

Polk County Observer

J. C. HAYTER, EDITOR AND PUBLISHER

Published Semi-Weekly at $1.50 per Year. Strictly in advance.

Entered as second-class matter March 1, 1914, at the post office at Dallas, Oregon, under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

DALLAS, OREGON, JUNE 6, 1911.

The way to build up Dallas is to patronize Dallas people.

They are wrong who assert that a majority of American newspapers will support the proposed reciprocity treaty with Canada...

Our enterprising neighbor, Falls City, will celebrate the Nation's natal day and the completion of the mountain waterworks system at one and the same time...

That the Saturday night band concerts are destined to prove popular was clearly shown at the first open-air performance given on the court house lawn Saturday evening...

Next the Farmers' Institute and picnic at Oak Grove, and then the annual race meet at Independence...

The success of Saturday's picnic at Rickreall will doubtless encourage the Polk County schools and the Artisans to unite their efforts again next year...

After witnessing the spectacle of a thousand Polk Countyites—fully half of them farmers—sitting in their automobiles and watching a flying machine...

Mayor Simon, like many other smart men of history, went into the game once too often. He couldn't "come back."

Artistic Work. A panel now exhibited at Hall & Shaw's furniture store shows the combined artistic skill of the carver, the painter and the wood burner...

Dallas People Visit. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Hughes, of Dallas, visited their daughters in this city, Tuesday. A fine dinner was served at the home of George Loftus...

Buys Hotel Lesse. J. B. Simpson, who for many years conducted a general merchandise store on East State street...

Falls City Schools. The Falls City schools will close on Thursday of next week, after one of the most successful terms in its history...

Work Started. Oscar Holmes, who has the contract for the erection of the brick building to be put up on the corner of Main and Court streets...

FESTIVAL OF PLEASURE

Do not wait until next year. Show it today. You will never regret it. "Come here this morning and gaze upon this immense class makes one think that Polk County is 'going some'...

"Where have you been?" asked the owner. "Ah don't know, sah, but Ah bin foah days an' a half gittin' back."

"I surely think that the people of Polk County have been 'going some,' and that the people of any other county who wish to keep up will have to 'go some,' too."

"I congratulate you upon the fact that Polk County has taken such a stand in educational matters, and I congratulate this class upon having taken the hardest examination ever given to the eighth grade in the state of Oregon."

The next feature of the program was a vocal selection rendered by the Monmouth High School quartet, composed of Miss Jean McInturf, Miss Lorette Shore, Miss Ruby Frame and Miss Catharine Hughes.

In introducing Governor West, who was to present the diploma, Superintendent Seymour called attention to the fact that he believed that no similar class in this state had ever been accorded such an honor.

Governor West Speaks. "I think the honor is mine," said the Governor. "It is a pleasure, indeed, to be here today to present these diplomas. I am a product of the public school. My education was merely a common school education. I left school before I was in the eighth grade...

"It is, indeed, a pleasure to be able to meet you here today, and to present these diplomas to these young men and women of this class. It is fitting that they should be brought here on this ground, made famous by a man who did a great deal to make this one of the famous states in the Nation...

The graduates, one from each school, then came forward to receive from the hands of the chief executive of their state the diploma of paper which they had toiled so long, and which to them represented so much of the great things held by the world just opening before them...

Thanks Due Patrons. A vocal duet followed, after which Superintendent Seymour announced that the morning program had been concluded, and that he desired to thank the school patrons and people of Polk County for their co-operation and display of proper educational spirit in the past year...

During the noon hour some hundreds of baseball fans, willing to brave the pangs of hunger, went forth to the athletic grounds and there enjoyed a very interesting contest between two Artisans' teams—one from Whitson and the other from Welladale. The struggle lasted five innings, with the following result:

Whitson 2 0 2 2 1-7 Welladale 2 0 1 0 3-6 A home run in the last half of the fifth, by Glen Baker, added to the spirit of the occasion. Post struck out 6 men, and Will Carson 5. The umpire was from Astoria, Mr. W. W. Dale, and Hutterick, of Whitson. The scores were E. E. Hildebrand, of Welladale, and A. G. Massey of Whitson.

AFTERNOON PROGRAM. The afternoon's exercises opened with a literary program, given by the Artisans. It was under the direction of Mrs. Mary V. Burch, Master Artisan of the Dallas College quartet, the members of which are E. A. Johnson, G. W. Montgomery, Nerval Gates and A. J. Vick. Their efforts pleased and they responded in an encore.

Supreme Master H. S. Hudson, of Portland, was next introduced and made a short but highly appreciated address on the subject of fraternalism, with special reference to the great work done by the Artisans during its 17 years' existence in this state.

Value of Fraternalism.

He emphasized the value of fraternalism upon the individual and upon society. The Artisans, he said, had its origin in this state, and had in its brief life assumed a high position as a beneficiary order, and he hoped to see the people of Oregon to support it—a home product—instead of sending thousands and thousands of dollars to Wall street and the other great money marts of the East for insurance that was in no way better, and in some cases not as good, as they could receive right here at home.

