Prices—Present ruling prices in London: 1906 Oregon hops, seven years old, 26c.; 1913 English hops, 43 at 47c. per pound. 1913 New York hops in New York, 40 at 44c. pound. 1913 Oregon's in Oregon, 21 at 23c.

According to these figures it is seen that hops in this state are quoted about 20 cents cheaper than in New York and London. This great and unusual for difference, which is charged to be the work of manipulators, was the cause of yesterday's a. c. t. g. It is argued that since it only costs about a cent and a half a pound to ship hops from Oregon to either of these markets the price of hops here should be within a few cents of the top prices there.

Among the oil speakers were F. J. Lafky, J. A. Pooler, A. N. Gilbert, George Sweze, J. C. Wolf. Some spoke in favor of forming a pool and some against it, but all admitted that something should be done to raise the price of the Oregon product.
