CABBAGE DISEASES.

Susceptibility to Rot and Infection Due to Soil Conditions.

In a bulletin on "Cabbage Experiments and Culture" issued by the Maryland agricultural experiment station it is asserted that the susceptibility to rot and disease of cabbage growing on very rich, highly cultivated land seemed to be due more to something in the soil rather than to the direct attacks of bacteria or fungi. During very rainy weather in the heat of summer young and apparently vigorous cabbage plants will wilt and die. If the weather is moderately dry and the soil loose and well cultivated, cabbage will grow vigorously and seemingly resist disease even if the soil is known to be infected with germs. It was noticed that a patch of cabbage planted on a piece of land that had been used to grow celery for several years grew very well until heavy rains began to fall in

PATCH OF CULTIVATED CABBAGE.

August. In the bright sunshine which followed the plants wilted and died. The crop was mature except a portion of the lower corner, which was on a poor clay knob, and there a few good heads matured. Due consideration was given to the fact of poor drainage and also to excessive amounts of water about the roots, to which might be attributed much of the failure. Still it seemed a plausible conjecture that there might be extraordinary amounts of soluble salts in the soil and that they would have a poisonous effect on the roots. A piece of rather stiff clay land, one-eighth of an acre in size, that had been manured and planted to truck crops for many years and upon which cabbage had rotted badly the preceding year was again treated with ten tons per acre of rotted manure. This was plowed down and the land was prepared for the crop. Plots were marked off and treated as follows: Plot 1—Complete fertilizer, 1,000 pounds per acre. Plot 2—Check, no fertilizer. Plot 3—Lime, sixty bushels per acre. Plot 4—Sulphate of potash, 300 pounds per acre. Plot 5—Murrate of potash, 300 pounds per acre. It had been noticed in some other work under similar conditions that murrate of potash seemed to have the effect of promoting the vigor of the plants. Fifteen varieties of cabbage were planted across the plots, nine varieties of French and six of American origin. The plants were set June 23. They started off nicely and grew well until the first of August, at which time there were incessant rains followed by bright sunshine. All the plants on all the plots wilted down and only a few recovered. Most of those wilted died in a short time with black rot. A few lingered on, but did not make satisfactory heads.

HINTS FOR BEEKEEPERS.

If you expect to get a crop of honey take good care of your bees. Don't imagine that you know it all and cannot learn anything by reading a bee journal. In the production of extracted honey give seven frames in the eight frame super and nine frames in the ten frame. Don't put on your supers before the bees are ready for them, as you gain nothing by doing so, but only render it harder for the bees to keep up the necessary heat. The necessity of having a neat and attractive label with the name and address of the producer on every package of honey put upon the market is well understood by the enterprising beekeeper. The long top bar is better for use in old homemade hives, as the staple expedient frames require accurate inside dimensions. Fruit cultures cannot be carried on successfully without bees to effect fertilization through carrying pollen from one blossom to another. The disposition of an unprofitable colony to store honey may be materially increased by giving them several combs of hatching brood from an industrious hive.

A decision that is bound to have far-reaching effect upon the forest conservation problem and along the line of giving delinquents to the heretofore quite hazy relations existing as between national and state prerogatives, was handed down by the supreme court of the United States a short time since. It brief it holds that the federal government without consent of the states affected may set aside vast areas of public lands and that when such reserves are created they are not subject to state fencing laws.

Notwithstanding the fact that we attribute so large a measure of the skill of birds to instinct, the fact seems to be pretty well established that both song they are in a large degree instinctive, learning the "how" by watching older birds of the same breed with which they are usually mated and by hearing their songs. It has been noted along a similar line that little chicks that are hatched in an incubator and that are not with a hen at all will not do one-quarter of the scratching that those that are hatched and brooded in the usual way and have an example of scratching set for them.

JUST IN TIME.

Some Dallas People May Wait Till It's Too Late.

Don't wait until too late. Be sure and be in time. Just in time with kidney pills. Means curing the back. Before backache becomes chronic. Before serious urinary troubles set in.

Doan's Kidney Pills will do this. Here is testimony to prove it. I. N. Ridgeway, 485 S. 22nd St., Salomon, Ore., says: "For a long time I knew that my kidneys were disordered, as I suffered from pains in the small of my back, especially severe when I stooped or lifted. I did not rest well and arose in the morning so lame and sore that I could hardly get about. I became tired easily, felt languid and was often very nervous. I was also subject to headaches and dizzy spells during which my sight became blurred. Doan's Kidney Pills were finally brought to my attention and deciding to try them, I procured a box. They went at once to the seat of my trouble and in a short time entirely relieved me. Doan's Kidney Pills have my highest endorsement." (Statement given March 28, 1906.)

After Three Years.

On Nov. 20, 1909, Mr. Ridgeway said: "The statement I gave for publication recommending Doan's Kidney Pills in 1906 was correct in every detail. This remedy benefited me greatly and I am glad to tell other kidney sufferers of it."