A highly enjoyable vocal medley was then given by the members of the women's quartet of Capital Assembly of Artisans, from Salem. Their efforts were so highly appreciated that they were compelled to answer a hearty recall, which they did with "Three Blind Mice," in a way that created great merriment. Mrs. E. H. Miller, Mrs. C. C. Clark, Mrs. J. E. Mills and Mrs. J. T. Penn formed the quartet.

Governor Commends Order. Governor West was then introduced by Mrs. Burch. He dwelt upon the need of education and the value of fraternal orders. The people of Oregon, he advised, should give encouragement to a home institution like the Artisans, which perhaps had a larger reserve fund behind it per dollar of insurance than any other insurance company in the United States. Millions of dollars had been sent away for insurance that should have been kept at home.

Referring to the Oregon State Training School, formerly known as the Reform school, he called attention to the 150 youngsters confined there, and the efforts that were being made to make useful and respected citizens of them. They were not a lot of young criminals, but a fine body of young people, and an effort was being made to improve their surroundings. The Woodmen, before whom he had spoken at Portland, had subscribed some sufficient to furnish a modern piano for the institution, and he said it was now up to the Artisans to do their part. They needed a moving picture machine at the school, and he was going to ask them to help.

Artisans Subscribe. "All right," interrupted Supreme Master Hudson, picking up a hat and dropping a piece of money into it. "We will do it." And hats were immediately passed through the crowd, and the boys will get their moving picture machine, just as Mr. Hudson said they would.

The Governor continued with comments upon his plans for the Training school and the state penitentiary, and of the problems that confronted him in his efforts to carry out his plan for the assistance of the people, because, he said, there would come dark days when one among many would go wrong, and the newspapers, not regarding those who kept in the straight and narrow path, "would raise a howl."

The address was then entertained with a musical selection by the Woman's Quartet, of Salem.

Conclusion of Program. "Where Are the Boys of the Old Brigade?" was then sung by the Dallas College Quartet. For an encore they gave a little ditty which consisted largely of "how-diey."

A reading by Miss Myrtle Penn, of Salem, followed by a final number by the Dallas band, brought to a close the literary features of the day. The afternoon ball game between Dallas and the Chemawa Indians attracted an immense crowd that viewed the game from every available point, and encroached on the guard lines. When the game was called, by agreement, at the seventh inning, the count stood 3 to 1 in favor of the redmen. Dallas was crippled in the second inning, when Ned Shaw was compelled to retire and seek the services of Dr. R. H. McCallion, on account of a broken finger on his right hand, and were by innings being as follows:

Brothers—B. L. Harris, of Rickreall.

President and Mrs. J. H. Ackerman, of Monmouth, were interested listeners during the literary exercises. Postmaster C. G. Coad spent a portion of the day on the ground, meeting old friends and taking in the sights.

C. L. Starr, secretary of the State Tax Commission, was over from Salem and was an interested, and at times enthusiastic spectator at the Dallas-Chemawa ball game.

Hon. G. W. Meyers was one of the attentive on-lookers during the school and literary exercises.

Bert Brooks, of the Lafayette Nursery Company, was one of the visitors who seemed to be enjoying the picnic.

Hon. Pat McArthur, lawyer, of Portland, revisited the scenes of his childhood, met old friends, and told new stories.

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Skipton, of Salem, Mrs. C. C. Clark, Mrs. J. E. Mills and Mrs. J. T. Penn formed the quartet.

Hon. C. L. Hawley, state senator from this county, was caught in the company of Superintendent Seymour, on the way to the ball grounds.

Mayor Craven had about as much pleasure out of the day as any one. He tried the various schemes provided "for a little fun and amusement, boys," and won distinction by awaiting the "African dagger" kerplunk on the top of his alleged Ethiopian head with an ease.

The Reverend and Mrs. J. W. Jenkins and daughter, Mabel, of Bethel Heights, drove over in their motor car and enjoyed the graduating exercises, and later returned home by the way of Dallas.

Definition of Osteopathy. Osteopathy is a system of treating disease without drugs by the use of the hands to adjust all parts of the human mechanism to perfect mechanical relations. It is that science which finds in disturbed mechanical relations of the anatomical parts of the body the cause of disease, and which is employed to cure disease by applying technical knowledge and high manual skill to the correction of all disturbed relations occurring in the mechanical arrangement of the body. It is a science founded upon the principles of anatomy and physiology.

The word does not mean the treatment of bones, nor of bone diseases. It was used as a name because the founder discovered the importance of disturbances in the bony framework of the body in causing disease. He studied the skeleton as the foundation of anatomy, upon which science he grounded his system. The meaning of the word applies not only to derangements of bony parts, but to all disturbed relations of nerves, ligaments, tendons, blood-vessels, muscles, and of any body tissue.—Journal of Osteopathy.
