TRAVEL MEANS TRIALS

PASSENGERS MUST PROVIDE PRIVATE DRINKING CUPS.

Optional, However, as Public Can Die of Thirst, If It Chooses.

Beginning next Friday the public drinking cup is taboo in Oregon. The ruling to that effect, and both the ruling and the cup must go. Until school starts, the edict will affect railway travelers almost exclusively, and he or she that would a journeying go on their way to the depot and buy one of those collapsible cups—otherwise they get to where Cousin Ann is waiting for them on the station platform. The railroad company will continue to furnish the drinking water, in the same old hand-decorated "cooler," which is so called because it is cooler in winter than it is in summer, b'gosh! The "cooler" will be in the same place in the kind of a faucet will stick out at the bottom as before, but the cup will not be there, out of respect to the state board of microbe killers.

Drinking a la Mode.

Under the new law the proper mode of assuaging thirst, just plain water thirst, is as follows: Upon the first symptoms, the passenger en route will take pains to ascertain that he is genuine. Having thus assured himself that he is really thirsty, he will arise, take his handbag from the rack and explore its insides for his traveling bottle of which hezel and upsetting everything else, he will probably remember that the cup is not there at all. No, he put it in his suitcase; members it very distinctly. Grabbing the suitcase with great recklessness and less care he proceeds to spread its contents on the seat, allowing his fellow passenger to note whether he prefers his shirts to open in the front or in the back. After clawing feverishly and growing red in the face and forgetting the golden text, he discovers that the cup is somewhere else. Come to think of it, it was packed away in the shoe box with the flowers for Aunt Lou. Of course.

Perseverance Pays.

All that is necessary to find out is to untwist 13 lineal feet of twine and three folds of old newspaper, take off the bottom—because the bottom will be where the top ought to be—and then to dive into its recesses; its innermost recesses. A warm grasp of the hand encircling a wad of wet rag discloses the sudden presence of 11 rose thorns, all point outward, jamming the box back into the flowers, he sets down to think it over.

The brakeman comes through the car and condescends to announce that "Taulmzwreplano ex ash-un!" Bright thought! Why not look in his pocket, and just as he feels it in his upper left hand coat pocket, the train comes to a stop, and there on the platform stands Cousin Ann with such a sweet smile of welcome. And when he gets out to Aunt Lou's he goes out on the back porch and drinks about a gallon right out of the bucket.

Artisans to Meet.

A special meeting of Dallas Assembly No. 46, United Artisans, will be held Tuesday evening, August 29, in the Knights of Pythias hall.

PAYING RASPBERRY YIELD

N. M. Grant, of Dallas, Sells 174 Crates From Half Acre Patch.

When it comes to raising red raspberries, N. M. Grant has set an example this year that very few can equal. From a patch of one-half an acre on his farm a mile east of Dallas he has sold 174 crates at an average price of $1.25 per crate, making a total of $217.50 for the patch, or at the rate of $435 per acre, which is certainly a satisfactory return. The vines are of the Marabola variety, a good yielder that ripens evenly and is used by the canneries on account of its adaptability to their requirements.

Mr. Grant's berry patch is in a well-protected place, but the heavy manner in which he cultivates it. He gives it close attention, weeds are not allowed to get a foothold, and the ground is stirred as frequently as possible. In the fall he sows it to vetch or rape and plows the crop under in the spring for green fertilizer. He prefers rape for that purpose, as there is no danger of its freezing out during a cold snap.

NEIGHBORING TOWNS TO HELP

Falls City, Independence and Rickreall Will Aid in Carnival.

The leading towns of Polk county are anxious to help Dallas make a success of the harvest festival and carnival, to be held here September 6, 7, 8 and 9, and will be here with exhibits and brass bands and enthusiasm, ready to do their part. A day will be set apart for each and they will be given an opportunity to spread themselves and have a good time. An exhibit of resources will be made and the various localities will be afforded an opportunity to contribute to it and advertise the county. Arnold's "Traveling Coney Island" will furnish the most of the amusement and spectacular features, such as balloon ascensions, high wire acts, and other thrills and pulse quickeners.

To add to the gaiety of the occasion and turn a portion of the night into day, the streets in the business section will be illuminated by hundreds of electric lights festooned above the curbs.

Wednesday, the first day of the carnival, is to be Rickreall or Artisans' day. Everybody who has ever attended an Artisan picnic at Rickreall knows what that means, as the people down there are in the habit of "doing things up brown." So it is a safe guess that Wednesday will open and close in "a haze of glory."

