Boys Planning Trip
Dallas Troup Boy Scouts to Hike On Overland Trip to Sea; Big Time Planned.
The Dallas troop of the Boy Scouts of America are recruiting members almost each meeting night and are counting on large things after they start on their hike to the sea over the coast range August 18. Scout Master S. J. Gibson promises the boys a few of nature's good things in the forests and assures them that no wild animals will run off with any, although some of the boys think they ought to be allowed to take guns along, things that boy scouts are not allowed to have or use on their outings.

Several members have been enjoying the out-door sleeps and the indispensable "swims" and eats for several Saturday nights past and their enthusiasm over the anticipated trip know no bounds.
Early next week several tenderfoot scouts will qualify and be promoted to second class scouts and the examination will be conducted before the local council, consisting of Messrs. J. G. VanOrsdel, president; William P. Miller, vice president; Chester P. Gates, secretary; Eugene Hayter, treasurer; Harry Seymour, scout commissioner; Geo. Hawkins, Geo. T. Gerlinger, Conrad Stafrin, Dr. Wm. Cary, Dr. Rempel and Sam Gibson.

STILL MAY SHOOT DUCKS
New Migratory Game Bird Law Not Prohibitive.
In some sections of the country an erroneous notion has sprung up that the federal migratory bird law will totally prohibit all shooting of ducks and other wild fowl. It is hard to understand how such a rumor has gained any credence for not only does the new federal statute allow duck and other wild fowl hunting but has, in several states, materially extended the open season on these birds. What the migratory bird law does effect is to wisely and well prohibit all spring shooting. It is thought by many sporting authorities that when this particular injunction shall have been in force a very few years the hunter will find his duck shooting to approach, nearer autumn after autumn, that sport of which the oldest settler romances.

The new law which becomes effective on October 1, 1913, divides its operative territory into two sections—a northern and southern zone—comprising the states above and below a line stretched approximately from Delaware's northern boundary to the northern boundary of California. In the northern zone the open season on all water fowl is from September 1st to December 15th; of the southern, October 1st to January 15th. There are some exceptions to this which in general follow the state's laws as they now are. Migratory birds may not be killed between sunset and sunrise.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

All That Remain of the Many Words of Elijah Kellogg.
Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Regulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what steno-grapher among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Regulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

What college youth of these days could write such forceful orations? These have never been surpassed, and in some schools it has become necessary to bar them from the list at prize speaking competitions, so invariably do they carry off the prizes.
Of all the words of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained a far more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press.

CURIOS ALASKAN BIRDS.

Male Ptarmigans Woo in Two Tongues and Bully Their Mates.
The ptarmigan, an Alaskan bird, is a wonderful imitator of man, if Belmore Browne, who contributes an article on Alaskan game to Outing, is to be believed. To begin with, the author finds that the ptarmigan is a linguist of no mean ability. The male does his wooing in mixed French and English: "A pleasing side of their mating is the habit of the males of uttering their call while on the wing. They commence with a guttural cackle, which they utter faster and faster until they alight, when they end their song by repeating slowly a call that sounds like 'god-up, god-up, god-up or parlez vous? parlez vous? parlez vous? as they strut proudly about."

In addition to singing in two languages, the ptarmigan conducts his personal and domestic affairs in approved fashion. Could not the following observation apply to human beings as well as to this remarkable bird: "The males fight constantly, and the hens seem to enjoy these battles and sit about clucking among themselves. "But once a hen has decided on a mate she comes into her own share of troubles and is beaten and bullied by the mate she has promised to love and obey."

When I got the order to design a big wholesale house for a firm that has stores in six cities I was elated," said an architect. "I'll plan a building that is bound to be satisfactory," I said to myself, "and then they will give me the commission for those new stores they expect to put up in those other five cities.
"Well, I did turn out a splendid store, a store that was admired by everybody in the wholesale trade. My patrons were pleased, too, but instead of giving me an order for those other buildings they simply used the same plans over again and built all their houses alike. That's what I call playing a low down trick on a fellow."—Philadelphia Ledger.

One Kind of Fame.
Authorities who have in charge some of England's ancient treasures try to discourage the habit of carving initials on these relics. A fine of $15 was recently imposed on a man who had chipped his name in letters six inches high on one of the stones in the "Druids' Circle" near Keswick. Close to the giant stone globe at Swanage a special slab is provided for the harmless reception of the names of all who are addicted to this self advertisement. On popular Alpine summits it is customary for names to be left on cards in emptied wine bottles.

THE PEDEE STORE
PEDEE, OREGON
We try to give 100 cents value for a dollar. Do mail order houses always do that? Do they or the "home" store "hold you over" when cash is short between seasons? We can get things we don't have in a much shorter time than you can send away and get them from a mail order house. We appreciate your trade too.
