Neglected wounds produce old sores and these in time develop ulcers which eat away the vitality.

Ballard's Snow Liniment

Is a Healing Remedy for All Ailments of the Flesh of Man and Beast.

The speed with which this splendid liniment heals up a bad wound or sore has surprised and pleased those who were accustomed to the slower and uncertain effect of less powerful remedies. It mends the lacerated flesh so quickly that there is but little time lost from work. In relieving rheumatic pains, neuralgia, sciatica, it has done and is doing a wonderful work. Many chronic victims of these diseases have found in their great satisfaction that it cures an attack in a fraction of the time required by the ordinary treatment.

It is equally effective in the flesh ailments of animals. Owners of blooded stock value it highly for two reasons: It heals sores and wounds quickly, and leaves no disfiguring scars. This remedy is needed in every home. It is of great power and efficacy was generally known, no family would be without it.

Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per Bottle.

Pure Food.
What a comfort to the nation is a pure food ministration. On an up to date and scientific line. When a purchaser is able just by looking at the label the spurious to distinguish from the real! Yet the decorative posters Of the historic boosters. With adjectives all feverishly glow. Must remind us on occasion As we yield to their persuasion That the label doesn't guarantee the show.

And the foliage narcotic That exerts a sway despotic O'er so many as in smoke it drifts away Is so splendidly embellished That at sight it must be relished For the beauty of the bands and boxes gay. "Alta preciosa linea," "Comma concortina," With a picture of a Spanish dancing star, "Buena heras, vincidora," "Don Quixote, grandiflora"— But the label doesn't make a good cigar. —Washington Star.

Thing Worth Knowing.
A young man who was paying court to a girl for the first time ate some onions, and, not wishing to go to his friend's house with the odor of onions on his breath, he asked his sister what he could do.

She secured a small white kernel and, handing it to him, said, "This will take the odor of onions from your breath." The young man ate it remarking: "Gosh, that burns! What is it?" "That's garlic," replied his sister. Philadelphia Times.

Cookery Notes

Luncheon Menu.
As an introduction to a dainty lunch even no better selection could be made than grapefruit cocktail, an appetizing and refreshing development of this favorite fruit. Left over chicken meat can be transformed into a palatable dish and served as a creamed hash or toast. The new asparagus is just as good as it looks, especially in salad form. French pastry completes the menu:

Grapefruit Cocktails.
Chicken Hash on Toast.
Asparagus Tip Salad.
Pastries. Tea.

One cupful of chicken meat (cold) one cupful of white sauce, half a cupful of sweet green pepper, one and a fourth teaspoonfuls of onion juice, four slices of toast, trimmed and buttered.

Cut the chicken in quarter inch cubes, chop the green pepper very fine, add to the chicken and cook all in the white sauce until the chicken is heated through (use double boiler). Arrange on the toast and serve very hot.

With the Cook in the Kitchen.
Wafer-like slices of bread spread with caviar sprinkled with lemon juice and salt make tasty sandwiches.

Banging the oven door is responsible for half the heavy bread and cake. The door should be closed very gently.

For spring suppers sliced oranges and shredded coconut put into a dish in alternate layers is appetizing.

Macaroni prepared in any of the various ways in combination with cheese, butter and tomatoes is nourishing.

Shredded chocolate coconut, which is bought already prepared, makes a tasty addition to different kinds of salad.

Meat loaf of chopped beef or veal can be made more moist if three or four tablespoonfuls of cream are added just before baking.

Cornstarch Pudding.
Take one pint of sweet milk, the whites of three eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sugar and a pinch of salt. Put the milk in a kettle, and when it reaches the boiling point add the sugar and the cornstarch, dissolved in a little milk. Lastly add the whites of the eggs, whipped to a stiff froth. Beat it and let it cook a few minutes. Set two-thirds in a cool place, flavoring it with vanilla. To the remaining one-third add half a cake of chocolate, softened and mashed. Put a layer of half the white pudding into the mold, over this put a layer of chocolate and then the remainder of the white. One-half a coconut or pineapple may be substituted for the chocolate.

Grapefruit Cocktail.
Cut a chilled grapefruit in halves and with a thin, sharp knife remove the seeds and cut out each section of fruit and serve the pulp with the juice in dainty glasses. Two teaspoonfuls of sugar and one tablespoonful of sherry may be added to each glass or either or both may be omitted. Another method is to take grapefruit juice, lemon and orange in equal proportions. It is then sweetened to taste, flavored with maraschino and diluted just before serving with charged water and served in glasses with some of the grapefruit pulp and a maraschino cherry.

Kitchenettes.
If by any chance you have to use a nice clean saucepan over a smoky fire smear it over on the outside with just a little grease before putting it on. This prevents the smoke from burning it, and if you will wash it afterward in some good suds it will be as bright as ever.

One of the best ways to have a little meat go a long way is to make it into a pie and add potatoes or any other left over vegetables, a hard boiled egg or two cut into slices and a couple of tomatoes. Serve some nice gravy with it.

