The way to build up Dallas is to patronize Dallas people.

AIDING THE COLLEGE.

With a committee appointed to solicit financial aid for Dallas College, and this committee ready to proceed with its work, the future of the school now rests with the people of Dallas. Plans for raising by popular subscription the $20,000 needed for the construction of a new administration building have been worked out by the committee, and it now remains to be seen whether the friends of the institution will rally to its support to the extent of providing the necessary structure. With anything like a general and enthusiastic response to this call for financial assistance, the task of raising the money will be easy and the burden will not fall heavily upon any individual subscriber.

The plan of raising this fund, so far as it has been considered by the committee, is to find five friends of the college who will be willing to subscribe $1000 each, and ten men or women who will give $500 each. This would provide the sum of $10,000—half of the amount needed for the construction of the new building. With this $10,000 subscribed, it is believed that the work of raising the remaining $10,000 in smaller subscriptions would not prove difficult. After having talked with numerous friends of the school, and especially with local business men who appreciate the value of the college to the business and social life of Dallas, President Winter is of the opinion that these larger subscriptions can be secured by a reasonable amount of effort on the part of the soliciting committee. He finds that the business men and heavy property owners of Dallas are friendly to the college and that there exists a general desire to build up and strengthen the school here, rather than to see it removed to some other locality because of a lack of support in its home town. Having interviewed many men and women of means, he believes the work of securing five $1000 subscribers and ten $500 subscribers in Dallas and its immediate vicinity will not prove difficult of accomplishment.

President Winter's past success as financial agent in raising money for the endowment fund of the school entitles his opinions to much weight. By his own personal effort, he raised the endowment from $5000 to $25,000, without neglecting for any great length of time his office duties as President of the institution. It must be remembered, too, that all of this money was raised in Oregon, the General Conference having declined to open the doors of the Eastern churches for a general canvass until such time as the Oregon Conference and the people of Dallas should demonstrate in a practical way that they were interested in the success of the school nd were willing to contribute to its support and development.

Having secured the required $25,000 for the endowment fund, President Winter is now ready to join with the people of Dallas in the work of raising a sufficient amount of money to build the needed administration building. If successful in securing this fund during the vacation months, he will leave for the East in the early autumn to take up the work of increasing the endowment to $50,000 or $100,000, and will remain there until the money is raised. Armed with the $20,000 pledge from the people of Dallas, he is confident that no great amount of work would be necessary among the wealthy congregations of the Eastern churches to increase the endowment fund to $100,000. With this amount in the college treasury, and with suitable grounds and modern buildings in Dallas, the future of the school would be secure for all time.

It now rests with the friends of the school in Dallas to say whether they desire to see Dallas College developed into one of Oregon's strong institutions of higher learning, with the resultant benefit to local business and social life, or whether they are willing, through neglect to assist when assistance is needed, to take the possible chance of seeing the school removed to some community ready and anxious to contribute liberally to its establishment and maintenance. The college is confronted by a condition and not a theory, and the time for the people of Dallas to act is now.

Residents of Dallas have cause for self congratulation in the fact that the postoffice has been raised to the second class. The volume of business transacted with the local postoffice is the surest and most accurate index of the progress of a town, and Dallas' rapid growth from the fourth class to the second class is a certain proof of a healthy condition in all lines of business.

Stonework Set.

George L. Hawkins, the marble cutter, has been setting the beautiful Tenino stone base and entrance piers of the new Williams building in course of construction on the corner of Main and Court streets. A belt of the same kind of stone will be run around the building beneath the second story windows.

Child's Arm Broken.

Willie Eaton, the 6-year-old son of Eaton, the photographer, suffered the fracture of the left arm above the elbow last Monday evening, as the result of a fall from the top of a fence while engaged in play. Dr. H. B. McClellon was called and set the break.

ADDS ANOTHER LAWMAKER

Reapportionment Bill Gives Oregon Three Representatives in Congress.

WASHINGTON, June 28—The Congressional reapportionment bill that will be formally reported to the Senate next week will, if it becomes law, give Oregon three Representatives in Congress, Washington five, Idaho two, Montana two and California 11.

This is an increase of one each in Oregon, Idaho and Montana, two in Washington and three in California. No arrangements have yet been made for the consideration of this bill in the Senate, and it is quite probable that it will be allowed to go over until the regular session next winter. In some form or other it is expected to pass the Senate and become a law in time to permit of the election of the additional representatives in November, 1912.

Fruitmen Join.

CORVALLIS, June 27.—A rousing meeting of the fruit growers in this district was held in the rooms of the Commercial Club on Saturday. The rooms were crowded. The meeting was presided over by Walter S. Brown, president of the Fruitgrowers' Association and of the Corvallis Orchard Company. Mr. Brown introduced A. A. Prince, special representative of the Northwestern Fruit Exchange, who had been invited to Corvallis to address the growers on the principles of scientific fruit marketing, as practiced by the Northwestern Fruit Exchange. At the conclusion of the meeting the directors unanimously voted to join the Northwestern Fruit Exchange the ensuing season.

Rusty Nail Pierces Foot.

As a result of stepping on a rusty nail, Charles Smith, a plumber in the employ of Craven Brothers, is nursing a sore foot at his home in this city. The accident happened while Mr. Smith was working in the rear of the Otho Williams buildings on Court street, Tuesday. The nail penetrated the ball of the foot and considerable force was required to remove it. Antiseptics were quickly applied, but in spite of this precaution the inflammation spread rapidly and the injury will probably prevent Mr. Smith from resuming work for several days.

Family Reunion.

Ben Phillips and Misses Eula and Eugenia Phillips, who have been attending school in Pasadena, California, have returned home and were present at the wedding of their sister, Miss Marietta Phillips. They will also be in attendance at the Phillips family reunion, which is now in progress at the home near Dallas. Mr. and Mrs. Ira Phillips, of Clem, Oregon,; Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Staats, and Mr. and Mrs. Will Jost, of Dallas, will also take part.
