Cardinal O'Connell Robed As a Prince of the Church

WITH the return of Cardinal O'Connell, joyously received by the Catholics of the archdiocese of Boston, the United States has for the first time within its borders three cardinals of its own. By a singular appropriateness San Clemente, the church in Rome to which Cardinal O'Connell has been assigned and which gives him his title as cardinal priest, has for nearly 300 years been in charge of the Irish Dominicans and so is a link uniting Rome, Ireland and America. Its underground oratory dates 1,400 years back, and it stands on the traditional site of the house of Clement, the third successor of St. Peter in the Roman pontificate. In the course of his address on the occasion of taking over the church the cardinal said, "St. Peter, the prince of the apostles, and St. Paul, the apostle of the gentiles, to both of whom the Romans owe their vocation to the faith, stood in this very place and offered up the holy sacrifice."

The World's Largest Flying Bird.

Among the most notable birds in the London zoo is what is generally regarded as the largest flying bird in the world. It is known as the lammergeyer (lamb vulture, or bearded vultures). This giant bird is from India and is the largest of all eagles or vultures. Its wings measure over fourteen feet from tip to tip, and it is not yet full grown. The lammergeyer is found in mid-Europe, Asia and north Africa. It is said to live mainly on carrion, but it is not averse to creating carrion by knocking an unwary chamois or goat over a precipice with a blow from its tremendous wing, afterward flying down to the body to obtain a meal. Even mountaineers have been reported as having fallen victims to this method of assault.—London Mail.

The best complexion dope on earth is not stuff that can be dusted out of a shaker or squeezed out of a tube, but nutritious food stowed away in the stomach—milk, beef, eggs, cereals, fruit—which make new blood and enrich the old. The complexion this kind of treatment results in is more than skin deep, doesn't show in one's wrinkles or brush off on your best fellow's coat sleeve.

The farmers in several New England states are growing restive under a state of affairs existing at present resulting from laws which protect deer for the benefit of the few city sports when they themselves must in many cases furnish free forage for the animals during the closed season. It would seem from the farmer's standpoint not only an imposition, but a game of graft.

In a number of north central states a good many pairs of the Hungarian and ring necked pheasants were turned loose a year or more ago under the direction of the state game wardens. For any readers who may not be aware of the fact it will not be out of place to state that in most instances these birds are to be protected for a period of years and that it is a violation of law to shoot them at any time during the year.

The Kansas state board of health has adopted a rule which provides that when eggs that have been in cold storage two weeks or more or have been packed in any preserving substance are sold at wholesale or retail they shall bear a label stating the length of time they have been in storage. This would seem to be simple justice to the strictly fresh egg and should give Kansas hens some incentive to lay eggs during the winter months.

The value of beet sugar and its by-products for the past year was $90,000,000, while the value of cane sugar was $45,000,000. Consumers of sugar paid during the same time for the protection of the home sugar industry in duties on the vast quantity of sugar imported more than the combined value of the domestic output. This, taken together with the fact that a great majority of the beet sugar factories over the country are owned by the American Sugar Refining company, does not put the consumer in a religious frame of mind when he planks down his dollar for eleven or twelve skimpy pounds of sweetening.

A fellow might be pardoned for trading jackknives "unsight and unseen," but if he knows which side his bread is buttered on he will draw the line in the use of this method when it comes to getting a wife or a piece of land. Hardly a day goes by for the country as a whole but some unsuspecting victim is sending his good hard cash to some promotion company for land which could never produce a crop, owing to the absence of water or the opposite condition—so much water that the soil could never be drained. It is a bit expensive to travel hundreds of miles before buying a piece of land, but it is the only safe or sensible thing to do.

HOME SUPPLY OF ICE.

In putting up the home supply of ice there is no need of an elaborate structure. However, two or three general principles should be observed. In the first place, the building intended for storage purposes should be so situated that there will be good drainage. Another point to keep in mind in packing is to allow about fifteen inches' space between the ice, as it is piled, and the walls. Other things being equal, the ice will keep better the larger the pieces are. For commercial use it is rarely cut until it has attained a thickness of twelve to fourteen inches, while for refrigerator cars it is often twenty inches. Of material for use in the packing sawdust gives best results, but where this is not available chaff, hay cut short or even shredded corn fodder will answer the purpose. The space above the ice should be kept well ventilated.

