LAND VALUES HALT NEW ROAD

accommodations to the farmers in that vicinity. The plan will be further investigated.

Bola Hills Plan Waits.

No further action has been taken in the plan for cutting down a portion of two of the most troublesome hills on the Dallas-Salem road in the Bola district. When the project was first mentioned County Surveyor Saver made a preliminary survey of the work and announced that something like 4,000 yards of earth would have to be moved to insure a four per cent grade. The suggestion was then made to the residents in that vicinity who had petitioned to have the work done that, if they would stand the expense of grading the new road, the court would order the grading done. While some of those interested have agreed others have not, and that is the way the matter stands at present. It is reported that it is practically impossible to secure the necessary gravel at this time and it is therefore extremely doubtful if anything is done on the road this year. When the county's gravel bar, on the south side of the Willamette is fitted up, the matter of securing gravel will then be an easy question.

D. J. Riley, of Dallas, has been employed by the court to superintend the construction of the new concrete bridge at Independence. He will represent the county and see that the contractors comply with the specifications in every detail. Percell & Gallagher, of Portland, have the contract. Engineer Himes of Dallas, has already set the stakes for the new structure.

REGULATE BOOZE SHIPMENTS

first Monday in February, the first Monday in August and the first Monday in November.

In Yamhill county the terms will be on the first Monday in March, the first Monday in September and the first Monday in December, and in Tillamook county, also in this judicial district, the terms will be on the first Monday in April and the first Monday in October.

The new general laws leave the time for the holding of the county court in Polk county the same.

AN INQUIRY ABOUT MONTANA.

The writer is in receipt of a communication from a reader living at Berna, Ind., making inquiry about land located in the Shields river valley, Montana. Our correspondent was brought up on a farm and knows what farm work is and likes it, but for the past nine or ten years has been working in a tinshop and in this interval has accumulated a nest egg, which he wants to invest in the district in Montana referred to. He has in view a relinquished homestead, which can be bought for $7 per acre, and he wants to know whether this would not be better than trying to get land near his old home, which costs from $150 to $100 per acre. Not possessing first hand information in regard to the district about which our friend asks, we have made inquiry of the experiment station located at Bozeman, and in his reply the director, Professor Linfield, states that there is some excellent land in the Shields river valley as good as can be found in the state, but he adds that there is some, however, which is not so good, the soil being shallow and gravelly, and he makes the further commendable suggestion that before buying one should personally inspect the land he intends to buy. This is excellent advice for the land seeker, whatever his intended location, and it holds particularly of sections where the soil is inclined to be spotted. The rainfall of the section in question is about nineteen inches per year, as shown in the report of the station at Bozeman, which is not far away. Of course this land is in the dry farming belt, which means that the great thing that the farmer must strive for is to conserve moisture.

CARE OF ORCHARDS.

When the western orchard expert, who gives most intensive care to his trees in the matter of cultivation as well as in pruning, spraying and thinning, gets only a nominal price for his fancy fruit it is not difficult to see why thousands upon thousands of barrels of apples in central and eastern states, where orchards are used for calf pastures and given no other care and where the fruit is affected with scab, worms and San Jose scale, do not pay to haul to town, much less ship to a distant market. If there is any one conclusion that the writer is coming to more than another as a result of several years' experience in the fruit raising business it is that fruit growing can be made to pay only when it is conducted as a primary rather than a secondary interest and where it is not reduced to the level of a side issue and makeshift or worse. Not even the expert who gives his orchard the best possible care will do well every year, but in the long run he is the only one who can expect to succeed.

HAVE GOT TO QUIT IT.

With rental of land advancing to $5 and $6 an acre it means that ultimately every farmer in the corn belt will have to make a more economical disposal of his corn crop than that exhibited in husking the grain and allowing the leaves and stalks to weather in the fall and winter sun and wind. Cutting the crop with binder and either putting it in rainproof shocks or shredding it and running it into a silo are the two ways out, and in many respects the latter method is better than the former. The silo can be filled with rain or shine, and the question whether the silage keeps well or not is entirely independent of the weather. Besides this, it furnishes a succulent ration during the winter months, which is greatly relished by both the dairy cow, feeding steer and young stuff.

FIELD BEANS.

The field beans will give best results if they are not planted until early in June. Put in at this time they are not bothered so much by the bean weevil as they are if planted earlier. Besides this, a good many weed seeds that have germinated can be killed if the later planting plan is followed. The writer has found the common corn planter a convenient machine to use, going over the field with the machine set at three feet eight inches. Alternate rows may then be straddled, the tracks already made being followed as one would the marker track. This puts the rows twenty-two inches apart, a convenient distance for a single horse cultivator. Frequent cultivation should be given during the growing season, but not when dew is on the vines.

Sir Cecil A. Spring-Rice. New English Ambassador

THE return of Sir Cecil Arthur Spring-Rice to Washington after several years' absence, this time as ambassador from England, was the most important event in diplomatic circles at the national capital since Woodrow Wilson became president. Sir Cecil proved himself at once democratic and at home. He served at Washington before as secretary at the British embassy. As successor to the Hon. James Bryce the new ambassador faced no easy task to attain the place held in the estimation of the country by that honored representative. Sir Cecil was prepared to take up the Panama canal tolls question, which proved one of the most delicate international questions facing the new administration.

All You Can Eat for 10 Cents.

THE GROCER'S DREAM.

Last evening I was talking
With a grocer aged and gray,
Who told me of a dream he had,
I think 'twas Christmas day,
While snoozing in his office,
The vision came to view,
For he saw an Angel enter,
Dressed in garments white and new,
Said the Angel, "I'm from Heaven,
The Lord just sent me down
To bring you up to glory,
And put on your golden crown,
You've been a friend to everyone,
And worked hard night and day;
You've supported many thousands,
And from a few received your pay.
So we want you up in glory,
For you have labored hard,
And the good Lord is preparing
Your eternal, just reward."

Then the Angel and the grocer
Started upward toward glory's Gate
But when passing close to hades,
The Angel murmured "Wait!"
I've a place to show you—
It's the hottest place in hell—
Where the ones who never paid you
In torment always dwell."
And, behold, the grocer saw there
His old customers by the score,
And grabbing up a chair and fan,
He wished for nothing more;
But was bound to sit and watch them
As they sizzled, singed and burned,
And his eyes would rest on debtors,
Whichever way they'd turn.
Said the Angel, "Come on grocer,
There's the Pearly Gates to see."
But the grocer only murmured,
"This is Heaven enough for me."

EQUITY PLAN INTERESTS

Meeting at Liberty School House on Tuesday Night is Well Attended. Organizer Petty Explains Plan.

That the farmers are interested in the plan as mentioned in Tuesday's issue of The Observer for the formation of local divisions of the Farmers Society of Equity, was proven by the large crowd and the interest manifested in a meeting held on Tuesday night by Organizer Petty at the Liberty school house southwest of the city. It is said that the rooms were filled to the doors, but no local will be later. Mr. Petty delivered his lecture which is illustrated with stereoscopic views and thoroughly explained the objects of the society which is to promote the welfare of the farmers and assist them in securing more advantageous prices for their products. Other meetings will be held in all portions of the county and locals formed wherever possible.
