TO DEVELOP PROSPECT

Polk Farmer Engages Colorado Mining Expert to Investigate Gold Find on Place; to Sink Shaft.

For the purpose of making an extensive and comprehensive examination of possible gold deposits on his farm two and one-half miles west of Salem, in Polk county, on the Dallas road, William Schwett has made arrangements with a mining expert from Cripple Creek, Colorado, to undertake the development of the find, work to begin in October.

On the Schwett farm are three springs, and it has long been known by the owner that good colors could be found at these springs. He gathered some of the dirt and sent it to Denver for examination and assay. It was found that the soil ran about $60 to the ton, but the great expense involved in developing the prospect prevented Mr. Schwett from going into the matter further at that time. He says he has now made arrangements to go ahead with the work and he proposes to find out just what the hills on his farm contain. Among the plans already outlined by the Colorado mining man, is the sinking of a shaft 100 or 150 feet in depth in the hope of encountering the main ledge or lead. Recent investigations have, it is said, convinced experts that the discovery is worth investigating.

A Marvelous Record.
In 1909, also in 1910 and again in 1911 Oregon Life sold more policies in Oregon than any other company. March, 1912, was the biggest month that this company has ever had, and in the first quarter of 1912 more policies were issued than ever before in any three months since organization. Death losses paid remain just where they were at the close of business, December 31, 1911, namely, a total of only $38,000 since organization of Oregon Life. Mr. John F. Roche, the well-known expert on life insurance, says: "Oregon Life Insurance company is an institution of which the people of the state, the directors and its policy holders may well be proud."

Dr. Lowe says don't wear glasses before you have had it proved to your satisfaction that your troubles will be removed by their use. At the present day too many glasses are sold for simply what is made out of them, without any regard to the eyes. What you need is a thoroughly sound, honest opinion supported by the necessary skill, experience, qualification and reputation. If you consult Dr. Lowe, he will test your eyes and explain your eye needs fully and why your eyes need glasses and what you can expect from their use.