Blind Arabs of the Desert.

The Arabs have a saying to the effect that "when you travel through the country of the blind be blind yourself," and, though, like all proverbs, it is doubtless not intended to be taken literally, still the malady of blindness is so common in Algeria, especially among the tribes that inhabit the oases of the Sahara, that the traveler may almost stop and ask himself if he has indeed come to that country of the blind. The prevalence of eye disease is due perhaps to the intense dazzling brilliance of the desert sun and to that complete absence of shade which must be endured by the wandering Saharan. The Arabs are normally very kind and respectful to the aged or infirm, and a blind man or woman will seldom lack an escort of one or more children to pilot them safely along the roads, and who, if they are still young and active enough to work, will assist them in hoisting their load of sticks or barley upon their backs and see them safely home to the humble dwelling that shelters them.—Wide World Magazine.

THREE WIVES GRANTED DIVORCE BY JUDGE GALLOWAY.

Husbands Fail to Appear to Contest Cases and Decrees are Granted by Default—Short Docket.

At a very short session of Department No. 2 of the circuit court for this county which was held last week by Judge William Galloway, three of the five cases acted upon were actions for divorce. In each of the three the wife was the plaintiff, and each was granted dissolution of the marriage bonds as prayed for by default of the defendant husbands to appear and contest the cases. The docket and the orders made thereon was as follows:

May W. Curtis versus William H. Curtis, L. D. Brown for plaintiff, action for divorce. Default entered; testimony taken and decree granted as prayed for.

Alice Frakes Dickey versus Francis Dickey, divorce, W. L. Tooze, Jr., for plaintiff. Default entered; testimony taken and decree as prayed for.

Belle Schmied versus Charles W. Schmied, divorce, L. D. Brown for plaintiff. Default entered; decree as prayed for.

T. B. Stone versus whom it may concern, registration of title, Simpson & Lewis for plaintiff. Report of examiner filed; decree ordering registration filed.

B. F. Whiteaker versus Mary A. Titus et al, quiet title, Sibley & Eakin for plaintiff. Default entered; decree as prayed for.

BRANCH OF WOMEN'S PRESS CLUB PLAN FOR DALLAS

President of State Organization Would Extend Features to Include State.

During the time the State Woman's Press club of Oregon has been in existence it has confined its activities almost exclusively to the city of Portland, although as the name implies, it is a state organization. In order that it may fulfill the greatest possibilities of a state organization, and be in effect what the name signifies, a plan has been proposed by its president, Mrs. M. L. T. Hidden, and enthusiastically endorsed by the members, where the club's field of action may be greatly extended.

Briefly stated, the idea is to establish auxiliary press clubs throughout the state in every city and town where there are women writers living in a sufficient number to warrant such action. From inquiries made it appears there is enough literary talent in Dallas to constitute a highly successful press club, if the talented women of the city would join forces with that object in view.

Of all brain workers, writers need the inspiration that comes through an exchange of ideas with others of like tastes. A press club promotes an intellectual comradeship among its members, which is truly helpful, and stimulating. Among the many advantages of the plan the auxiliary club offers would be an annual meeting as a happy culmination of the year's work where all state press clubs would be represented. The benefit, pleasure and inspiration to all concerned derived from such a gathering would be of incalculable value to every one attending.

In accordance with the constitution of the State Woman's Press club, it is not necessary that every member be an actively engaged author. Some of its brightest members at present are only occasional contributors to newspapers and periodicals, while others—associate members—never have received remuneration for their work.

It is earnestly desired that an auxiliary press club of women writers be formed in Dallas and any information which would lead to the organization of one will be furnished gladly by the corresponding secretary, State Woman's Press club of Oregon, Oswego, Oregon, Box 186.

The club's year book, constitution and by-laws will be sent on request.

Will Raise Peaches.

E. VanSanten, a recent arrival from Oklahoma, was in the city Saturday. He has bought 55 acres of Polk county land near Salem and will set out most of it to peaches, many of which are already grown in his neighborhood now with great success.
