WEEK IN SOCIETY.

(By Gladys Canter.)

HI've got to Loughary's soon, Next Friday night by the harvest moon, You're to meet Mrs. Munger And appear your hunger. Bring knife, fork and spoon at eight, With plenty of wraps, lest the hour should be late; Under the oaks a fire you'll find, And plenty of fun to each one's mind.

Thus pleaded the original invitations sent out by Mr. and Mrs. Scott Loughary for Friday, August 23, at which they introduced Mrs. George M. Munger, of Los Angeles.

Great, gnarled, towering oaks, weird camp fires, rustic benches, and a perfect maze of beautiful gowns amidst enchanting nature, was the Camille Corot setting for the woodland party.

At the gate of the lovely landing to the delightful country home of the Lougharys one turned the handle of an old grinding stone, and a cowbell attachment announced the approach of the visitor.

Then one entered the fairy palace. On each picket up the long lane reposed a grinning, mocking jack-o-lantern. Around the spacious yard the pickets were adorned with candles, and the whole scene represented an electrical illumination, with ghostly shadows, walls of hoot owls, laughter and revelry which took one back to the days of Nero, when he sat in state and watched the burning of Rome.

A big bonfire roared in the midst of the grove. On dainty tables were the fruits of the tropics. Supper was served in cafeteria style, a unique feature of which was the corn bake. Each guest, armed with a willow wand, bearing an ear of corn Saturday evening at 60 guests Saturday night, Indian fashion, and roasted it. The enjoyment derived from this primitive feature of the evening's entertainment seemed to be the greatest of all.

Then came the fat man's race, and the potato race, and all sorts of races, which were entered into with the vim of school children by the society men and matrons.

The ballet burlesque, in which Lloyd Soehren "balleted," was a scream. The whole evening really comprised a miniature fair and was one of the most novel and cleverly managed parties given this season.

The guest list included about 100. Misses Loughary Entertained.

Misses Gladys and Helen Loughary entertained about 60 guests Saturday evening at a lawn party. The guests were Messrs. and Misses of the younger set.

Mrs. C. B. Sundberg at Cards. Mrs. C. B. Sundberg will entertain at "500" on Wednesday evening at which she will introduce Mrs. H. K. Ball, of Seattle. Forty invitations have been issued.

Society Personals. Mrs. C. B. Sundberg will have as her house guests for next week, Mrs. Vandervall and Miss Frances Vandervall, of Portland.

Mrs. George M. Munger, who has been the guest of the Scott Lougharys for several weeks, will leave the last of next week for her home in Los Angeles.

Mrs. E. C. Kirkpatrick has returned from a few days spent at Newport. R. E. Williams and Mrs. Williams, motoring up from Portland last week for a few days' visit with Mr. and Mrs. J. Williams.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Chapman and son, Frank, motored over from Salem Sunday and visited at the home of Mrs. B. Casey and daughter, Helen, are expected home from Roseburg the latter part of next week. Mrs. Casey and Miss Helen have been visiting relatives in Portland and Roseburg for several months.

Mrs. B. Casey and daughter, Helen, are expected home from Roseburg the latter part of next week. Mrs. Casey and Miss Helen have been visiting relatives in Portland and Roseburg for several months.

Mrs. F. Manston, who has been ill for some time, is greatly improved, and her friends are pleased to see her out again.

MAKING IT EASIER FOR HER

The sewing machine heads the list of inventions that lighten woman's labors. Yet, while relieving her of the tediousness and eye-strain of needlework, the drudgery of operating the treadle still remains. This drudgery becomes especially hard and tiresome when the material sewed is heavy and the task long. There's only one way out of the difficulty—use an electric motor. The G-E Sewing Machine Motor does the work for less than a cent an hour. We will send an outfit on trial.