Thursday is to be given over to Independence, and the people are expected to come from there in train loads, bringing their band and joining in the carnival spirit with energy.

Friday has been labeled "Falls City day, and all the live wires from the center of the logging industry, where the falling water flows have promised to come down in a bunch and make a noise like a good time. Their cousins from Black Rock will come along, and between them they will own the town.

Saturday will be "Dallas day," and also the last day of the festival, and music and sports and carnival stunts of many kinds will be the attractions, the whole closing with a grand finale of merriment and mirth Saturday evening.

PROMINENT MAN CALLED

HON. J. H. HAWLEY, OF MONMOUTH ANSWERS SUMMONS.

Death Comes Unexpectedly After But Brief Illness—Age Was 70 Years.

Hon. J. H. Hawley, pioneer of Oregon, and one of the most noted figures in the industrial, social and political development of Polk county from its inception to the present time, passed away suddenly at his home in Monmouth, Thursday morning at 2 o'clock, aged 70 years. His death was unexpected and followed but a few days' illness. He contracted a slight cold last Friday, but nothing was thought of it at the time, and Sunday he was out visiting friends, and was apparently in good health. The cause of death, as diagnosed by Dr. Beauchamp, the attending physician, was broncho-pneumonia, together with old age.

His son, Senator C. L. Hawley, of McCoy; his daughter, Mrs. Beauchamp, of Stayton; his wife, and his son-in-law, Dr. Beauchamp, were present when the end came. Mrs. B. F. Mulkey, of Jacksonville, his other daughter, arrived yesterday forenoon. William H. Hawley, the eldest son, who is engaged in farming at Holston, Montana, and Luke M. Hawley, a prominent merchant at Billings, Montana, were unable to come.

Funeral Today.

The funeral will be held in the Church of Christ at Monmouth this morning at 11 o'clock, and the burial will be at the Bethel cemetery at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Hawley was active in everything that pertained to the advancement of the general good, and was revered for his qualities of heart and mind. He was one of the strongest supporters and most ardent advocates of the Normal school at Monmouth, and much of its success in former years has been due to him. Its reopening, which is to occur the coming month, was possible largely by reason of his unfaltering assistance. In his death the school loses one of its ablest partisans.

He was an Indian war veteran and a member of the Pioneer Association of Polk county. He was the first president of the organization, and served in that capacity for about 20 years. His last public appearance in Dallas was made as president of the day at the Pioneer picnic held here last June.

Came Across Plains.

John Henry Hawley was born in London, Canada, March 10, 1835, and at the age of fifteen years removed to Oregon with his parents, coming by ox team across the plains. The family settled in Oregon City in 1844, and later his father took up a donation land claim three miles east of Minnville. At the age of 21 he took a two-years' course in the Bethel Academy, and having qualified as a teacher, he taught school in both Polk and Yamhill counties. In 1861 he went to the mines in Idaho. Returning to this county, he embarked in the mercantile business at Bethel. He purchased 400 acres of land near there, upon which he began to farm in 1875. Beginning with 1892, he spent a year in Salem, and later removed to Monmouth, where he invested in the stock of the Polk County Bank, of which he has since been president. Much of the success of the bank, it is said, was due to the financial acumen of Mr. Hawley. Up to the time of his death he continued to be interested in his farm, where he made a specialty of high grade stock.

In 1858 Mr. Hawley was married to Eliza Mulkey, of Corvallis, a native of Missouri and pioneer of 1847. Seven children were born to Mr. and Mrs. Hawley, of whom two are deceased. Ever since attaining his majority, Mr. Hawley took a keen interest in local and general politics and has allied himself with the republican party. He has filled many positions of trust in the community. He was a justice of the peace at Bethel, had been Mayor of Monmouth several terms, and during the session of 1882 he was a member of the state legislature from Polk county.

He was a member and church officer in the Church of Christ, and took a leading part in religious affairs.

Armshy Packing Plant To Be Built Near Union Depot.

Preferring a location nearer the business center of the town, J. K. Armshy company has relinquished the Brown site in North Dallas, and will build their prime packing plant between the union depot and Soehren's warehouse, which they consider an ideal place. Scott Swetland, of Portland, Northwest manager, and Agent Wood, of California, representing the company, were in the city lately and inspected the property with the above result. This chance will be of great advantage to the city and to the majority of fruit growers who expect to deal with the company.

Owing to the lateness of the season and the small amount of prunes which they were able to contract in the wake of three energetic competing buyers the company has concluded not to build its plant this fall, as planned. The work will be started early in the spring, however, and they offer to put up a cash bond to insure its completion and later operation.
