 Monday, March 22, has been set for the date of their entertainment and seats are already on sale. The prices of admission will be 25 and 35 cents.
