Hip Broken.

Deputy County Assessor W. A. Ayres was called to McMinnville a few days ago to attend his aged father, J. W. Ayres, who is suffering from what is supposed to be a bad break of one of the bones in his hip. "Uncle Jimmy," as he is generally spoken of, arose during the night and in some unaccountable way fell hard enough to cause the injury. He did not recover consciousness until next morning. He is 77 years old, and will probably be brought to the home of his son here for treatment. His grandson, H. A. Ayres, is now with him.

Operated On.

Clyde, the two year old son of Albert Parks, living a short distance west of Dallas, was operated on Wednesday afternoon by Dr. L. A. Bollman for the purpose of removing an abscess on the thigh. He stood the ordeal well and is getting along nicely.

PLAY "AMICUS" NEXT

Dallas Basket Ball Team to Meet Portlanders in Armory Tomorrow Night in Brisk Game.

Tomorrow night in the new armory building the Dallas basket ball team will cross swords with the "Amicus Club" of Portland, self-styled champions of the Northwest. The "Amicus" club comes to Dallas with confidence in its ability to defeat the strong team of company H. O. N. G., acknowledged to be one of the strongest aggregations of its kind in the state. Recently the "Amicus" club defeated the well-known Multnomah club team by a score of 23 to 13, and upon that victory very largely is the "Amicus" club basing its claim to the Northwest championship.

Considered Strong.

The "Amicus" club is not very well known outside of basket ball circles, but in basket ball, it is considered one of the strong contenders for basket ball honors. Information from Portland is to the effect that there is no better team in Portland this year than this one, unless it be the "Spartans."

Though the Dallas boys are somewhat used up as a result of their very hard game Christmas Day with the Silverton team in Silverton, still they feel confident of being able to decisively settle any question as to who are the real basket ball champions of the Northwest, if not of the whole United States. However, an interesting contest is looked for, and a large crowd is expected. This will be the last big game in this city until after the Angora Goat show.

Married By Judge.

Daniel W. Pickett, of Dallas, and Etta Dow were united in marriage this week at the court house by County Judge Ed F. Coad. The witnesses to the ceremony were W. J. White and Iva Gwinn.

A Word To Our Many Customers

Our business for the holiday season just closed—our first year in the book and art business in Dallas—was far ahead of even our fondest expectations. People who bought their gifts at this store—and there were many of them—had the satisfaction of knowing that no larger city in the country could offer them a more up-to-date assortment of books and art goods from which to choose.

Our holiday stock is gone—completely sold out. Of the hundreds of dollars worth of goods displayed on our tables and shelves two weeks ago, less than $20 worth remains unsold. This will mean a complete new stock of gifts for the holiday season of 1912. It means that we are now free to devote as much care and attention during the coming eleven months as will be necessary to the selection of a stock for next Christmas that will bring a busier trade than we enjoyed this year.

And, now, with the remodeling of our store and the rush of the Christmas season behind us, we will be able to devote more time to the completion of our book and stationery stock, and to add the lines of blank books, typewriters, card index systems, and office supplies that will make the Dallas book store one of the best in the state.

We are deeply grateful for the generous patronage accorded us by the people of Dallas and Polk County, and more grateful still for the many kind expressions of interest in the success of our new business. In return for these many kind wishes, we but faintly express our gratitude when we wish for all of our neighbors and friends the blessings of health, happiness and prosperity during the coming year of 1912.