Japanese Rice.
A Japanese cook's way of preparing boiled rice is to wash the rice carefully and put a cupful of it into two cupfuls of boiling water with a level teaspoonful of salt. Cook the rice rapidly, and as soon as the water is absorbed lift the cover from it, set the dish containing it on the back of the stove and let it steam until it is dry. This is the way a Chinese cook always prepares the rice which he serves with chop suey.

Economical Dessert.
An angel cake that has been in the house for a day or two is turned into a delectable dessert if it is cut into slices and spread with marshmallow icing. Put the slices together and let the top and sides of the loaf with regular frosting and sprinkle the top with candied cherries, rose petals or violets. Scrambled with whipped cream which has been beaten into ice cream.

Mock Cherry Pie.
There is a mock cherry pie possible at this season which in flavor is an excellent counterfeits of its prototype. Mix a cupful of boiling water with a cupful of cranberries, half a cupful of chopped raisins, a cupful of sugar, half a teaspoonful of salt, a little vanilla and three level tablespoonfuls of flour. Bake between two crusts or with a strapped top.

PUNISHED THE SHREW.

Story of the Vixen's Head That Decorates a House in Berlin.
In Berlin, as a tourist turns into the Helligengeist, not far from the Kaiser's palace, he will see, fixed in a niche in the second story of the house No. 38, a bust carved in stone. This is called the "Neldkopf." It represents a hideous, harpy faced woman, with snake-like curls of hair and tongue sticking out in mocking derision. This is the story of its origin and purpose:

One day almost 200 years ago Frederick William of Prussia, "Old Fritz," was walking about the streets of his city in the shabby, free and easy way he loved, looking about for some grievance to redress or some load to lighten, which was an agreeable habit of this plain living king. Looking in at a window, he was struck by the intent industry of a humpbacked goldsmith, and so the king entered the little shop for a chat. The result of this interview was an order for a gold table service for the royal household, which made the fortune of the hunchback. Later the king made other visits to see how work was progressing and on one of these occasions noticed a woman in the window of the opposite house, making the most hideous grimaces and pointing a derisive finger at the little cripple.

"What is the matter with the shrew over there?" asked Frederick William. "It is envy, your majesty," exclaimed the goldsmith. "She is the wife of a rival goldsmith, and ever since your majesty gave me this order she and her daughter have not ceased to mock and deride me."

Frederick William, paternal in punishment as well as in reward, at once made inquiries as to the ownership of the house wherein this shrew lived. He found that it belonged to her husband, and therefore reasoned that there was little likelihood of the family moving. This seemed to please him. He next enlisted the services of a sculptor and ordered him to make the bust of a woman with the most shrewish, Xantippe like face he could imagine. The king then bought and renovated the house in which the hunchback had his workshop, presented it to him and caused the bust to be placed conspicuously above the workroom window. Thus whenever the envious woman across the street looked forth from her casement the first thing on which her eyes fell was this intended portrait of her amiable self.

For more than 100 years the "Neldkopf," "spiteful vixen head," as one would say in English, stood in proud prominence, a reproach to the envious Frau Goldschmidt and her descendants. It afterward mysteriously disappeared, but in 1840 or thereabouts it was found again in a forgotten collection of bric-a-brac. Frederick William IV. bought the bust for a very large price and had it replaced in its original niche, where it stands today. —New York Press.

Chateaubriand's Tragedy.
Writing on M. Chateaubriand in the Paris Temps, Jules Claretie recalls the story of the first performance of the great author's tragedy "Moise." Unable to secure its production in Paris, he had it staged at Versailles. Too nervous to be present in the house on the occasion, he sent his valet with orders to return and report as to the reception of the piece. The servant duly arrived.

"Well?" asked Chateaubriand. "Ah, M. le Vicomte, I amused myself! I spent a most delightful evening."

"It was a success, then?" "A success, M. le Vicomte? Of course it was a success. It was an immense success. The audience never stopped laughing from the beginning to the end of it."

Enigma of Gravitation.
Gravitation is one of nature's enigmas. The great Newton himself did not pretend to know what gravitation is. He only knew that it existed, and he was able to prove how it acted, but what it was in and of itself he never knew. Gravitation is a law of nature or a force acting in accordance with a law of nature, and that is all that the wisest man is able to say about it—unless he is prepared to talk nonsense. It is like electricity. We know perfectly well what electricity does, but what electricity itself is baffles the profoundest of scientists and philosophers. —New York American.

Merely a Suggestion.
The second hand dealer looked the car over carefully and then made his offer.

"I'll take the machinery of the motor," he said, "but I don't want the rest of it."

"But," said Wiggins, "what'll I do with my body?"

"Your body?" said the dealer, "why, I don't know. You ought to consult an undertaker about that." —Harper's Weekly.

Up to Date.
"They're very up to date."

"That so?"

"Yes. Her daughter is to be married soon, and she has sent out invitations that read this way: 'Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wattersby Brown request your presence at the first wedding of their daughter Jane.'"

—Detroit Free Press.

Good Advice.
Never suffer your courage to expend itself in fierceness, your resolution in obstinacy, your wisdom in cunning nor your patience in silliness and despair.

Our bravest lessons are not learned through success, but misadventure. —Alcott.
